It Simmers Mildly.
First Bandits, Then Bombs.
Only 48 Cents Left.
Radicalism In Mexico.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE POLITICAL pot, not exactly boiling, reminds you of a sluggish stream, not of Niagara's rapids. But, as November draws near, the speed increases a little.

On Tuesday Gov. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith shook hands. Much applause, regardless of the fact that they were so close they could not help it. The judicious will content themselves with hoping that neither, as they shook hands, muttered to himself Solly Wortheim's well-known words:

"For what I am wishing you, I could be put in prison."

ON TUESDAY, President Hoover made a speech, which, according to Cyrus H. K. Curtis' learned editor, was to "save the Middle West from the radicals." A radical, presumably, is a farmer not content to get 22 cents a bushel for wheat or 9 cents a dozen for eggs.

Wall street must have expected the President to pull hundreds of solid gold rabbits out of his hat. Yesterday, after the speech was read, stocks dropped off sharply on the "big exchange," the "curb exchange" and in the bond lists.

UNHAPPY CITIZENS of Sinchow, China, know that modern war is complicated. Ten thousand Chinese reds took possession of their city, an important trading center, wrecking and looting. That was bad enough.

Then Hankow, 50 miles away, sent a squadron of airplanes to bomb Sinchow's "red bandits," killing more citizens than bandits. That was worse than the bandits.

IT TAKES little imagination to realize the part that airplanes will play in war, when you read statistics of city populations. Seven cities contain more than 33,000,000 inhabitants.

What marvelous targets for air pilots with gas bombs, and explosive bombs are offered by London, New York, Tokio, Berlin, Chicago, Paris and Moscow!

A MAN, only forty-seven years old, once prominent in industry, is found dead in Chicago with a bullet in his head. A farewell note said that he was "another victim of the depression."

He had only 48 cents left. One of the six letters, laid out on his dresser with the forty-eight remaining cents, was addressed to "authorities, coroner, or what have you."

A thousand men have succeeded beginning with 48 cents and less. That is more than John D. Rockefeller had when he started.

Some feel that they are ruined when they have only a million or two remaining. It depends on the point of view and the COURAGE.

IN MEXICO, while Mgr. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, the Pope's delegate, is expelled from the country by airplane, as a "pernicious foreigner," interesting radical propositions are made.

One suggests the seizure of all churches and church property, the buildings to be made over into shops and schools. The state of Vera Cruz Governor, candidate for the Mexican presidency, wants all foreign capital sent out of Mexico, and demands "proletarization" of culture "to raise the cultural level of the masses."

Many of the Mexican Indian masses will not know what that means, and many whites will not know.

IN REPLY to the papal delegate's expulsion, the state department of the Vatican says the Pope's encyclical, on which the expulsion is based, was merely a pretext.

The theory of the Vatican is that "certain elements among the Catholics in Mexico, who wish to oppose force with force," may get out of control of ecclesiastical authorities, as a result of the archbishop's expulsion, and that trouble will follow.

A GENTLEMAN of the Texas "Panhandle," whom you imagine with boots, a big moustache and a fierce eye, wires:

"I see you people in New York have nominated for Governor on the Republican ticket a Catholic and on the Democratic ticket a Jewish citizen. What's the matter with your Protestants, have you got none fit to nominate?"

The answer is that now in New York, as in France under Napoleon, "careers are open to talent."

Premier Mussolini, talking to Italian lawyers, said lawyers made Roman law, and that law made Rome great. He placed lawyers above poets and philosophers, but added that Fascism respects culture. "Fascism never has made philosophers drink hemlock," said he, referring to Socrates' ending long ago.

In his high opinion of lawyers, Mussolini differs from an earlier autocrat, Peter the Great. He expressed amazement, seeing flocks of lawyers with powdered wigs in London, and said:

"There are only two lawyers in St. Petersburg, and I am going to hang one of them as soon as I get back."

JURY SHOWN 'TORTURE' TOOLS

Mother of Boy Slain In Prison Camp Sobs in Court

By SAM MELSON
International News Service.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 6.—Modern instruments of punishment rivaling the flesh-scourging machines of the Spanish Inquisition were exhibited in the murder trial of two suspended convict guards today as witnesses from the stand unfolded the story of the alleged torture death of Arthur Maillefert, 22-year-old New Jersey convict.

The alleged torture instruments were introduced as evidence by the state in its prosecution of George W. Courson and Solomon Higginbotham, suspended Sunbeam camp guards.

The exhibit included:

The heavy oaken molasses barrel in which Maillefert was nailed, naked, prior to his death.

The wooden stocks in which his feet and legs were nailed in the "sweatbox."

GUNMEN ROB MAYVIEW WORKERS

Enter Official's Home By Ruse, Take $400 And Escape

A card game that Walter F. Groves, the Mayview supervisor, held for some of his employes on payday night in his North Craig street home was invaded by a trio of gunmen, it was admitted today.

The bandits made a getaway with about $400, half of which was Groves', in what both Groves and his wife say was an "inside job."

Mrs. Groves said the money taken from her husband was for the rent.

NOT REPORTED TO POLICE

Although the robbery is the chief topic of conversation around the city home and hospital, today it was not reported to police. Asked why police were not informed, Mrs. Groves replied:

"We didn't want anybody to know about it."

Shortly before midnight, when the game was in full swing, Mrs. Groves said she answered the bell to admit three strangers who said they knew her husband and wanted in the game.

They were conducted through the house and shown to the cellar by Mrs. Groves, she said. As she led the way into the card room, a revolver barrel was pressed against her back. She said:

"I thought it was a thumb, and although I thought it was impudent, I didn't say anything."

LINED AGAINST WALL

To the players, the gunman leader snapped:

"Line up against the wall, every last one of you."

And to Groves he said, according to Mrs. Groves:

"You think you're a pretty big shot around Mayview."

Stanley Disk, one of the players, was slow to obey the bandit's command, and he was struck on the head with a gun. His head was cut, but he was not seriously injured. Others in the game included Richard Disk, Urban Darr and Andrew Gray, all of Mayview, and a Mt. Lebanon man who Mrs. Groves said, was the dealer.

PHONE WIRES CUT

Two other Mayview employes were in the game earlier, but had left before the holdup, Mrs. Groves said. A man and a woman, in the kitchen eating, were not aware a robbery was in progress.

After taking the money, the bandits departed leisurely, having taken the precaution to cut the telephone wires before entering the home.

Discussing the holdup, Mrs. Groves said:

"It was done by someone who knows the boys play here—Someone who's jealous. You know how those things are."

N. Y. MAYOR ELECTION ORDERED

Court Rules Vote Must Be Taken This Fall In Walker Case

ALBANY, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The Court of Appeals held today that a New York mayoralty election must be held this fall to choose a successor to James J. Walker, who resigned.

The controversy reached the Court of Appeals on an appeal by David McAdams, a friend of Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, from an order of the Appelate Division reversing the action of Supreme Court Justice John E. McGeehan, who had granted a motion for a writ of mandamus to restrain the New York City Board of Elections from holding a mayoralty election on November 8, the day of the annual general election.

PLEA FOR M'KEE FAILS

McAdams' proceedings was based on the contention that McKee had succeeded to the entire unexpired term to which Mayor Walker was elected.

Walker resigned September 1 during the hearing of the Seabury charges in Albany. In a 1,700-word formal statement which accompanied his resigna- Walker said he was submitting his case "to the people who made me Mayor, to the people of the City of New York."

He never has publicly said whether he is actually a candidate for re-election.

SMITH BACKS ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Universal.)—Gov. Roosevelt and former Gov. Smith, having routed Tammany in the selection of the state Democratic ticket, are united in opposing the nomination of James J. Walker for Mayor at the city convention tonight in Madison Square Garden.

With them, it was learned, probably will be John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, who aided the Roosevelt-Smith forces in nominating Lieut. Gov. Lehman for Governor.

Faced with this opposition and threatened with insurrection in his own ranks, Tammany Leader Curry is expected to drop his stubborn fight to give Walker the opportunity of making a "vindication" campaign.

But Walker's friends in the Tammany organization—as loyal as they are numerous—insisted the party leaders are committed to his nomination and cannot back out.

Walker is now on the high seas aboard the liner Europa. He cut short a trip abroad to speed back to New York in view of the Mayoralty situation.

MARTIN J. INSULL

Mr. Insull, former Chicago utilities multi-millionaire, today refusing to leave his "exile" at Orilla, Ontario, to return to Chicago and face embezzlement and larceny charges.

UTILITY HEAD IN RAGE AT OFFICERS

Roused From Sleep in Canada Town, He Defies Arrest

International News Service.

ORILLIA, Ontario, Oct. 6.—Martin J. Insull, former Chicago utilities multi-millionaire, was routed out of bed early today by Chicago officials, who offered him the alternative of returning to the United States voluntarily or facing arrest here under a provisional fugitive warrant.

Insull elected to remain in Orillia, where he has been in retirement with his wife since the $2,000,000,000 crash of the Insull combine. The former magnate said he will resist extradition.

Insull, who is under indictment in Chicago on charges of embezzlement and larceny, was awakened at 3 a. m. in Miss Anne McLean's boarding house by a group of Canadian and Chicago authorities.

SPEED BY PLANE

These latter included Assistant State's Attorney John Hampton of Cook County, and two Chicago detective sergeants, Anthony Blaze and Al Hammer, who made a dramatic dash by airplane and automobile to Orillia.

Immediately after his interview with Insull, the Assistant State's Attorney announced he will go before Judge Dudley Homes, of Simcoe County, today and ask for a warrant for the arrest of the erstwhile utilities magnate.

Obviously indignant at being awakened at such an early hour, Insull, clad in blue pajamas and a hastily-donned bathrobe, talked with Hampton in the hall of the boarding house. The American official asked:

"Will you come back to Chicago of your own free will?"

TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

Insull replied sharply:

"No."

"Will you resist extradition?"

"Yes."

FIGHTS HAWAII 'WHITEWASH'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Mrs. Thalia Massie, principal in the "honor slaying" at Honolulu, today declared that she has decided to insist that the four Hawaiians accused of attacking her be brought to trial again.

The future of the case now hinges upon an expected statement from Gov. Lawrence Judd or Prosecutor John C. Kelley, of Honolulu.

Mrs. Massie declared:

"I will even go back to Hawaii if any attempt is made to whitewash these men."

A few days ago she had said she would not return to Hawaii because it was "unsafe." She continued:

"I am fighting now for my good name. If the officials persist in calling the attackers innocent, I shall do everything I can to make sure that they are retried and proved guilty."

Five natives originally accused of the attack were prosecuted by Kelley. When the jury failed to agree, they were freed. Later one was murdered.

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, husband of Mrs. Massie; her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two Navy enlisted men were convicted of the slaying. They were sentenced to serve 10 years in prison. Their sentences, however, were commuted to one hour by Gov. Judd.

TWO STEAL CAR, HOLD UP CAFE

Two bandits who stole an automobile from the Allegheny Express Company, at 501 Sandusky street, North Side, sped to 101 Grant street early today and escaped with $82 after slugging Abdis Andy, proprietor of the First Avenue restaurant.

Entering the restaurant 15 minutes after the theft of the automobile, they asked Betty Mueck, 23, of 2529 South Eighteenth street, a waitress:

"Is Andy in."

The girl directed the pair to the kitchen, where they forced Andy to the wall and robbed him. As they turned to leave, one of the robbers slugged the proprietor on the face with his revolver.

August Eck, 33, night attendant at the Allegheny Express Company, said the two men, both armed, encountered him saying:

"We don't want money; we'll just take this automobile here."

Police said the machine was owned by S. J. Heck, of Philadelphia.

Rudy Peeved at Failure To Fight Reporter

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Chagrined over what he said was an unsuccessful search for the Cleveland newspaper reporter who, he declared, wrote an unjust story about him, Rudy Vallee, king of the crooners, went back to New York today with his young wife, Fay Webb.

The reporter, however, asserted that battling Rudy failed to show up to keep an appointment to beat him up.

Attaches of the Del Prado Hotel said Rudy stalked in at an early hour one morning this week "with blood in his eye and fists clinched." With a clipping of the story in his hand, and his petite wife clinging desperately to his arm, Vallee "shouted and demanded" to know where his "victim" was, according to John Gardner, night clerk.

Gardner said he told the crooner that the man he hunted, Anthony Decola, no longer resided at the place, but that failed to pacify him. They then produced his brother, Ray Decola, who gave Rudy the reporter's telephone number.

Rudy finally "got his man" on the telephone, and with a burst of oratory that he doesn't use over the microphone, urged Decola to "meet him somewhere and fight it out," onlookers related.

Decola said today the crooner apparently forgot his intended revenge, at least temporarily.

TORTURE TOOLS SHOWN JURY IN PRISON CAMP DEATH TRIAL

MOTHER SOBS AT STORY OF SON'S DEATH

with which the state charges the boy was fatally strangled.

MOTHER WEEPS

Mrs. Julia Maillefert broke into hysterical weeping as she viewed the torture display and heard the details of how her boy died.

The oaken molasses barrel, weighing 50 pounds, was brought into court first after defense counsel for George W. Courson and Solomon Higgenbotham, the accused guards, objected to questioning of a convict witness by State's Attorney Charles M. Durrance.

Durrance told the jury he would seek to prove that the barrel "torture," coupled with exposure and lack of food, so weakened Maillefert that he was unable to stand the rigors of the "sweatbox."

The barrel, one end knocked out, the other nailed up with cross pieces permitting room only for insertion of a man's head, was admitted in evidence.

CONVICT ON STAND

Jim Roberts, convict inmate of the Sunbeam camp when Maillefert, his head drawn taut by a chain around his neck, his feet trussed in heavy stocks, strangled to death in the "sweatbox," was placed on the stand as a state witness as the trial entered its fourth day. He described how the New Jersey youth was forced to wear the barrel as punishment for attempting to escape.

Spectators craned curiously as the witness, clad in prison stripes, shuffled to the stand. Roberts testified:

"I first seen Jersey (Maillefert) when they took him out of the box, two trusties taken a barrel—"

Defense counsel entered a vigorous objection to injection of the barrel in the testimony and State's Attorney Durrance asked that it be placed in evidence. Bailiffs brought the unwieldy contraption into thee courtroom.

Roberts then resumed his testimony. He said:

"This is the barrel with the straps and board they put on him Thursday, June 3.

"Jersey wore it all day Thursday with only his head sticking out and his arms inside. Thursday night they put him in the 'sweatbox' still inside the barrel.

"I seen him rolled out the next morning. The barrel was on its side. Jersey's head was sticking out one end and his feet out of the other.

"He kicked and rolled around trying to get on his feet. After several minutes he struggled up.

IMPRISONED IN BARREL

"Capt. Courson brought the blacksmith and told him to nail on the boards and straps to keep Jersey's head in the hole.

"He wandered around in the rain until after dinner, when I heard the boys hollering:

"'Jersey's gone!'

"I jumped up and saw Courson getting the bloodhounds ready. They came back in about an hour with Jersey sitting on the rear of a truck. He got off and gave way in the knees, but got up again.

"Courson came up and asked if anybody hit Jersey.

"Higginbotham said, 'No, they wouldn't let us.'

"He meant the civilian truck drivers who were with them.

"Higginbotham then said: 'I'd rather kill him than eat. What do you think that yellow dog did, Captain (Courson)?

"'He asked a free man to come back with us so we wouldn't beat him.'"

State's Attorney Durrance then asked that the wooden stocks in which Maillefert's feet and legs, according to Roberts' testimony, were nailed in the "sweatbox," be placed in evidence.

STOCKS DISPLAYED

The stocks, a heavy boot-like contrivance constructed of wood, were brought into the courtroom.

Roberts described how the prison carpenter built them onto Maillefert's feet. Durrance placed Roberts' feet and legs in the stocks to demonstrate, he said, the manner in which they were used on Maillefert. The convict said:

"Jersey wore them until they were sawed off him after he was hanged.

"After they nailed the stocks on, I seen two rtustees lift him into the sweatbox."

"They put a trace chain around his neck and pulled it over a rafter. Then Higginbotham took a padlock and locked the chain around Jersey's neck."

At this juncture Durrance had the heavy, seven-foot chain brought into court and entered as evidence with the other alleged punishment instruments. The witness identified it as the chain which the state contends fatally strangled Maillefert.

ACCUSES GUARD

Roberts then resumed his testimony.

"I heard Mr. Higginbotham say:

"'That d— chain ain't tight enough.'

"He went into the 'sweatbox' and then came out and locked the door.

"About 20 minutes later Courson opened the door and told us prisoners to look at Jersey.

"I spoke to him, but he just looked at me and never answered. One of the prisoners, Snappy Chandler, asked Capt. Courson how long he was going to keep Jersey that way."

Roberts said Courson replied:

"Until Christmas, if he ain't dead before then."

"Snappy said: 'Well, it won't be long,' and walked away."

The Captain then told Jersey:

"If I hear any noise from you tonight I'm coming down and chain your hands."

FIND BOY DEAD

"After supper, Snider, a prisoner, called Capt. Courson to the fence and asked him to take thee hain off Jersey.

"The captain sent a trusty to unlock the door. He took off the padlock and bar and then hollered:

"'Captain, it's done, done. Come quick!'

"The captain ordered us to come to the 'sweatbox' and take Jersey down.

"He was slumped down in the chain, his head hanging sideways, his knees drooping, his lips were purple.

"We took him down and worked his arms for about half an hour until Dr. Tyler came and said he was dead of strangulation.

"They sawed the stocks off and they disappeared right away."

FOIL WOMEN'S PLOT TO BOMB PRISON

Two Held in Attempt To Free Convict Brothers

By PAUL WEBER
International News Service.

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—An amazing plot by two young women to dynamite a cell block at Jackson State Prison and free their convict brothers, had been frustrated today, according to Detroit police and prison officials.

The girls held were Mrs. Agnes Schoonmaker, 27, a sister of James Hall, 28-year-old bank robber; and Miss Mary Cross, 28, sister of Eddie Cross, 29, a bandit sentenced from Pontiac.

One guard, Arthur French, was already accused of a part in the plot today and two more were under suspicion. French, together with the two convicts, and Charles Alex, 32, Dearborn rooming house proprietor, were held here for questioning.

It was in the building owned by Alex that Dearborn police yesterday stumbled upon a cache of dynamite, guns and ammunition in the room occupied by the two attractive girls.

Blonde Mary Cross, according to Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, admitted the conspiracy.

But the red-headed Mrs. Schoonmaker would admit nothing but an abiding bitterness toward her "squealing" friend. She said:

"Never trust a blonde! I'll never rat."

Police quoted Miss Cross as confessing that the girls planned to smuggle the dynamite and the guns into Cross' cell at the "old prison" in the heart of the city of Jackson. Then they were to wait outside the prison in a car, she said, to pick up Cross and Hall after they had blasted their way to freedom.

Prison officials said the plot, if carried out, would have wrecked one walk of the cell block and liberated probably 150 prisoners. There would have been danger, according to Warden Harry Jackson, of liberating the entire 1,500 men in the old prison.

Natrona Man Quizzed Following 2 Fires

Stanley Yarosz, of Natrona, was being questioned by Harrison Township police following a fire in his home in West Natrona early today, the second in five days.

Following a fire last Saturday, Yarosz, his wife and eight children took quarters elsewhere. At 3:30 a. m. today fire was discovered. Damage amounted to $5,000. It broke out anew a few hours later and was quickly extinguished.

INSULL FIGHTS EXTRADITION

at this announcement. He continued:

"You have frequently been quoted as saying you were ready to come back to Chicago at any time to help straighten out the Insull utility matters. We have a plane waiting. Aren't you ready to come?"

"Nope."

Then Hampton announced:

"I propose to ask for a fugitive warrant for you today. If it is issued you will be kept in jail until extradition proceedings are completed."

Insull declined to reverse his decision. He closed the dramatic interview with these words:

"I will not return."

Samuel Insull, Son Vanish in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—The whereabouts of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, remained a mystery today.

At 1:30 p. m. today Insull had been "missing" for 28 hours.

His wife steadfastly and tearfully denied any knowledge of his whereabouts.

The room occupied by his son, who was supposed to have left the hotel with him at 9:30 a. m. yesterday, was rented this morning to another lodger, reducing the Insull suite to one bedroom and a drawing room.

A checkup of the leading hotels in Paris failed to reveal Insull's presence in any of them. Steamship sailing lists gave no indication of his departure from the country.

HOOVER URGED TO CAMPAIGN ON STUMP

President Elated at His Reception in Middle West

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—President Hoover returned to the White House today from a three day trip to the farm belt with some of his friends urging him to make an extended cross-country swing in his campaign for re-election.

Several of the chief executive's advisers on the train which brought him back from Des Moines urged him to undertake a speaking tour, after the chief executive had expressed himself as "heartened" and "encouraged" by the reception accorded him in the Middle West.

On their walk down the train shed this morning, President and Mrs. Hoover stopped to wave goodbye to their train engineer and posed for photographs standing beside his engine.

TRIPS SCHEDULED

Two further campaign trips already have been tentatively scheduled for the President. He was expected to decide within a few days whether to make more extended campaign plans.

Not only his close friends, but some of those along the route home urged the President to make more speeches.

At the final stop last night in Johnstown, Pa., a man in the crowd shouted:

"We heard you last night at Des Moines. Give us three more like that and it'll all be over."

The President asked:

"Do you want any more?"

A chorus of voices replied:

"Yes."

With the train pulling out the President did not commit himself.

Some of those who are urging the President to make a transcontinental tour are suggesting that he swing through the West to California in time to vote there election day, as he did four years ago.

Others are suggesting that he make another trip through the Middle West.

Hoover Greeted Here By County Leaders

Returning to Washington over the Pennsylvania Railroad, President Hoover was met in Sewickley last night by a crowd of some 200 and by leading Allegheny County politicians.

Led by County Republican Chairman W. H. Coleman, the political delegation—lacking only former County Chairman W. L. Mellon, who was detained by a previous engagement—promised the President a large majority from Allegheny County.

The special train, one and three-quarters hours late, stopped for five minutes in North Side Station, where he told an immense cheering crowd:

"Thank you for this fine turnout. Your presence here is all the speaking that's required tonight."

MRS. HOOVER SMILES

The President was introduced by Coleman to the throng, which had patiently huddled from the bleak drizzling rain during its long wait. Mrs. Hoover stepped forward with a broad smile and called a cheery greeting to the spectators as a drum and bugle corps and a brass band, hurriedly mustered for the occasion, struck up a martial air and the special pulled away from the station.

Among the group that left the train in North Side Station following the trip from Sewickley were State Senator Frank J. Harris, Register of Wills Joseph Mackrell, Clerk of Courts S. J. Copley; Senator H. P. Brant, Republican Leader John A. Fugassi, Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh, Councilman W. Y. English and Mrs. Laura Hinnau, vice chairman of the County Committee.

Hoover told his guests:

"I am very much pleased at the reception accorded to me on this trip. Possibly 100,000 to 125,000 persons turned out to greet me—more than in 1928."

The President, looking a bit wan and tired, stressed to his visitors his fine physical condition.

SPEAKS IN GREENSBURG

In Greensburg, again, he greeted a crowd of nearly 1,000 with a few words spoken from the back platform amidst rousing cheers.

The train, carrying seven cars, swarmed with special Pennsylvania Railroad police and detectives, secret service men, railroad passenger and publicity representatives. Every screen was thrown up to prevent mishap.

Secretaries to Hoover barred the door to the presidential car—no interviews, no photographs were permitted.

Grieving Prince 'Mike' Arrives in Paris

By WILLIAM HILLMAN
Universal Service.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Ten-year-old Crown Prince Michael, of Rumania, closely guarded by Col. Gregorescu, personal aide-de-camp to King Carol, the lad's father, arrived in Paris last night, his visit with his mother, Princess Helene, in London abruptly ended.

At Calais, arriving aboard the channel steamer Isle of Thanet after a pitiful farewell with Princess Helene at the Dover leave-taking, young, pale-faced and disconsolate, Michael said to me:

"I am sorry to leave England. I had such a fine time. Isn't it strange how much one can play in London?"

Michael had hardly began talking before Col. Gregorescu came running up, shouting in French:

"What do you think a 10-year-old boy can say? What do you expect a child like him to understand by your questions?"

Then Michael's guardian flew into a rage at photographers including a pretty young woman who had stolen up in an attempt to snap Michael.

Bride Under Age, Piet Strikes License Snag

Tony Piet, Pirate second baseman, was refused a license to marry pretty Jannina Samoraj today.

It sounds serious—but it was only a technicality. Tony had forgotten to bring along Ma and Pa Samoraj, or their written consent. And License Clerk Vincent Scarana told the ballplayer since Jannina, radio singer, was only 20, her parents' permission was necessary.

Tony, 24, grabbed his bride by the arm and half an hour later appeared with Mrs. Valeria Samoraj, mother of his intended, and signed his name.

Clerk Scarana asked:

"Three dollars, please?"

Tony gave it and commented:

"They usually pay me for signing."

Tony got his license under his real name, Anthony Francis Pietruszka, of 820 Progress street. The wedding will be next Wednesday in St. Cyprian's Church, North Side.

His bride-to-be is well known on the radio, studied voice in the Pittsburgh and Chicago musical institutes, and is "crazy" about making ginger cookies, which Tony likes.

ROCK SLIDE PERILS MOTORISTS ON BIGELOW BOULEVARD

TONS OF DEBRIS CRASH ON ROADWAY

First Snow Falls in Mountains, Drop In Mercury Due

Motorists were imperilled and east bound traffic on Bigelow boulevard was slowed early today when three tons of rock and debris toppled down the hillside overlooking the thoroughfare east of the Seventeenth street incline.

One boulder, between eight and ten feet in length and weighing approximately two tons, defied removal by employes of the Highways and Sewers Department for several hours.

An unidentified motorist, east bound, narrowly escaped being caught in the debris, according to Motorcycle Patrolman Joseph Voegler, who directed traffic to the westbound channel until daybreak.

The heavy rainfall, the first in more than a month, that caused the rock slide, is believed to be over. Tonight, it is expected, the mercury will dip to 38, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said, but tomorrow the temperature will rise.

The first snow of the season was was reported today in Cambria and Somerset counties, where the mercury dropped from 48 yesterday to 32 this morning. The snow came after more than an inch of rain, which restored springs and wells, long dry.

FIRE DESTROYS KANE HOSPITAL

KANE, Pa., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Fire of undetermined origin razed the main building of the Kane Sanitarium built by Elisha Kent Kane, III, former Tennessee University professor, here today. Damage was estimated between $35,000 and $50,000.

Valuable art treasures and first edition books, including the original Grinnell Arctic expedition paintings of Elisha Kent Kane, noted Nineteenth Century explorer, were carried to the south wing of the sanitarium and saved.

Manuscripts of Elisha Kent Kane, III, who was acquitted last year of murder charges in connection with the drowning of his wife, also were saved.

Kane built the sanitarium from the family mansion which he inherited from his father, Dr. Evan O'Neil Kane, noted surgeon who twice successfully operated on himself during his lifetime, upon the latter's death early this year.

Rain Believed Near To Halt Woods Fires

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Great clouds rolling in from the sea to mingle with a fog-thick cover of smoke, bore promise today of the rain that would end the unprecedented series of forest fires visiting destruction upon Western Oregon and Southwestern Washington.

Hundreds of fire fighters stayed doggedly at their posts, ranging intermittently from the California line to the Columbia River and over into Washington.

Landslide Blocks Mauch Chunk Road

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—A landslide, several hundred feet long, covered the new Mansion House road connecting Lehighton and Mauch Chunk, early today.

LILYAN RALLIES AFTER KNIFE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Universal.)—Lilyan Tashman, known as the "best-dressed woman in Hollywood," underwent an emergency operation for acute appendicitis yesterday at Harbor Sanitarium, where she was rushed from her suite at the Waldorf Astoria.

Today the stage and screen star was reported resting comfortably, her condition satisfactory.

Immediately after emerging from the operating room physicians were alarmed when they noted that she was having difficulty in breathing and oxygen tanks were rushed to her room.

Just before leaving for the hospital Miss Tashman telephoned her husband, Edmund Lowe, who left New York for Hollywood last week to start work on a new picture.

Since physicians had announced that it would be impossible to delay the operation until Mr. Lowe's arrival, Miss Tashman asked her husband to remain in Hollywood.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—Naval Ensign George O. Augustine, who married a second time six years ago after hearing his first wife was dead, sought a divorce today for the third time from wife No. 1, Marie Augustine, a Washington nurse.

Two decrees previously granted Augustine, after he learned the wife whim he married in 1913 and parted from in 1921 was still alive, were set aside on technicalities. The Washington nurse is contesting the pending action.

A low pressure area has developed over the northern plains, but the skies are practically clear over that section this morning. Temperatures are rising over the plains states.

SONS 'EXHIBITS' AT DEATH TRIAL

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—After placing Alex Wysocki's two young sons on the witness stand as "exhibits," the state today closed its case against the wealthy butcher and Ira Sams, 23, accused of murdering Wysocki's wife, Mary.

The boys, Edmund, 13, and Alex, Jr., 15, were asked only routine questions to establish their identity. The prosecutor asked them nothing about the tragic death of their mother.

Wysocki, the state contends in a case carefully buttressed with circumstantial evidence, hired Sams to slay Mrs. Wysocki for $500. The motive, according to the state's case, was the wealthy butcher's love for Miss Florence Marsh, 20, secretary in his big meat store.

Wysocki's defiance—maintained through months of grilling since his wife was slain, apparently by a holdup man last May—cracked under the strain of his sons' appearance on the stand.

URGE RELIGIONS UNITE IN WAR ON UNBELIEF

Mission Probe Sees Common Cause for Christians, Asians

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Protestant foreign missions today were urged henceforth not to attack the religions of the East, but to make joint cause with them on the "common ground of all religion," against the non-religious philosophies of Marx, Lenin and Bertrand Russell.

Such is the purport of the second installment of the report of the Appraisal Commission sent to the Far East to study, among other problems, the question.

"What should be the attitude of Christian missions toward the religions of the East?"

UNITY URGED IN FIGHT

The excerpt was made public by Albert L. Scott, chairman of the Laymen's Foreign Mission Inquiry, sponsored by seven Protestant denominations. The report says:

"It is no longer which prophet or which book. It is whether any prophet, book, revelation, rite, church is to be trusted.

"The case that must now be stated is the case for any religion at all. Thus it is that Christianity finds itself in point of fact aligned in this world-wide issue with the non-Christian faiths of Asia."

MISSIONS WARNED

The report recommends that every missionary first acquaint himself with the religions about him and then associate himself with whatever elements they may have in common with Christianity, and adds:

"It is clearly NOT the duty of the Christian missionary to attack the non-Christian systems of religion. It is his primary duty to represent his conception of the true way of life and let it speak for itself."

The report, with its forthright proclamation that Christianity must unite with Islam and Hinduism in fighting the spread of irreligion is interpreted as a suggestion that for the time at least the traditional effort to convert the heathen must be abated while Christian and non-Christian alike battle for the preservation of religion itself.

REPORT REVOLUTIONARY

Frankly revolutionary, the report is regarded as likely to have a deep effect on the Protestant churches.

The installment says in part:

"At the beginning of our century of Protestant missions, Christianity found itself addressing men attached to other religions; its argument was with those religions. At present it confronts a growing number of persons, especially among the thoughtful, critical of or hostile to all religion.

"Its further argument, we judge, is to be less with Islam or Hinduism or Buddhism than with materialism, secularism, naturalism. The growth of this third factor, non-religion, alters the relation of the other two; Christianity and the environing religions face at the same moment the same menace, the spread of the secular spirit; the former opponents have become to this extent allied by the common task.

"What becomes of the issues between the merits of one sacred text and another when the sacredness of all texts is being denied? Why compare Mohammed and Buddha, when all the utterances of religious intitution are threatened with discard in the light of practical reason?"

Jails Her Ex-Hubby

MISS LILLIAN WALKER . . DO YOU REMEMBER HER DIMPLES?

Miss Walker, dimpled film star of the old, silent Vitagraph days, who today in New York has her ex-husband, Charles E. Hanson, realtor, in jail for non-payment of alimony.

LILLIAN WALKER JAILS EX-MATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(Universal.)—Lillian Walker, famous for her dimples as a screen star in the old, silent days of Vitagraph films, has jailed her ex-husband, Charles E. Hanson, real estate dealer, for non-payment of alimony, it was revealed today.

Miss Walker obtained a writ of commitment from Supreme Court Justice Aaron B. Levy, before whom she testified Hanson was $1,000 in arrears in his $250-a-month alimony.

Back in 1910, Miss Walker, then getting $75 a week as an actress, and Hanson, a clerk, were married. The union was kept a secret for 19 years, until July, 1929, when she filed suit for maintenance and was awarded $250 a month.

Later, in September, 1931, she filed suit for divorce in Supreme Court, and the action was not contested. The alimony was continued.

Miss Walker asserted she has been compelled to earn a living by operating a dairy farm near Saratoga, N. Y.

Kelland Fights Suit For $3,313, Blames Apparel Shop

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Clarence Budington Kelland, answering a $3,313 suit brought against him for clothing sold to his wife, said in Supreme Court yesterday he intended to fight the suit, declaring:

"These people ought to be discouraged from piling up bills on women who do not realize, while they have no cash to pay for it, that they are getting themselves into deep obligations."

Justice Hatting denied an application by the plaintiff, Hattie Carnegie, Inc., for a summary judgment.

Mrs. Kelland's purchases were made between February 7, 1931, and February 27, 1932. In denying liability the author said that during that period he furnished his wife with more than $7,000 which "was sufficient for her necessities" and that she did not need the articles purchased. He declared:

"I allege that my financial condition at no time would justify hose at $6.50 a pair, cloth coat at $420, dresses at $225 and $250, and perfumery at $25 or $15 as necessaries for my wife."

In a supporting affidavit Mrs. Kelland said she bought the apparel entirely on her own credit and "told the plaintiff I was to be billed and not my husband." She said:

"I thought at the time I bought the merchandise I was able to pay for it, but events have altered conditions with the result that I have been able to pay only $95 on account."

COUNTY RAIDERS INVADE BARS

Carl Borio, 517 State street, Wilmerding, was the first to be arrested. He was held for court by Justice of the Peace J. P. Wilkinson charged with violating the Snyder act.

In a raid on an alleged lottery headquarters at 351 East Eighth avenue, Homestead, county detectives reported arresting Vincent Yurko on a charge of conducting a lottery.

At 421 Third avenue, Homestead, the sleuths arrested Charles Davis, who was held for court on a liquor charge by Alderman J. B. Jones.

Curtis Pushes Appeal In Lindbergh Case

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) boatbuilder, whose fantastic stories in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case led to his conviction and sentence of a year in prison, today prepared through counsel to submit briefs in Supreme Court in connection with his appeal from the sentence.

Chief Justice William S. Gummere granted him a continuance in the case when his lawyer asserted that due to lack of funds difficulties were encountered in prosecuting the appeal.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM AN EARLY TEACHER

HOOVER SEEMS SURE TO WIN IN MAINE

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Maine certainly belongs to President Hoover. The closest calculation gives him the state by a minimum of 20,000 votes.

It may go above 60,000. He carried Maine in 1928 by more than 98,000.

About the best the Democrats can hope to do in November is to add a few thousand to the 119,000 polled in the September state election when Brann, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, won over his Republican opponent by less than 1,500 majority.

Returns from Maine in the nationwide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in cooperation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States, show Hoover receiving 63 per cent of the poll ballots. On this basis he would carry the state by 67,000.

In only three instances do the poll ballots indicate Roosevelt running stronger than Brann did in September. In Aroostook, Cumberland and Hancock counties he shows some increased strength. In all other counties, however, the poll replies do not indicate as large a vote for him as Brann received.

Assuming that Roosevelt should get the full Democratic vote that went to Brann and the additional vote indicated in the three counties mentioned, he would still muster only around 120,000, leaving Hoover 140,000 of the 260,000 that the state voted four years ago.

The 498 new ballots tabulated today divided exactly 63 per cent for Hoover and 37 for Roosevelt.

STATE SEEKS NEW R.F.C. AID

HARRISBURG, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The State Emergency Relief Board today had directed Gov. Pinchot to re-apply to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a federal loan for relief purposes for last month, despite the loan of $3,342,183 for October.

The R. F. C. on Tuesday announced the $3,000,000 loan to 64 of the state's 67 counties for October, having previously loaned $2,500,000 for Northampton, Allegheny and Philadelphia counties for September and October, or $1,250,000 for each month.

The state board's action yesterday was in the form of adoption of a resolution which will be sent to the R. F. C. The resolution states that Gov. Pinchot applied for the loan for September as early as July 18, re-applied formally on August 19, and complied with all terms of the act of Congress prior to September 1.

THEFT OF BODY FOILED

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—An attempt by four men early today to take a woman's body from the morgue of the Queensboro Hospital for Contagious Diseases mystified police.

The watchman, James Schaeffer, said the men told him they had come for a body. When he told them they had to have a permit, he said, one of them slugged him.

He recovered in time to frighten them away as they were removing the body of Frieda Rice, who died yesterday from natural causes.

Fleischmann Asks Wet Aid for Hoover

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Julius Fleischmann, local Republican leader, called on liberals of the nation to vote for re-election of President Hoover and "back him up with wet Senators and wet Congressmen," in a statement issued through the Republican campaign committee here today.

He described the plan of President Hoover to solve the prohibition question is "obviously the only clear-thinking solution thus far offered," and that of the Democratic party as merely a "vote-catching hoax."

Gandhi, Moslems Near Vote Accord

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Hindu Nationalist followers of Mahatma Gandhi and Moslem leaders were nearer agreement today on details of the new plan for communal elections after Hindus had accepted all but one of 14 points formulated by the Moslems.

The outstanding issue was Moslem unwillingness to accept unconditional joint electorates, but there was a general feeling that an acceptable formula will be found.

Presidential Trend by States

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. PINCHOT URGES MERCY FOR 3

Gov. Pinchot today recommended commutation of sentence for three prisoners in the Western Penitentiary, which permits their release on parole, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg.

They are Earl S. Cain, Allegheny County, serving a sentence of from two to 10 years for embezzlement and forgery; James Coward, Westmoreland County, seven to 14 years, robbery, and Clarence Heitzenrater, Indiana County, three to six years, breaking and entering.

The Pardon Board continued the application of George Henderson, Cambria County, sentenced to be hanged in 1913 and whose sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment for the murder of Elaine Davis, in Johnstown.

The board has twice refused his plea for parole.

Hoover Sympathizes In Jap Air Tragedy

TOKIO, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The American embassy conveyed to the Foreign Office today a message of sympathy from President Hoover to Emperor Hirohito over the three Japanese good-will fliers who have not been heard from since they took off for the United States.

One More Chance To Register for Election

Residents of cities in Allegheny County who have been assessed, still have one chance to qualify in order to vote at the November election.

Saturday will be the third and last registration day in the cities. This is also the last day to pay poll taxes. Only those regularly assessed can pay taxes.

September 7 was the last day to be assessed.

Boy Killed in Fall Amid Church Class

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—A 12-year-old boy was killed yesterday when he crashed through the skylight of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Brooklyn, and fell 30 feet into the nave, where a catechism class of 140 boys was in session.

The boy, who had been trying to retrieve a baseball which had been batted onto the roof of the church, was Salvatore Cordes, of Brooklyn.

P.S.C. JOB GIVEN GOODNOUGH

utilities an absolutely square deal."

He is the fifth member of the commission to be appointed by Pinchot during the present administration.

Decision of the Governor to name Goodnough to the commission came as a surprise. It had been predicted that the place would go to Dr. Charles E. Reitell, of the University of Pittsburgh, recently director of the Greater Pennsylvania Commission.

Goodnough, a manufacturer, with his residence in Emporium, Cameron County, has been a member of the Legislature since 1914. He was Speaker in the 1923 and 1931 sessions, as well as the two special sessions called in 1931 and 1932 to deal with unemployment.

He has been identified with the Grundy wing of Republican politics in the state.

MANAGED CAMPAIGN

In 1926 he managed the primary campaign for Gov. Pinchot, who sought the senatorial nomination in a three-cornered fight with George W. Pepper and William S. Vare. It was during that campaign that Mayor Charles H. Kline made his famous bread and butter speech, and Goodnough threatened to institute impeachment proceedings against him in the Legislature for attempting to coerce civil service employes.

When the Legislature met, and independent Republicans of Allegheny County did not furnish evidence on which to proceed, Goodnough dropped the matter.

Goodnough is the only member of the commission named by Pinchot who has a chance of confirmation by the Senate. There is a general agreement within the organization not to confirm any of the Pinchot selections, but Goodnough, in view of his position as Speaker, may break through this barrier.

REBUFFS M'GOVERN

The commission now consists of Dr. Clyde King, chairman; Frederick P. Gruenberg and George W. Woodruff, of Philadelphia; P. Stephen Stahlnecker, of Hamburg, and Goodnough, all Pinchot appointees; and Ray Shelby, of Fayette County, and Samuel Walker, of Butler, holdovers from the Fisher administration.

Goodnough will not take office until December 1, when his term as member of the House expires.

Appointment of Goodnough rebuffs the efforts of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern to have an Allegheny countian appointed to the commission. McGovern had urged upon the Governor the appointment of Attorney Clyde Grubbs.

U. S. Concert Singer Weds African Prince

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Roberta Dodd-Crawford, Negro concert singer, of Chicago, was married today in a civil ceremony to Prince Kojo Touvalou Houenou, heir apparent to the vacant throne of Dahomey in French West Africa.

They will go to Africa for the religious service with traditional rites of the former Dahomey royalty. The bridegroom is a nephew of the dethroned King Behanzin.

Aged Cleric, Beaten, Remains Unconscious

The Rev. Isaiah Hawn, 77-year-old retired minister, thought to have been beaten in a gangland reprisal for his testimony in East End Police Court against two alleged bandit suspects, continued in an unconscious condition in West Penn Hospital.

Suffering from a fractured skull, Mr. Hawn is said to be in critical condition. He was found on the steps of the Friendship Avenue School Monday night.

Patrolman Tells Of Fatal Shooting

Patrolman William Hingley was released on his own recognizance today after he had told Coroner W. J. McGregor of shooting Peter Voros, 46, of Colwell street, who died yesterday in Passavant Hospital. Hingley said Voros fired at him first, after snatching a woman's purse in State alley.

ETHER OUTLAW PERILS BOYS

CHELSEA, Mass., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—A tall, slim, dark-clothed man, whom an awakened 9-year-old boy early today saw bending over his bed with a bottle that apparently contained ether, was the object of intensive search today as authorities investigated two attempts to drug sleeping children here within an hour.

The boy, Philip Fixman, 9, cried out, causing the man to flee, he said, and at the same time awakening his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fixman, who were sleeping in a nearby room.

The Fixmans called police, who said the fumes were those of ether.

Later Arthur Gibbs and his wife told police they had been awakened by the smell of ether coming from the room in which their two sons, Bertram, 7, and Richard, 16 months, were sleeping. Both children were ill from the effects of the fumes.

Neither family could advance a possible motive for the attempts, and police said there were no apparent clues.

BOLT RIPS GIRL'S SHOES

HARRISBURG, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Urelina Marshall, 13, of Edgemont, forgot parental teachings last night and went to bed with her shoes on. The lapse was probably due to fright caused by flashing lightning and rumbling thunder.

Suddenly her shoes were ripped off and she jumped, screaming, from the bed. A bolt of lightning, which burned her feet severely, had cut the laces and torn her shoes from her feet.

Treated for burns of the feet and legs at a local hospital today, she said:

Home Bank Looted, 1,695 Pennies Taken

Chicago Teachers To Get Part Pay

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—School teachers, city and county employes today looked forward to two weeks' pay as banks agreed to purchase approximately $4,800,000 worth of tax warrants.

Journalists Give Geneva Dice to Settle Rows

GENEVA, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—The League of Nations had a nice, new shiny pair of dice today, but the delegates didn't know quite what to do with them.

Finally it was decided to hide them away in the League Museum.

The dice were the gift of the International Association of Journalists, which wanted to aid the League in solving its weightier problems.

U. S. MARRIAGE 'FAILING'

HAMILTON, Ontario, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The General Council of the United Church of Canada today had placed the church on record as discouraging the remarriage of divorced persons, after a councilman had declared that the institution of marriage was "in serious disintegration" in the United States.

The speaker was Prof. W. A. Gifford, chairman of the committee which dealt with divorce, and he said:

"We have 1,300 miles of border line, across which marriage is in serious disintegration."

This view was seconded by Ernest C. Drury, former premier of Ontario, who declared Canada must stress the sanctity of marriage.

After these two addresses the council struck out a portion of its report on "the meaning and responsibilities of Christian marriage" which would have denoted a certain leniency toward the remarriage of divorced persons.

LAKE TRAGEDY BRINGS CAUTION

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Alarmed by the fate of the John J. Boland, Jr., skippers were cautious on Lake Erie today, guarding against the lashing waves that sent the Canadian freighter to the bottom "in less than four minutes."

As navigation authorities started an investigation of the sinking, shipping men held little hope for the three men and one woman, reported to have been trapped beneath the hatches as the boat went down in Lake Erie yesterday.

Fifteen men rode logs and lifeboats through the tossing waves, landing safely near Dunkirk, N. Y., and 11 others battled their way to a point near Westfield, N. Y.

The woman reported lost is the second cook, a Miss MacIntyre, of Welland, Ont. Two oilers, S. Brooks, of Windsor, Ont., and Harry Jobes, of St. Catherines, Ont., and a fireman whose name was not obtained, are also believed drowned.

CHINA GRIPPED BY CIVIL WAR

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—China's second current civil war, in addition to the sporadic anti-Communist campaign, was in full blast today as the war lords of the great western province of Szechuan, near Tibet, pressed hostilities against the forces of the provincial governor, Lui Wen-Hui.

The rebels are striving to capture Chengtu, capital of the province.

HANKOW, China, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—A band of 10,000 Communists today controlled Sinchow, an important trading center near here, according to Chinese officials.

Government airplanes bombed the town in an effort to drive out the Communists.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—The new endwise coils of the three-cent stamp containing the Stuart portrait of Washington will first be placed on sale for the benefit of stamp and first-day cover collectors at the postoffice here and the philatelic agency on October 12. Collectors must arrange through private sources here if they desire these new coils.

DENIES WIDOW'S BALM CHARGE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Charles Newbold Welsh, of Chestnut Hill, denies that he ever acted toward Mrs. Estella W. Wolon, attractive 38-year-old widow, of Chicago, with a wanton disregard for her affections.

The wealthy and socially prominent Philadelphian made his denial in an affidavit of defense filed by his attorneys in Court of Common Pleas to the breach of promise action brought by Mrs. Wolon to recover $250,000 for the alleged damage done to her by Welsh, whom she alleged courted her with much ardor, promised to marry her and then jilted her, repudiating his promise to wed.

TELLS OF ATTACK AFTER PARTY

Found at Allegheny General Hospital today receiving treatment for a laceration, John George, 36, of 320 Cedar avenue, told North Side police, they say, that he had been slugged by an unidentified man at East Diamond street and Park Way.

George said he had spent the evening with John Miller, 48, of 421 Sandusky street. When they parted, George told police he was followed by Miller and the stranger to Park way, where he was struck by Miller's companion. Miller was armed, George said.

Police searched Miller's apartment and found a partly filled bottle of moonshine, several empty bottles and a loaded revolver. George and Miller were arrested on suspicious person charges.

NEW 'COXTOWN' IN SOUTHWEST PROPOSED

ELK CITY, Okla., Oct. 6.—A Coxtown in the West looms as one of the outcomes of Father James R. Cox's tour across the country, according to members of the Jobless party campaign caravan.

Father Cox disclosed plans for such a colony before he left his caravan in Amarillo, Tex., yesterday to fly to Pittsburgh, where he was scheduled to reach his home city early this evening.

The new Coxtown will be in New Mexico on government land, still available for reclamation. For $25.00, it was explained, Father Cox's followers each can get 160 acres of land, fertile and rich in minerals and oil.

"A western Coxtown will be established provided there is assurance that it will be a real settlement and not a wild venture," Father Cox was quoted as saying. The settlement would be patterned after Coxtown in Pittsburgh.

Members of the campaign caravan were to be here today with their next stopover for sleep in St. Louis. From there they will travel continuously until their home city is reached.

The part of Arabia controlled by King Abdul Aziz includes the holy cities of Islam, Medina, where Mahomet is buried, and Mecca, the birthplace of the prophet.

Robbers Return College Checks, Keep Cash

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Four holdup men who spent a few minutes robbing the Chicago Medical College gave the college $2,687 in tuition.

But it wasn't tuition for the holdup men. It was $2,687 in checks which students had given in payment for their courses. Not being able to cash the checks, the thieves returned them to the college by special delivery.

They kept $900 in cash, taken when they held the college up last Monday.

By MISS MINT

Those crackly dollar bills are certainly serving a variety of purposes. Everyone has a grand idea how to spend his. Have you got your Wrigley Dollar bill? Are you carrying the package of Wrigley's gum?

Did you ever stop to think what that dollar could bring about? Here we have RALPH MARINO, 637 South Fifth St., who was standing idly gazing at the passing traffic. I asked him to show me his package of Wrigley's, and then gave him the dollar. "Gee, now I can get my football shoes, and I'll be chewing Wrigley's when I'm on the field, too." Okay, Ralph, we'll be pulling for you and the team.

Duquesne was a busy place yesterday, and I found many, many Wrigley followers there; here are a few of them:

JOSEPH BUNDY, 517 Ferndale Ave.; MRS. CHAS. HREBENACH, 100 Camp Ave.; PETE SEMAN, 406 South Third St.; CHAS. BRUMBAUGH, 29 South Fifth St.; GEO. T. WEAVER, 608 High St., Versailles; MISS JULIA A. VIKOSKY, 158 Overland Ave.; JOSEPH SOFFER, 501 Priscilla Ave.; GEO. ANDREWS, 328 South First St.; ELSIE EYRING, 133 Grant Ave.; O. E. GLICK, 4336 Murray Ave.; GEO. VARGO, Jr., 14 W. Grant Ave.

Everyone should be waiting for me now—ready with a package of Wrigley's gum in pocket or purse. Give yourself a treat, a pack of Wrigley's, and the crackly, new dollar bill will be a real thrill.

U. S. COMPLETES STATE POWER FIRM PROBE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Federal Trade Commission today had concluded its probe into the financial operations of the Pennsylvania group of the Associated Gas and Electric System.

Testimony of two government examiners, disclosing methods by which the Pennsylvania group kept the profits of small operating companies moving up to the main holding companies of the system, wrote up investments millions of dollars above book values and squeezed out stockholders, will be incorporated in a Federal Trade Commission report to the Senate.

REPORT FOR SENATE

This report will be sent to the Senate at the conclusion of the commission's investigation into the financial affairs of the nation's major utilities. Its disclosures are expected to result in the imposition of severe restrictions on holding companies with interstate affiliations.

Evidence presented by the commission's examiners concerning the Pennsylvania group of the Associated system showed the parent company of that group, the Pennsylvania Electric Corporation, wrote up the value of its investments in 31 utility companies $15,000,000 above their book values.

These utility companies were spread throughout Pennsylvania and extended into Maryland and West Virginia. The writeups included one of $4,311,280 in the Northwestern Electric Service Corporation and another of $2,030 in the Erie Lighting Company.

STOCKHOLDERS LOSE

The testimony of Charles Nodder, one of the commission examiners, revealed both the common and participating preferred stockholders of the Clarion River Power Company, of Clarion, Pa., lost their entire holdings, which had a par value of more than $4,000,000, when that company was sold within the system under mortgage foreclosure proceedings last March.

The Clarion Company was controlled at the time by the Pennsylvania Electric Corporation, which held its demand notes for $8,000,000 and ordered the foreclosure when it failed to meet the principal of the notes upon demand. The company was sold to the Pennsylvania Electric Company, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Corporation, for $6,500,000, although it claimed assets of more than $11,000,000.

Nodder also testified that excessive service fees paid the Penn Electric Company by the Johnstown Fuel Supply Company was "largely the cause" of the deficit on the latter company's books from 1927 to 1929. He said these service fees were one of the methods by which profits of operating companies were kept moving up to holding companies.

Butcher Again Shows He'd Make Good on Force

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Walter Wallinski wants to swap his butcher's cleaver for a policeman's star. He gave his third demonstration last night.

Two weeks after he took his police examinations a year ago he captured two man just after they had committed a robbery. Later he chased two automobile thieves and recovered a stolen car. Last night he heard a police radio report of a car theft and pursued two youths for two miles in his own automobile, capturing one of them.

But he's still a butcher.

EVIDENCE IN BUS CASE GIVEN

The Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company today offered evidence to support their protest against the granting to the Brentwood Motor Coach Company the right to operate buses from Diamond and Ferry streets to Saw Mill Run boulevard and Brownsville road.

John F. Davis, Philadelphia Company statistician, testified before Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby that the railways company lost $528,583 last year and the deficit this year would be greater. The new company is opposed by the existing carriers on the ground of unfair competition and unnecessary service.

D. L. Feick, president of the Brentwood Coach Company, said the Brookline Civic Club had sent a petition bearing 1,260 names to the Public Service Commission urging that the company's petition be granted. The company proposed a 20-cent fare or five tokens for 75 cents.

Quebec Encourages Oxen for Farm Work

QUEBEC, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—A proposal to encourage a return to the use of oxen for farm draft purposes is now under advisement by the Department of Agriculture of Quebec Province.

The proposal was made in connection with colonization activities in the back-to-the-land movement of unemployed from the cities. A pair of oxen costs $35, less than the price of one horse.

RULING AWAITED ON DR. RENNE CANDIDACY

A decision by registration commissioners on the status of Dr. William A. Renne, candidate for Legislature from the Sixth District, was awaited today.

Dr. Renne's right to vote from his office, which he claims also as his voting residence, was challenged by a group of voters in the district.

Hearings have been held the last three days, witnesses testifying the challenge to his registration was prompted by political animus. Two witnesses yesterday testified to having delivered bedroom furniture to Dr. Renne's office about seven months ago.

Dr. Renne has been voting from the office address, 1902 Carson street, for several years. He maintains a residence at 18 Stewart street, Carrick. The registration commissioners directed that briefs be filed after yesterday's hearing.

Attorney G. M. McDonald, in his cross-examination, sought to show furniture in the office was delivered only two months ago.

The case may go to Common Pleas Court, as Dr. Renne has an appeal right if the commissioners rule that his name be stricken from the list. The group opposing him also can appeal should the commission rule the office a legitimate voting address.

CLEANUP NEAR IN SPRINGDALE

Knowledge he gained as a taxicab driver in the borough will guide Earl C. Shoop, the newly appointed burgess of Springdale when he starts cleaning up the town. Shoop says he is not a radical dry, but he intends to put the sellers and other racketeers out business.

He says a town the size of Springdale does not need speakeasies, and within six months the resorts will be closed.

Shoop is also a justice of the peace. He is married and lives at 103 Hartrey street.

SNOW BLANKET MARS FETE

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Two inches of snow covered the countryside as Elkins awoke today, causing postponement of the outdoor events in connection with West Virginia's third Mountain State Forest Carnival.

Indoor functions will proceed as planned, including the queen's ball and the princesses' ball, but the woodchopping contest, and the horseback ride by dashing Knights of the Hills, will be held on Saturday.

Friday's program, with its air circus and the pilgrimage of the queen—Miss Emily Maxwell, of Charleston—through the Monongahela National Forest, will be staged according to schedule.

The snow, the committee felt sure, would be gone by tomorrow, for the white blanket melted rapidly after the appearance of the sun.

Gov. and Mrs. William G. Conley arrived today, together with many state officials, including Judge Haymond Maxwell, of the State Supreme Court, and father of the queen.

Fire Destroys Boat, Oil Plant Periled

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The old side-wheeler excursion steamer Franklin, which plied the Delaware River for more than half a century as a pleasure craft, burned to the water's edge and sank today at its berth along the south wharves.

For a time flying sparks threatened the plants of the Mifflin Alcohol Company and the Sinclair Oil Company, near by, but a heavy rain began to fall.

COAL DEALERS FIGHT TAX; NEW HEARING SET

Opposition from four quarters had developed today to an ordinance proposed by the Pittsburgh Retail Coal Merchants' Association for a $100 annual city license tax on retail coal dealers.

Council has suggested that the opposed elements seek a compromise and bring their findings to a hearing scheduled at the City-County Building next Thursday afternoon.

Independent dealers who said they were representative of more than 2,500 in the city told Council's committee on hearings yesterday that the ordinance, if passed, would put them out of business and create a monopoly for a few large organizations.

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, and John O'Leary, international board member, opposed the license fee on the grounds that the industry should be regulated nationally, not locally.

Large consumers and independent operators also voiced opposition, charging a monopoly would be created for the Pittsburgh Coal Company and a few other members of the association.

Two File Federal Bankrupt Petitions

A voluntary bankruptcy petition was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Argyle Irwin Miller, of Center Township, Indiana County, who listed liabilities as $16,160 and assets as $4,500. Another filed by William E. Miller, of Milford Township, Somerset County, recorded liabilities as $5,918.70 and assets as $2,665.

PIONEERS IN PUBLIC SERVICE

ARREST WOMEN IN FIGHT

In the North Side Police Station early today two women pointed at each other and demanded:

"Arrest that woman!"

So the police arrested both.

But before Mrs. Irma Miller, 35, of 616 Sherman avenue, North Side, and her roomer, Mrs. Mary A. Kaiser, 30, could be locked up, they made a few public passes at each other.

It seems there had been an argument. Mrs. Miller had refused to eject another roomer who, Mrs. Kaiser argued, was drunk.

So off to the police station they hurried, one after the other, bearing their scratches with fine indignation.

Magistrate Ray Schneider discharged both when Mrs. Kaiser promised to move.

Squirrels Make Cache of Nuts In Auto

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—There were squeals in John Mannings' ancient automobile when he drove home from Rhinelander, Wis., so he took it to F. L. Larsen, who fixes cars for a living. Larsen put his hand in a hole in the top, but took it out suddenly, having been bitten by one of two squirrels found inside. They escaped.

Cached in the car Larsen eight pounds of nuts. Manning had left his car standing idle all summer.

THREE INJURED BY FALLS DIE

Injuries suffered in falls caused the deaths of an aged widow and two men last night, according to reports to the Coroner's office.

Mrs. Margaret G. Anglin, 86, a widow, of 102 Cleveland street, Avalon, died in her home after she tripped and plunged down the cellar steps.

Falling down stairs in the North Side Market House, P. F. McFarlane, 55, of 513 Fontella street, suffered a fractured skull. He died in Allegheny General Hospital.

His back fractured in a fall from a hayloft on his farm, July 6, James Rosenberger, 51, Kittanning, died in the same hospital.

PAIR ROB GAS STATION AGAIN

West End police today were searching for five Negroes, two of whom, for the second time in a week, held up the Gulf Refining Company filling station, 640 Noblestown road, late yesterday. While three companions remained in an expensive automobile, the other two entered the station and held up George Fritz, the attendant, and rifled the register of $11.

Last Wednesday Fritz was bound and gaged by the same Negro pair and robbed him of $32, police said.

SLAYER OF AUNT TO GET LIFE

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Convicted of first degree murder, George Douglas Templeton, Jr., a 20-year-old knife slayer of his aunt, Mrs. Lillian Babcock, faced a second trial here today—this time on his plea of not guilty by reason of insanity.

The same jury which returned the murder verdict at midnight, with a life imprisonment recommendation, was directed to return to court at 2 p. m. for the second phase of the proceedings.

In the event the defense plea is sustained, the youth will be sent to a state institution for the criminally insane instead of to San Quentin prison.

Templeton, who stabbed his aunt and seriously slashed his uncle, William Rider Babcock, as the couple lay in bed at Los Altos July 26, heard the murder verdict without apparent emotion.

SINGER, PRINCE DENY RIFT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Appearing together at a hotel, Mary McCormic, opera singer, and her husband, Prince Serge Mdivani, denied their reported separation. They declared there had been "no quarrels, no disagreements, nothing at all."

The report was persistent yesterday in Hollywood gossip that Miss McCormic had separated from the prince whom she married 17 months ago, and her attorney would not deny that a divorce was contemplated.

Prince Mdivani is a former husband of Pola Negri, film actress, and is a brother-in-law of Mae Murray, former film star whose husband is his brother, Prince David Mdivani.

Capt. Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, said the drive is continuing.

S. A. R. UPHOLDS PITT PLEDGE

The executive committee of the Pittsburgh chapters, Sons of the American Revolution, today upheld the University of Pittsburgh's law-upholding pledge. The committee commended the action of Chancellor Bowman and the university in requiring students to subscribe to support the Constitution of the United States, the laws of Pennsylvania and the regulations of the school.

The committee in a resolution said when students receive benefits from a state-endowed school they should either support such a pledge or enroll at another institution. They also stated the action of the Pitt authorities is in accord with the true spirit of American patriotism.

TWICE AS CRISP
extra nourishing—because
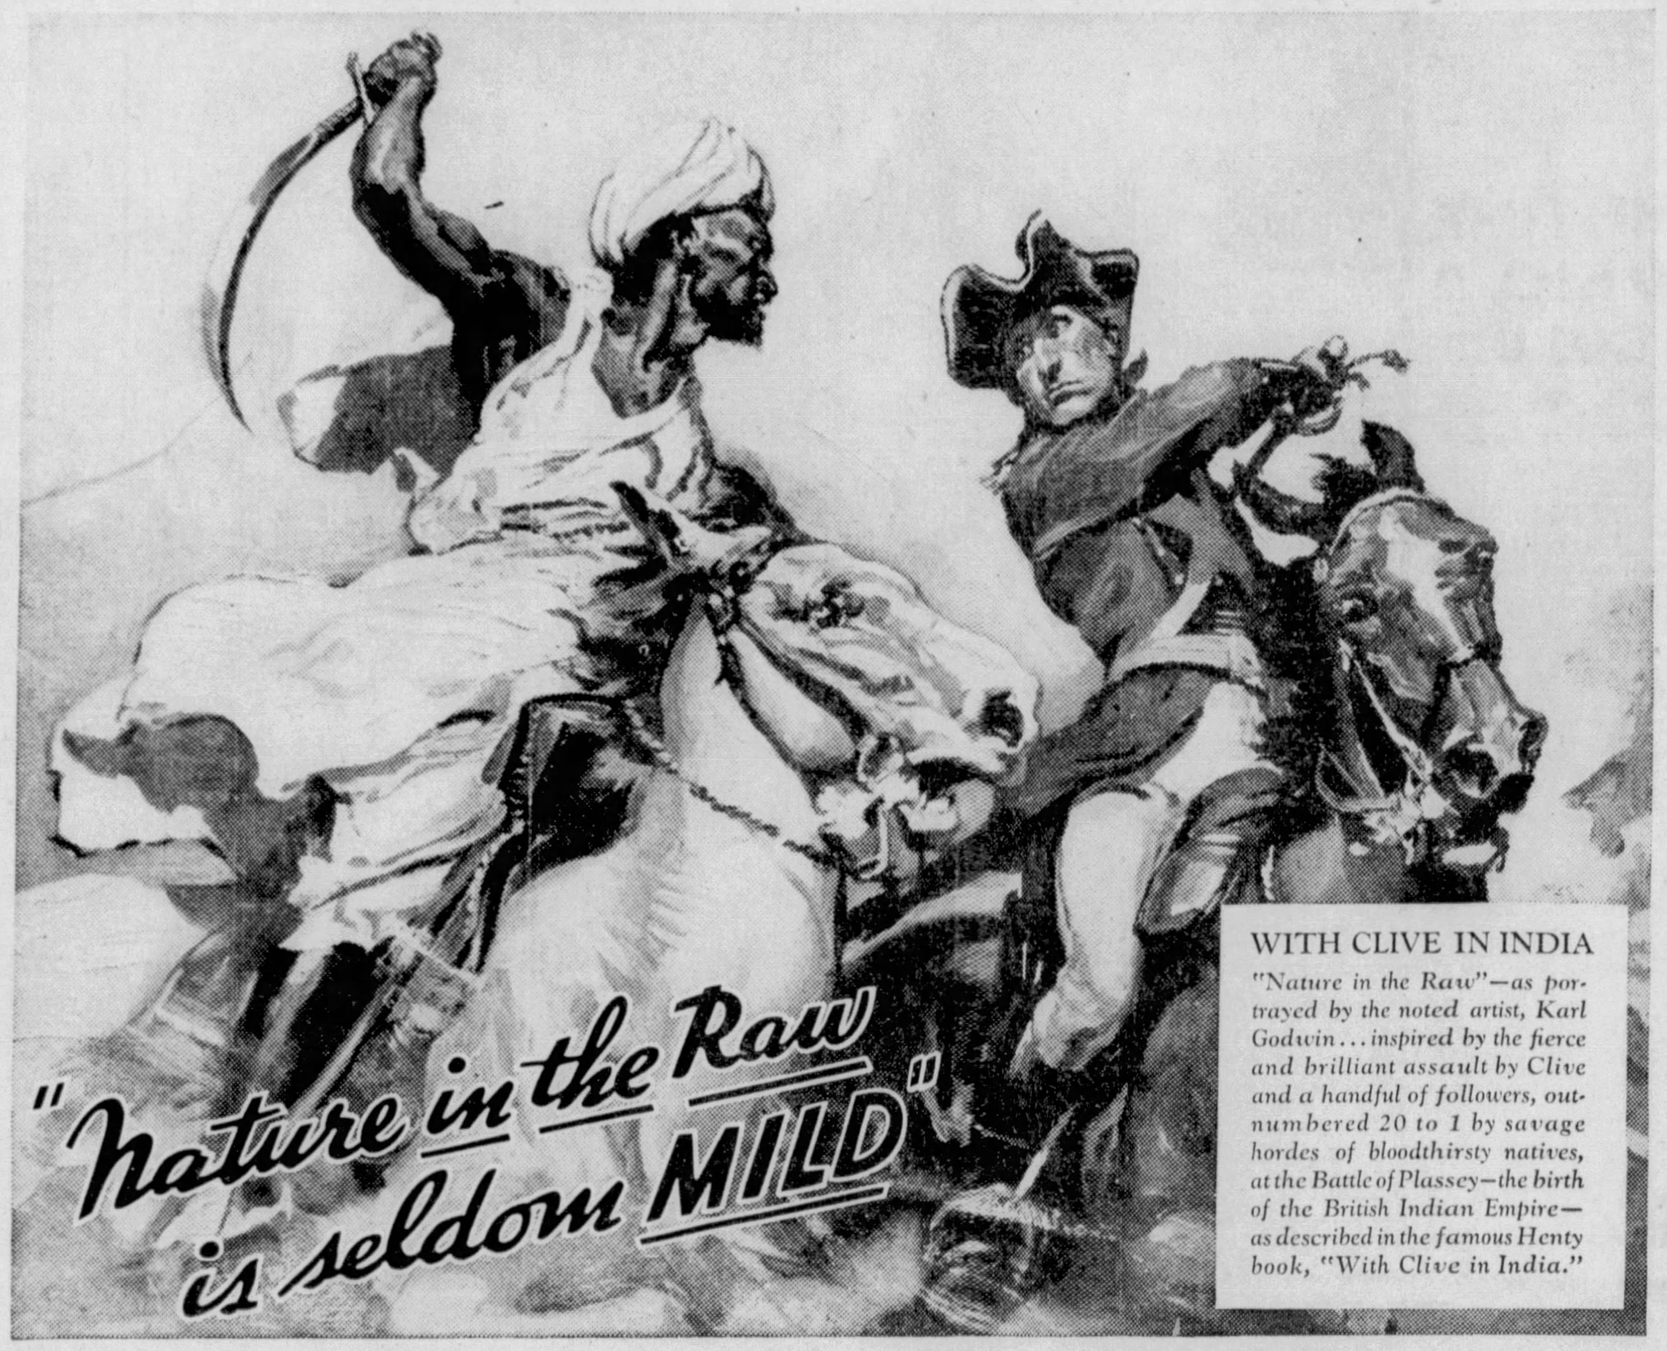
SHOT FROM GUNS
why no other cereal appeals like Puffed Wheat and Rice

Remarkable . . . that such dainty crisp grains can be so richly nourishing! Here's the reason. When grains of wheat and rice are shot from guns, every food cell is broken open. Its contents steam cooked. Made so completely digestible that a single dish of Puffed Wheat or Rice, with top milk and sugar, gives the energy value of a baked potato or a lamb chop!
And now Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice have been made twice as crisp as ever before. Twice as good. Get these extra crisp, extra nourishing grains from your grocer today.
Now "Twice-Crisped"!
Puffed Wheat-Puffed Rice



"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"
WITH CLIVE IN INDIA
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the noted artist, Karl Godwin... inspired by the fierce and brilliant assault by Clive and a handful of followers, outnumbered 20 to 1 by savage hordes of bloodthirsty natives, at the Battle of Plassey—the birth of the British Indian Empire—as described in the famous Henty book, "With Clive in India."
—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked
WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.
"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies
"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

AIRPORT FARE APPEAL HEARD

The complaint of Andy Garavini, taxicab operator, that the Yellow Cab Company and the Pittsburgh Transportation Company carry passengers from the William Penn Hotel to the County Airport at a flat rate of 50 cents, was heard yesterday by Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker.

THE TIME TO KILL A COLD

—is in the First Stage, While it is Yet a "Dry" Cold!

Now it is known that a cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The first is the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours. The second is the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days. The third, the Mucous Secretion stage. Treated in the first stage, a cold is far easier to kill. As a matter of fact, when a cold passes into the second and third stages it is apt to become settled in the system and dangerous.

Nip a cold in the bud by taking Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as soon as you feel the first symptoms. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine doesn't merely coddle a cold—it kills it because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs, infection and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippy feeling—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Effective as it is, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe to take. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. For years this famous tablet has been the relief of thousands in all cases of colds and grippe. Take no chances with a cold so long as this dependable remedy is available. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drug store in America. Comes in convenient, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. No reliable dealer will try to sell you a substitute.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY

GALA NIGHT ON AIR -:- Otis Skinner, with Rudy; 'Omar Khayyam' Series

'Show Boat' New WCAE Feature

What a night on the air!

The premieres of Capt. Henry's Show Boat with a cast of 54; of Rudy Vallee's new variety revue with Otis Skinner, and of the oriental musical drama, "The Story of Omar Khayyam;" comedy by Jack Pearl and Ray Perkins; music by Cab Calloway, Ben Bernie and George Olsen; the debut of the Don Bestor-Art Jarrett combination; the Jenny Lind anniversary celebration with Kitty Cheatham, long a favorite of the New York and London stage, and the return of Death Valley Days—all are listed on tonight's radio schedule.

Stars of the stage, concert and radio, including Charles Winninger, the "Captain Andy" of the Ziegfeld "Show Boat" fame; Jules Bledsoe, celebrated Negro baritone from the same show; the Hall Johnson Choir from the Pulitzer Prize play, 'Green Pastures'; Lanny Ross, tenor; Mabel Jackson, soprano; Annette Hanshaw, blues singer; January and Molasses, blackface comedians; Don Voorhees' orchestra and a dramatic cast of 10 parade before the microphone in Captain Henry's Show Boat on WCAE at 9 p. m. The programs, scheduled for a full hour, will be heard weekly.

Miss Hanshaw

Miss Deis

Otis Skinner, the noted dramatic star, heads a cast of prominent artists, including Greta Keller, Viennese singer, who recently arrived in this country; Block and Sully, vaudeville comedians; the Randall sisters, southern vocal harmonizers, and an outstanding personality (not yet announced) of this week's news, in Rudy Vallee's new radio revue, inaugurated on WCAE at 8.

An address by Franklin D. Fort, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Banks board, at a meeting of delegates gathered in Altoona to attend the state convention of Building and Loan Associations which opens tomorrow, will be brought to Pittsburgh dialers through the facilities of KQV tonight. Fort's talk, a discussion of the Federal Home Loan Banks, will be broadcast for half an hour beginning at 8:45 p. m. Special wires will carry Fort's message from Altoona to Pittsburgh.

Program Pointers

A special program, marking the one hundred and twelfth anniversary of the birth of Jenny Lind, the nineteenth century toast of two continents, is presented over an NBC network, including KDKA, at 10:15 tonight. Kitty Cheatham, who many years ago was a London and New York stage favorite and who was a close friend of Jenny Lind, is the guest of honor, recalling intimate details of the great diva's life. Carol Deis, popular radio soprano, offers a group of songs for which the great soprano was famous. Dramatized episodes from the life of the Swedish opera star also are included on the program.

Romance, adventure and comedy are mingled in the new series entitled "The Life of Omar Khayyam," which makes its bow over WJAS at 9:30. The musical portion of the programs, presented from Los Angeles, is provided by Raymond Paige and his orchestra.

Two Republican national committee programs are listed tonight. Strickland Gillilan, humorist, speaks over NBC-WJZ, including KDKA at 8 o'clock, followed by a Republican rally over a Columbia chain, including WJAS, at 10 p. m.

A gala half-hour "Hollywood on the Air" program featuring Tom Mix, Mitzi Green, Wesley Ruggles, Arlene Judge, Matt Moore, Aileen Pringle, Ernie Westmore, Eric Linden, Rochelle Hudson and Clyde Lucas' Orchestra is listed on KDKA at midnight.

Uncle Bob, Betty To Read Comics

Hilarity reigns when Uncle Bob and Betty read the Sun-Telegraph comics to WCAE listeners. They're on the air from 6 to 6:15 tonight.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, relays the latest news flashes to WCAE listeners four times daily—at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Listening In— Muriel Will Cook. 'Masked Tenor' Wins. Andrini to Marry.

Muriel Pollock, the pianist, recently took an apartment after living in a hotel for years and years—just so she could back up her claims to being a good cook . . . George Hall, the band leader, out of the hospital after an automobile crash, is having fun meeting folks who want to talk about their operations . . . Invariably, George beats them to it with a story that would make your hair curl . . . Jean Sargent is to be featured with Paul Whiteman's orchestra Sunday . . . Joe White, the Silver Masked Tenor, brought action to prevent another entertainer from using the Silver Mask . . . and was successful.

Miss Pollock

Lawrence Andrini, of the Andrini Brothers, and Olga Leone, violinist, of Corona, L. I., will be married November 12.

Fred Allen is the latest of the stage funsters to join the radio ranks . . . and now a magician has achieved featured billing on the radio billboards. He's Fred Keating. He doesn't work in pantomime, but incorporates clever conversation by way of explanation.

There's a current report that Jack Denny and Vincent Lopez are at odds . . . because Lopez has been introducing a new group billed the Debutantes and Denny, for many months, has been starring real 'debs.' But Lopez' Debutantes, a girls' orchestra, were organized before Jack opened at the New Waldorf and have been playing in the Middle West for experience before going to New York.

Studio pickups: As he writes, Phillips Lord reads each line of his Country Doctor sketches aloud to get the vocal effect . . . Ward Wilson is playing in vaude . . . Georgie Price weighs just about 100 pounds . . . James Melton speaks fluently in several languages . . . Frank Luther rehearses before a microphone in his private studio . . . Over 1,000,000 pieces of health literature have been sent out by Arthur Bagley . . . Chandler Goldthwaite, the organist, has worn the same hat for eight years.

Sophie Tucker, who's been auditioning, is due on the air soon.

Leo Reisman's radio programs are planned with the thought in mind that the tuners-in may be dancing.

Dave Rubinoff never has even a portion of a day off without special arrangement with his theater employers. Sunday is his hardest day with five stage shows, radio rehearsals and his broadcast.

"Birthright," the story of a young man reared as the son of a wealthy rancher, who discovers that he is only an adopted son taking the place of a real son who was kidnaped by Indians during babyhood, and of what happens when the real son, unaware of his identity, appears, is the opening dramatization of the fall edition of Death Valley Days on KDKA at 9.

Tomorrow brings an address by President Hoover over an NBC network and KDKA at 3:15.

ASK THE "MAN BEHIND THE COUNTER" WHY HE

smokes Old Gold

Finer Tobacco Quality HE'LL TELL YOU

Why do the majority of cigarette merchants smoke OLD GOLDS?

Because they know tobacco quality . . . that's why. They know OLD GOLDS are made of queen-leaf tobacco . . . from the heart of the stalk. The coolest, throat-easiest tobacco that grows.

When a merchant chooses for himself or his family he chooses the best in his stock!

OLD GOLDS are FULL-WEIGHT

not a cough in a carload.

A Large American Hotel and a Small European Principality Enter Into This Story of

at $3.75 each

The lowest price on record. It goes back to the time when a famous American hotel ordered 500 high-grade Down Pillows from a leading American maker. DOWN is scarce in this country so the maker sent to Europe. Over there patient peasant fingers went to work and plucked the soft plumage from the necks of thousands of Geese. A slow process, for the Down collector had to travel from Village to Village.

Meanwhile the Hotel Manager became impatient and cancelled the contract. We were on the spot and contracted for the entire 500 at a price that will make history! Here they are at last—fine high-grade Down Pillows—thoroughly sterilized and odorless—soft, plump and buoyant—covered with a fine linen finish feather-proof ticking in neat blue stripe. Full 21x27-in. size. Embrace this opportunity to buy real DOWN pillows at the lowest price on record!

DAIRY BOMBED IN MILK WAR

BURLINGTON, Wis., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—A terrific explosion of a bomb, planted by five masked gunmen, demolished the new $25,000 plant of the Burlington Co-operative Pure Milk Association early today.

The vandals kidnaped John Eisenbard, night watchman, before setting the bomb and carried him off in their automobile. A mile and a half outside of the city, Eisenbard was hurled out of the car and made his way back into town, where he discovered police and firemen searching the dairy's ruins for his body.

The bombing was believed to be the work of a faction in a Chicago milk price war.

The blast reverberated throughout the city, shattering windows within a radius of several blocks.

U. S. MAY ROUT FOREIGN STARS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The possibility Hollywood may lose some of its foreign element existed today with the announcement that Murray W. Garsson, special assistant to Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, has begun an investigation here of "alien racketeers, motion picture actresses and actors." Garsson said:

"The government has been conducting a secret inquiry of the citizenship status of foreign-born racketeers in the East. We have learned that many of this type have moved on to Los Angeles, and we are out to get them.

"We also are engaged in seeking out motion picture workers who came to this country from their native lands on visitor permits and who have overstayed."

Bridegroom Fails To Appear; No Wedding

MONROE, Mich., Oct. 6.—They are still waiting for Fred Mueller, 29, of Detroit, to join in the dinner which was planned to celebrate his marriage to Miss Anna Anderson, 26.

Mueller went downtown "to see about the wedding photographs." The next his bride-to-be heard from him was a letter postmarked Toledo, O., saying he planned to "end it all."

Ask New Kensington P. O. Builders Ousted

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Oct. 6.—Council, by resolution to the United States Treasury Department urged the dismissal of the Nicholas Construction Company, Inc., of Philadelphia, and the employment of other contractors to complete the erection of the post-office building here. Previously, Congressman A. M. Wyant had urged action by the Treasury Department. A similar petition is being circulated for signers.

WOMEN RALLY IN 'Y' DRIVE

With the holding of a special women's campaign committee yesterday, the Y. M. & W. H. A. continued its efforts to raise $60,000 for maintenance of the association's work for the coming year.

Miss Sallie Mazer, vice president of the association and chairman of the women's committee, headed yesterday's discussions.

Supreme Court Pays Call at White House

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court of the United States, headed by Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, paid a formal call on President Hoover today and advised him the court is now in session. The reception was held in the blue room of the White House.

AID TOO LATE, VET BUYS CAR

As John W. Collins, of the United Spanish War Veterans, approached the Schenley Park tourist camp today he would have been less than human if he had not felt satisfied with himself.

He had arranged with the Travelers' Aid Society to furnish a truck to carry back to Detroit a man and his wife and their five children and three baby carriages and a dog.

The man, Frank Pierce, had said he was a Spanish War veteran and had told of the difficulties he and his family had gone through. They said they had walked from Detroit to Pittsburgh for work and now they were broke and stranded.

But the Travelers' Aid truck never reached the camp; it wasn't necessary, for early today Pierce, other campers say, bought a second-hand car and drove off. Collins is checking Pierce's war record.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengué by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic baumes, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

RESCUE CREWS AS 'DOCTORS' CENSURED

Pneumonia Patients Periled, Medical Society Told

Emergency teams of police, firemen or utility corporations administering oxygen in pneumonia cases was deplored by Dr. John R. McCurdy, of Pittsburgh, before the closing sessions today of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania convention at the William Penn Hotel.

While admitting emergency crews were of creditable service in drowning and similar accident cases, Dr. McCurdy urged censoring of physicians lending themselves to this practice in pneumonia cases. Stressing the urgent need of oxygen as a potent aid when properly used, but not as a means of cure, Dr. McCurdy declared "spraying of oxygen to the upper respiratory tract by means of a funnel is quite useless." The tent method was held as the best, aside from use of a chamber.

Deploring the lack of understanding among general practitioners, Dr. McCurdy said:

"Such ignorance is sadly but eloquently bespoken in the vicious practice of calling upon, or allowing the patient's family to call, an 'emergency' team of police, firemen or utility corporations, who spectacularly rush to the bedside and apply an inhalator to the patient's face.

"I believe that any physician guilty of such practice should be called to account by his county society censores and the heroic firemen prosecuted for practicing medicine without a license."

The patient's knowledge of getting the oxygen free was blamed. The speaker declared the treatment can be obtained in most cities through hospitals and other ethical channels.

Pittsburgh's climate was held equal to so-called favorable climates for the treatment of tuberculosis by Dr. C. Howard Marcy. The proper routine of rest, diet and adequate fresh air was credited with curing many cases.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 6,
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I read Mr. Hoover's speech, every word of it. Now, he may be dry, but somebody sure slipped him a couple of nips and told him, "Go on out there and tell those birds something, deliver 'em a speech so they won't think it's Hoover." And I want to tell you he took right after 'em. Course another thing was in his favor. A man can put a little more into a speech when it means his job. Some men will stand for a lot of things, but you start taking their job away from 'em, and you are going to get something besides platitudes.

Will Rogers

I'll tell you Al and Franklin didn't make up a day too soon. They're going to bury the hatchet. Decided to bury it in Hoover.

Yours, WILL.

Attaches of County Court System Get Kin on Payroll

Even Judges Have Relatives as Public Job Holders

The judiciary of Allegheny County and holders of offices pertaining to the courts are not above that common practice of nepotism, and many have worked assiduously to take care that their relatives have jobs—some on the public payrolls.

Their own are their responsibility, some maintain privately. It is true that in these times, officeholders are facing the problem of caring for their relatives, or getting them jobs.

S. J. Topley, Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, at $10,000 a year, and active in politics for many years, has a number of his relatives on the rolls, including three sons. The majority have independent families.

Listed as Topley's relatives are H. L. Topley, a son, clerk in the Recorder of Deeds office at $216 a month, furloughed since October 1; C. R. Topley, a son, clerk in Quarter Sessions at $220 a month; John Topley, a son, truck driver for the county, $135 a month; Thomas Moore, brother-in-law, in bridge department at $150 a month; Thomas Moore, Jr., nephew, investigator for Poor Directors.

Among the judicial families, probably the best known are the Drews.

James B. Drew is a Justice of the State Supreme Court, which pays $19,500 a year. A brother, Thomas D. Drew, is chief real estate deputy in the Sheriff's office at $6,000 a year. Another brother, Raymond, at present absent, is a clerk in the Register of Deeds office at $175 a month, while a sister, May Dolan, is a veteran of the Probation office, at $300 a month.

Judge Harry Rowand has a brother, Arch Rowand, a clerk in the office of the District Attorney.

Judge James R. Macfarlane has a son, Jesse Macfarlane, in the Jury Commissioners' office at a salary of $175 a month.

Judge Ambrose B. Reid's brother, C. B. Reid, is also in the Jury Commissioners' office at $175, while a son, Meredith Reid, is an assistant district attorney, with a salary of $3,000.

A daughter of Judge Frank P. Patterson, Miss Virginia Patterson, is employed in the Registration Commission's office at $150 a month.

Judge Thomas P. Trimble, of Orphans' Court, has a daughter, Miss Margaret Trimble, a stenographer in Orphans' Court.

The salaries of Common Pleas judges are $14,000 each.

Nepotism Practiced In Judiciary Offices Here

While a number of other members of the judiciary are reported to have relatives on the payrolls, they are mixed in the most complicated systems of payrolls, or are secret from the prying world mainly because of differences in names.

Work Started on New Home for Cripples

Workmen are busy constructing foundations for a new D. T. Watson Home for Crippled Children, Leetsdale, to be completed next year. The buildings are an adaptation of the cottage plan, consisting of a main building and two connect cottages. Except the hospital, on the second floor of the main building, all accommodations, wards, living rooms, dining rooms, treatment rooms, school and vocational rooms are on the ground floor.

Each cottage will house 30 children and 30 more will be taken care of in the main hospital building. The plan is designed so two additional cottages may be added later and connected with the main building. The new fireproof structure will house 150 children. Grading is arranged so even the lower floor, containing the laundry, kitchen, laboratory, X-ray and vocational rooms, is above ground. A separate heating plant will supply the new and present building.

The present home, formerly the country residence of David T. and Margaret H. W. Watson, will be used as a dormitory and living quarters for the staff and employes.

Mr. Watson was one of three attorneys who represented the United States in the Alaskan boundary dispute with England, which resulted in a decision cutting off Canada's access to the sea for 800 miles.

HINT STARTLING COUNTY GRAFT DISCLOSURES

Commissioners Admit Asphalt 'Racket' Bared By Audit

Inquiry into the asphalt business of the county that may result in further startling disclosures is under way, it was learned today.

M. C. Conick, chief auditor for Main & Co., who has been delving into the county's records for eight months, has developed facts that may disclose grafting on a huge scale in the handling of contracts for asphalt, it was admitted by the three County Commissioners yesterday. They said it would be unfairly prejudging the case to mention names.

Conick, questioned concerning his investigation, would make no comment, other than to admit that he is "knee-deep" in the investigation.

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said:

"Publicly and privately for years I have contended that this asphalt business was the prize racket of them all. I do not know what the auditors have developed except in a general way."

Commissioner C. M. Barr, named a committee of one to handle the county audit when Conick was retained by the commissioners, said:

"It would be unfair at this time to mention individuals in connection with the auditors' investigation."

Commissioner William D. Mansfield refused comment other than to confirm the investigation.

Legal phases of the auditors' work are being handled by County Solicitor J. P. Fife and his assistant, Ralph E. Frank, who both said the investigation has not reached the point where action can be taken against any individuals.

SECRET SERVICE MEN REPORTED AT SESSIONS

Police Say U. S. Agents Are Taking Notes; Hoover Rebuked

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 6.—Trouble brewing in the B. E. F. convention here for three days came to a climax today when a score of the so-called Left Wing were locked out of the Hoover warehouse, meeting place of the convention.

Those barred, congregated around the doors, as the convention prepared to elect officers. The threatened to sorm the hall, and police were held in readiness for an outbreak.

U. S. AGENTS THERE

Police reported that secret service operatives have attended the sessions and taken notes of alleged inflammatory remarks against the government and administration.

After 18 hours of wrangling the convention agreed on a constitution, by-laws and platform upon which to carry the World War veterans' fight for immediate payment of the bonus back into Washington.

There will be no second bonus march on the capital. In its place there has been selected a committee of eight men and two women who will leave Uniontown for Washington this week to carry to President Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner, copies of a resolution adopted here.

SMITH NAMED

Capt. Hoke Smith, commander of Camp Sherry and candidate for re-election as national field commander, was named to head the committee. The women members are Mrs. Geneva M. Frew and Mrs. Myrtle Crawford, both of Los Angeles.

The petition demands recognition of the B. E. F. and immediate relief for needy veterans and their families and censures President Hoover and his administration for the forcible eviction from Washington of the bonus army. A motion to amend the resolution with a threat of a second march on the capital in the event of the principles of the petition were denied, was defeated by a vote on the floor of the convention.

The petition reads in part:

"We, the assembled representatives of the B. E. F. in national convention do hereby demand that there be no legislation introduced that will reduce the veterans' allowances in any way—namely, hospitalization, compensation, pensions, rehabilitation, etc.—and we do hereby demand that there be legislation passed for the just dues and obligations due the veterans.

HOOVER CENSURE

"We, the assembled representatives of the B. E. F., do hereby censure you and those of your administration who took part in the eviction of the B. E. F. from Washington on July 28 and 29, 1932."

More than a score of rules were adopted by the convention in its stormy session yesterday. There was considerable wrangling on the part of the delegates, particularly on the regulation of membership in the B. E. F.

National headquarters for the organization will be located in New York and national field headquarters will be designated by the officer elected to that post. Capt. Smith is now field officer and his headquarters are Camp Sherry.

Lifesaving G.O.P. Catches Us On Second Bounce

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Republicans now admit there was a depression. But claim they stopped it from getting worse.

That's like locking up the hot dog stand after the hoss is hamburgered.

It's like the plumber who stopped the leak after the cellar was full. But everybody was scared to come down out of the attic.

There is a haystack of philosophy in that idea that it might have been worse. It's like the man who jumped out of the burning building into the net. The firemen missed him the first time, but got him on the second bounce.

If the Iowa ballyhoo expedition can convince the farmers things could have been worse we will admit that Mahatma Gandhi spreads a very nice table.

And we will also concede that the administration relief squad catches 'em on the second bounce.

LITTLE SAVING SEEN IN CUT BY COMPANY

Studies of the water rates of the South Pittsburgh Water Company have convinced the special committee of the Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners that the community needs its own water plant, Attorney George P. Kountz said today.

Attorney Kountz, chairman of the special committee, said the plant could be constructed for considerably less than $1,000,000 and that it would pay for itself in 15 years.

SMALL BENEFIT SEEN

Kountz made this disclosure while discussing the new rates offer made by the company, which amounts to a reduction of $1.86 a year to domestic users. Kountz said the reduction does not appear to be of any particular benefit to anyone.

It was probable a meeting of the special committee would be called tonight to discuss the new rates and to determine what action the township shall take on the water supply question, Kountz said.

Both Kountz and C. L. Clark, chairman of the Township Commissioners, said if the new rates are not satisfactory, the township will fight them.

MAY END CONTRACT

The township's contract with the South Pittsburgh Water Company does not expire until 1935, but Kountz said if an equitable settlement on rates could not be reached, the township would proceed legally to end the agreement and to secure its own water supply.

The new water tariff has been filed with the Public Service Commission, which has declared it satisfactory. It will appear on bills rendered November 1.

The meter rates of the company remain unchanged, simply starting after the water allowances are made. These allowances vary with the size of the meter outlet from 1,500 gallons to 138,300 gallons in the same ratio as the old service charges.

ECONOMY TO CITY

The city will save $35,000 a year in the amount it pays the South Pittsburgh Water Company on the difference between city rates and company rates for residents of the city in the South Hills territory. Last year the entire difference paid the company by the city amounted to $300,000.

The city water rate is 20 cents for the first 250,000 gallons, whereas the South Pittsburgh Water Company's meter rate is 33 cents for the first 12,000 gallons per quarter. According to water company representatives, the city rate does not pay actual costs.

DRY CHIEF AIDS 3-GUN WILSON

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, has assumed personal charge of the battle to save Harold (Three-Gun) Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator, from jail.

Wilson, now stationed in Nebraska, has been convicted of contempt of court for refusing to reveal to Judge John P. Nields the name of the man who gave him the key that enabled a raid to be staged on the Democratic Club here several months ago.

Despite pressure from Washington, Judge Nields has refused to relent in Wilson's case. The conviction was recently upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and Wilson was ordered into custody of a United States marshal. Another hearing before Judge Nields is slated shortly. Woodcock and United States District Attorney Wales are preparing briefs in Wilson's behalf.

Miss Finley said she wished to question Plant concerning his income, which she said she believed was in excess of $100,000 annually. A bill of particulars he submitted, she said, was incomplete.

Rule Urges Schools Merge to Cut Costs

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—An estimated saving of a million dollars could be effected in teachers' salaries alone through the closing of small schools and the transferring of pupils to adjoining schools, Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, today told the central district convention of the State Education Association in session here.

Better educational opportunities could be given farm children at less cost through adoption of the larger unit plan for school organization, he said.

G. O. P. TO SPUR CAMPAIGN HERE

Republican leaders of the Twelfth and Thirteenth Legislative districts will confer with County Chairman William H. Coleman tomorrow on organization work for the presidential campaign. This is one of a series of meetings Coleman is holding with district leaders in advance of opening headquarters.

Leaders from the Tenth District met Coleman last night.

Efforts are being made to obtain a large attendance at the Wilkinsburg meeting Saturday night, when Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, will speak for the Republican national ticket.

Philadelphia Schools Open After Epidemic

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—The reopening of all public and parochial schools today was marked by wet weather as about 200,000 children who have had an extra months vacation because of the present outbreak of infantile paralysis, reported to classrooms.

The junior high schools and the higher grades of the elementary schools reopened yesterday.

Drawbacks Fail To Halt Prison Grid Season

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The football spirit is running high among the convicts of the state penitentiary, but there are going to be some drawbacks.

There won't be any cheer leaders, for one thing, and even if there were, there wouldn't be anyone to cheer—for the players are to be known only by their numbers and not by their names.

Practice got under way yesterday for the opening of the season Saturday, when five teams representing as many cell houses will begin play in an intra-mural tournament.

For a time Walter Nerstheimer, assistant warden, was worried about his prospects, but that's all over now. He said:

"Last spring after the Parole Board had graduated some of our best halfbacks, we were afraid that this year's squads would be pretty weak.

"However, the judges of the Criminal Courts have sent a number of our stars back to us."

BLIND STUDENT AVERAGES HIGH

Paul W. Douglas, 24, of 5301 Ellsworth avenue, has been blind since he was 3 years old. But that didn't prevent him from making a B average in his freshman year at Pitt. Now he's starting into his sophomore term more enthusiastically than ever.

Paul gives a good deal of credit for his success to his dog, Night, a coal black, especially trained German shepherd. The dog accompanies him to classes, and sleeps through them at his feet. It brings him home in the evening, and has a special permit to ride on street cars with him.

Paul uses the Braille system of reading when he can get textbooks of that sort; otherwise he employs readers.

PITT, TECH MEN OPPOSE ALIEN JOB BAN

Secretary of Labor Doak's recent ruling barring foreign non-quota students in American colleges and universities from part-time or vacation employment will have no effect on foreign students at the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech.

At Pitt there are only six such students, all too busy with studies to seek work. Chancellor John G. Bowman, however, disapproved of the ruling, saying:

"The foreign students can use a little extra spending money as well as our American students. I don't believe the little bit they might earn would do any harm."

The Pitt Weekly in its last issue said:

"International good will—what remains of it—is certain to suffer by Secretary Doak's discrimination."

At Carnegie Tech nine foreign students enrolled, three from Russia, the others from Mexico, Turkey, Poland, Palestine, India and Austria. None holds a job.

Alan Bright, registrar of Tech, commented:

"If a foreign student has an hour or two each day that he can use earning a little spending money it should be his privilege.

ADJOURN PHONE RATE CASE

Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker yesterday adjourned the hearing of testimony of telephone subscribers of the Pennsylvania Telephone Corporation protesting an increase of 25 cents a month to a date to be announced later.

The telephone corporation absorbed a number of telephone concerns in this part of the state, including the Western Pennsylvania Telephone Company, Somerset County, and the Johnstown Telephone Company with a total of 56,000 subscribers. The last named two concerns had amalgamated with others before the merger in 1931.

Following the merger unlimited residence service was advanced from $2.25 a month to $2.50; other rates proportionately. The defense, heard yesterday, charged 70 per cent of the subscribers, petitioned for the amalgamated service in order to improve it.

STUDENTS SHUN 'ARMY,' OUSTED

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Two students who refused to attend the compulsory military training course at the University of Maryland were suspended last night by Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the university.

Dr. Pearson announced the suspension of the students, whose names he refused to reveal, would be "until such time as they agree to abide by its regulations." The students, he said, refused to attend the military training course which is compulsory during the first two years at the university.

The Baltimore Sun said the two students were "understood to be" Ennis Coale, a freshman, from Belair, Md., and Wayne Leese, a sophomore, who lives in Washington.

Heartcleaning

Throw out the memory of all our grief,
The biting phrase—the jealousy—the tears;
Throw out the night that trailed us like a thief
And stole our faith in all the coming years.
Throw out the last farewell—small use to store
A faded picture, poorly drawn at best;
That will be all—and though you find much more—
If I were you, dear, I would keep the rest.

Yes, I would keep a verse I made for you,
Surely the space it needs is sadly small;
I would hold back a star-swept night or two—
And a gay banner from our castle, tall;

(Heap them together—bless them with a sigh—Loot from a lovely dream that passed us by!)

Don Wahn.

Another

The best of the current slump stories is the one about the husband who came home to his wife very sad.

"What is it," she queried, "another cut?"

"No, worse than that," he moaned.

"Fired?"

"Oh, no," he said as he buried his face in his hands, "worse!"

"Good heavens! What?"

"The boss retired today," was the reply between sobs, "and turned the whole business over to me! Boo, hoo, hoo!"

Paternal Pride

At the Henry Street Settlement the other day, a lady stopped to admire a child being carried by its father.

"My, my," enthused the lady, "what a beautiful baby!"

"Beautiful baby?" replied the father. "Lady, you should see his picture."

The Retort Swelegant

From Barney O'Donnell comes the one about the reformer who was lecturing a group of high school girls on the evils of drinking hooch.

"It's bad enough for a man to drink," thundered the talker, "but a woman! Why, how can you expect to go to heaven with the odor of likker on your breath?"

"When I go to heaven," interrupted one of the gals, "I expect to leave my breath behind!"

Reportorial Accuracy

Reports from London sometime ago told how Joe Cook, one of America's foremost clowns, was booed off the stage. The dispatches told how Joe failed and flopped with the same routines that convulsed Americans and many of us could hardly believe it.

Now we learn what actually happened at the first London performance. Cook's versatility and his jokes scored heavily with the Londoners and nothing sour happened until he made his curtain talk.

"Ladies and gentlemen," Joe began, "I just came over from America—" when a heckler interrupted:

"Well, why don't you go back?"

The booing followed and Joe went off in tears.

Tragedy

The scene was the Lewisohn Stadium. An old composer, who waited nearly 40 years to have his compositions played in public, finally had his hopes realized. The day finally arrived! He was so thrilled.

As he lifted his baton a dozen army planes circled over the stadium and their motors roared for the duration of the piece!

"The poor guy," observed one who knew him well, "he was just doomed never to be heard."

Nifties

In the David Murray manner: Definition of a politician: A guy who would give you the shirt off his back—theoretically . . . Nowadays anybody is a statesman who can think up things to do with the war debts besides pay them! . . . The funniest thing about most radio comedians is the fact that the radio executives think they are funny!

Form of Criticism

Jack Denny's pet anecdote is the one that actually happened to Count Herbert Bismarck, the nasty son of Prince Bismarck, oh, a long time ago. It was at some military function when the rude son bumped against an Italian dignitary, who became incensed and gave Bismarck's boy a piece of his mind.

"I don't think," said young Bismarck, "that you know who I am. I am Count Herbert Bismarck!"

"That as an excuse is insufficient," replied the Italian, bowing politely, "but as an explanation it is ample."

Newthpaper Thtuff!

From Francis Killane comes the report about the editor of a small town rag who explained the loss of the letter "s" from the one machine in the composing room. It went this way:

"Latht night thome thneaking thcoundrel thtole into our compothing room and thwiped the cabinetth containing all the letter eththeth. Therefore we would like to take advantage of thith opportunity to apologize to our readerth for the general inthipid appearance of the newth in the paper. We would altho like to thtate that if at any time in the yearth to come we thhould thee thith dirty thnake in the grath about the premitheth, it will be our complete and thorough thatithfaction to thoot him full of holeth, Thankth."

New Bennett Picture Being Rushed

All mechanical departments at the RKO Studio plunged into a full 24-hour working schedule this week to rush along production of Constance Bennett's next starring picture. The story, just selected, is "Always Wrong," an original by Adele Rogers St. John. Every effort will be made to rush the picture into production so that Miss Bennett may complete it prior to her departure for Europe, a plan she announced some time ago.

Comes From Germany

Beautiful Nellie at Home Over All the World, Says Owen Davis

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Owen Davis is in town with his son, Donald. Together they made the dramatic version of "The Good Earth," which is holding audiences at the Nixon in the same spell of deep sympathy as the book by that unusual missionary, Mrs. Pearl S. Buck. She is an unusual missionary because she does not paint the "heathen Chinee" as something peculiar—not quite human, to be looked down upon and converted.

In their play the two Davises have kept that human atmosphere, that fraternal spirit, that sense of universal kinship.

Yet there was a time when Owen Davis was thought to be beneath all literary pretensions. He was ranked with Theodore Kremer and Charles Blaney as a purveyor of blood-and-thunder melodramas. Beginning with "Through the Breakers," which raised the roof at the Bijou a generation ago, he produced about 300 dramas, mostly about impossibly virtuous heroines and impossibly villainous villains.

His greatest hit, perhaps, was "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." He tells me that he thinks he will probably be remembered for "Nellie" when the world has forgotten "Ice-Bound," his play which took the Pulitzer Prize.

NELLIE IN FLORENCE

I told him that in Florence, just around the corner from the house where Dante was born, I saw a moving picture theater with placards announcing "Nella la Bella Modista," in which I recognized the famous lady who escaped more perils than Pauline. Owen Davis told me that Nellie has gone into all lands—South Africa, Japan, Siberia, New Zealand, and no doubt even to Brooklyn. Hers was the play which dramatized the Brooklyn Bridge.

Owen Davis admits that he owes much of his dramatic inspiration to Charles Dickens, whom he read with real affection since he graduated from Harvard. At Harvard he was in the class of the famous George P. Baker, who was teaching plain English then, instead of developing dramatists. But Dickens taught Davis more about dramatics than Baker could have done. From Dickens he got three formulas, which he can trace through all his early plays.

THE REWARD OF VIRTUE

Those plays are not to be despised. In their day they served their purpose of amusing the public. Also they taught many untutored minds that villainy does not pay and that virtue is its own reward.

Sophisticates of today may say that virtue doesn't get any other reward, but wise men will realize that after all this is considerably more than the dividend of vice.

Davis admits that he has killed at least 150 villains in his melodramas. That is a pretty good record. When we add to that the number of beautiful maidens he has saved from a fate worse than death, he'll have a rather good credit account on St. Peter's ledger when he walks up to the pearly gates with a deadhead pass.

Davis does not at all mind the other imputation that he has not invented every situation he uses in his plays. When I charged him with having taken a few pages out of the Book of Ruth, in the family Bible, for the mood of "The Good Earth," he did not deny it. In fact, he seemed rather proud of having known where to find such pearls. And he told me I would have a good case for plagiarism against him, if I could prove that I had written the Book of Ruth.

ECHOES OF HAMSUN

There is another parallel for "The Good Earth"—in Knut Hamsun's famous "Growth of the Soil." In Hamsun's profoundly moving story, the Scandinavian farmer also acquires one parcel of land after another—many of the incidents and episodes are duplicated—even the famine and the infanticide.

But what of that? A student in college—perhaps one of Prof. Baker's budding Shaws—once defined a plagiarist as "one who writes plays." So there's no use getting excited over a few similarities. The main thing is that "The Good Earth" as a book was a true transcript of a race ancient before Columbus studied geography, and that Owen Davis, with his son Donald, has kept the emotional rhythm and the inner truth of the book in their play, which seems sure of a long run on Broadway.

Gwili Andre, Hurt In Fall, Recovers

Gwili Andre is fast recovering from slight injuries recently suffered while riding in the Hollywood foothills. Miss Andre was swept from her horse when a low overhanging limb struck her head. She was knocked unconscious and given emergency treatment by other riders in her party. Her injury, however, did not necessitate a physician's care.

Sheridan Has 'Crooner'

By EDWARD W. GOSS

The rise and fall of a swell-headed crooner is told in the Sheridan Square's current picture, "The Crooner."

"The Crooner" is an enjoyable picture—not hampered with one of those stories that beg to be taken to heart. Heading the cast are David Manners, in the title role, and Ann Dvorak, as his enticing lady. Manners and Miss Dvorak give good performances.

The picture opens with Manners and his band of musicians looking for a job. Because the soloist of the band has a sore throat, Manners is suddenly called upon to do the singing. His voice isn't strong enough to be heard and a "drunk" hands him a megaphone, telling him to sing through it. He does and a miracle comes to pass. The women love it.

The crooner's girl introduces him to a publicity man. The publicity man carries the lad to national success and popularity. There comes a day, though, when the crooner forgets he's only a crooner and is firmly convinced he really can sing. His head swells to a gigantic size. In a short time he becomes such a conceited fool that he loses his girl and his popularity.

The cast also has Teddy Joyce, possibly remembered in Pittsburgh as a master of ceremonies. Teddy is one of the boys in the crooner's band.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Nixon box offices today are seating up customers for "The Pure in Heart," Theater Guild play that will open in that house next Monday. The cast includes June Walker, Osgood Perkins, Thurston Hall, Helen Flint, Paul Kelly, Robert Fischer, Erskine Sanford, Eva Condon and others. There will be the customary mats. Wed. and Sat.

In "As Husbands Go," Rachel Crothers' comedy that will be given by the Edwin Vail players in the Pitt next week, a couple of middle-aged romantic dames from Dubuque, Iowa, on holiday in Paris, pick up a pair of lotharios. Troubled by thoughts of a nice, easy-going husband back home, one of them decides to return and break the news to him before taking on the other for keeps. It is finely shaded comedy with considerable depth of feeling.

* * *

Plans are under way in New York for the presentation of an edition of the Ziegfeld "Follies" that is to be a composite of all these great productions, a revue that will contain the best numbers from the entire series. The proceeds will go to Billie Burke (Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld). The promoters hope to enlist the services of many former Ziegfeld stars.

Stars' Moods All 'Tush'

This talk about star temperament is all tush, according to George Cukor, director of "A Bill of Divorcement," starring John Barrymore.

And Cukor ought to know. For he has handled most of the stars who have reputations for bursting into tantrums. On the stage in New York, he directed Jeanne Eagels in "The Cardboard Lover," Ethel Barrymore in "The Constant Wife" and Laurette Taylor in "Furies."

None of these great stars ever staged a scene that was not in the script, Cukor declared. No temperamental outbursts ever marred a single play or film he has handled.

John Barrymore, especially, the director said, has been grossly libeled with reports of being "hard to handle."

'Strictly Personal' Will Be Movie

"Strictly Personal," a story by Wilson Mizner and Robert T. Shannon, has been purchased by Charles R. Rogers for picturization on his purrent Paramount program.

'Glass Key' Bought By Movies

With preparations already under way for the production of "Madame Butterfly" as his first independently produced feature for Paramount, B. P. Schulberg announces plans for the filming of "The Glass Key." The latter production is a mystery drama by Dashiell Hammett. Florence Ryerson and Endre Bohem have been signed to prepare the screen play, but no cast or director has been selected as yet.

Fletcher Henderson Booked for Grotto

Fletcher Henderson, "the colored king of jazz," and his broadcasting orchestra, will play for dancing Friday night at the new Islam Grotto ballroom.

For two seasons Henderson and his band held forth at Connie's Inn in Harlem. The band plays here under auspices of Henry C. Foreman.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

The Wise Guy

HARRY WAS of the firm opinion that he was easily the smartest guy in the world. It was his fond belief that he was possessed of an extraordinary amount of brains. He loved to think of himself as a keen and hard-headed businessman. To hear him tell it, no one had ever been able to put anything over on him. And, also according to him, no one ever would.

Another favorite topic was the story of his early struggles and the method by which he had reached his present state of affluence. Not, you understand, by luck or influence. Simply by his own ability and shrewdness.

At 40 he was at the top of the heap in his particular profession. He was more or less happy. At certain times he was far happier than at others.

For three or four months, Harry was your ideal husband; sober, industrious, attentive. During this period, he tended strictly to his business and his home. Then, for two weeks, his wife would not even so much as catch a glimpse of him. Regularly and conscientiously, he went off on protracted and glorious sprees. Whether or not that was living up to his reputation for cleverness isn't for me to say.

At any rate, drunk though he was, Harry always remembered one thing. He never made the mistake of returning to his native hearth, after his little vacations, empty-handed. It was a sort of hearth-to-hearth talk. He had learned that the sight of a diamond ring, a bracelet, or a fur coat could do much to soften the little woman's wrath. Invariably her reproaches died before the sparkle of jewelry.

At the end of five years, through no efforts of her own, Ruth had a collection of jewels and furs that would have filled the heart of a professional gold-digger with envy. All this simply because she sat home and waited.

Sometimes, however, she thought it necessary to reason with Harry.

"Listen, dear," she would say, "the things are beautiful and all that, but how do you know that you're paying the right prices if you buy them when you're drunk? Why, think how easy it would be to gyp you! After this, you'd better let me buy the things myself."

That never failed to touch a sore spot in Harry's pride.

"Gyp me!" he would repeat indignantly. "I paid four hundred for that coat and just look at it! A beauty, isn't it? Gyped! Ha! Nobody's putting anything over on me, drunk or sober. I'm never so stewed that I lose my business sense. Don't you worry, mamma, they can't fool the old boy, no matter what condition I might be in. Don't you know me better than that by this time?"

Stroking the soft fur of her new coat, or admiring the glitter of a new ring, Ruth would be forced to admit that Harry was, indeed, very smart.

So things went on for a time, Ruth getting presents and Harry getting drunk. If it wasn't exactly the arrangement that they had had in mind when they stepped up to the altar side by side that morning some 20 years ago, neither seemed to mind very much. In fact, as time went on, Harry grew to enjoy it more and more.

He believed that his method of placating his wife was his wisest stunt of all. He was happy when she decked herself out in as many of her jewels as she could possibly wear. They were, to him, comforting proof of his generosity and shrewdness.

Best of all, he loved to gather a little audience about him and relate the details of each purchase.

"Look at this ring! Five hundred bucks for a ring like that! Look at it. Take it over to the light. See any flaws in it? No, sir! I'd like to see anyone do any better than that, even if they weren't—well, indisposed as I was at the time. Yes, sir! The old brain never loses its keenness."

Upon a certain fine Sunday morning, Harry returned home after his customary two weeks' absence. The house was unnaturally quiet. For the first time in their married life, Ruth wasn't on hand to greet him. He found her in bed, and she was plainly suffering from a shock of some kind.

"Why, darling," he said solicitously, "what's the matter? What's happened?"

Ruth began to wep loudly.

"Oh, Harry!" she sobbed. "Thieves broke in, Thursday night and simply ransacked the house! They took everything—the silver, my jewelry, my furs. All the beautiful things that you gave me! Oh, Harry, I'm just heartbroken about it all!"

Harry patted her shoulder.

"There! There!" he soothed. "Now don't you worry about it, mama. There's plenty more where they came from. Don't break your heart over something that can be remedied. Come on now, brace up, give me a big smile, and I'll see that you get more."

Ruth sat up in bed, wiping her eyes.

"I don't want any more presents if it means that you're going to keep on getting drunk," she retorted surprisingly. "I can't help feeling that if you had been here, all this wouldn't have happened. I don't feel safe with you away anyway. Don't leave me alone in the house again, will you, Harry? Why, they could have killed me just as easily as not! Promise me you won't go away and leave me alone again."

Harry merely laughed indulgently and continued to pat her shoulder. He felt sure that she would soon forget all about her fears. He had too much confidence in his system to believe that she actually meant what she was saying. Everything was going to be all right.

"Honey," he told her, "what's the use of wailing over spilt milk? If the stuff's gone, it's gone. We'll do everything possible to get it back, of course, but suppose it doesn't turn up? We still have our health, haven't we? Sure.

"You've got a husband, baby, who can pick up more bargains in a day than most men can locate in a lifetime. I don't mean to give the impression that I'm too smart, but I'm still willing to state that I've never met anyone yet who could outsmart me. And you know I'm right."

He snapped his fingers suddenly.

"Wadaya know?" he grinned. "In the middle of the excitement, I forgot about a little something that will prove my case completely. Just you wait a minute, honey. Papa's got a little surprise for you."

He put his hand into his pocket and drew out a tissue paper package.

"Look, darling," he said. "Here's something that's guaranteed to make you forget your tears. See what papa brought you this time! And I only paid a grand for it. Isn't it a pip?"

He dangled a diamond bracelet before her eyes. With a little cry, Ruth snatched it from his hands.

"You fool!" she screamed. "That's one of the pieces that were taken! You bought back the bracelet you gave me two years ago!" . . .

Wig for Each Gown Latest Vogue

A new coiffure for each gown. That is becoming a necessity this season and Gloria Stuart, Universal's blonde leading lady, has already adopted the fad for wigs in order to carry out the mode. Miss Stuart has a red wig that she wears with a golden evening gown. Incidentally, it is quite smart this year to wear the same evening gown three or even four times in the same week, if one cares to (this, by the way, is a concession to the days of depression through which we are passing), but under no circumstances may one repeat the same hairdress twice in one week!

Highlights of the two final games of the world series in Chicago show the plays in which the Yankees overwhelm the Cubs. There are closeups of the Babe, Lou Gehrig and Lazzeri in action.

Graduating policemen rookies are seen in a thrilling sham battle at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, in which riot guns, machine guns and automatics blaze away.

Marshall Hits At Schools of Drama

Most schools of the drama have no right to exist, according to Herbert Marshall, himself a former teacher in a dramatic school in London.

"Dramatic schools take tuition from people they know can have no theatrical future," the actor declared recently. "Acting is a matter of instinct, and only superficialities can be taught. Success as an actor, if one has the ability, can be attributed largely to luck."

"I wanted a clear skin—" and a happy home too"

"I wanted a clear skin—

I got it . . . and a happy home, too"

If you long for a better skin . . . or strength to overcome that so-called tired-feeling, why not pause a moment and reason in a common-sense way what may be the cause of your trouble and its relation to the blood

THERE is no secret as to how to have a clear skin—in most cases it comes from within. That is just why you may need S.S.S.

This time-tested tonic has brought happiness and joy to thousands. To some it has meant freedom from pimples and boils . . . to others it has meant a restored appetite and improved digestion—to all it has meant greater vitality.

The reason for this is that S.S.S., in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has the special property of increasing the red-cells and restoring the hemoglobin content of the blood, when deficient.

Hemoglobin, in the red-cells of the blood, plays an important role in body vitality and in combating skin troubles—it acts as a carrying agent to take oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin—and carries off the waste product.

Overwork, worry, colds, sickness and diet neglect frequently reduce the red-cells and the hemoglobin content of the blood—and when these are reduced the body and mind are not normal.

this means much to you

The right amount of hemoglobin in the blood makes a vast difference in the way you feel and look. It means sufficient oxygen . . . better assimilation of food . . . more energy . . . and more resistance.

pimples . . . boils

tend to thrive when the system is in a run-down condition due to a deficiency of this vital hemoglobin, causing a lack of oxygen and an excess of poisonous carbon dioxide gas.

even the appetite

lags when there is not enough hemoglobin in the blood stream to give the system the oxygen it needs and to free it of poison.

and digestion

can function properly only when there is sufficient oxygen in the blood to "burn" the food consumed. A lack of oxygen may result in impaired nutrition . . . gas . . . abdominal discomfort . . . nausea . . . constipation . . . diarrhea . . . headache . . . underweight, etc.

so that tired feeling

—as it is commonly called—is related to the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin, for the reason that oxygen in the blood gives greater vitality to the system and to the devouring and attacking cells . . . which resist disease.

one feels happier

when the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content are up to their full quota. A deficiency in the oxygen-carrying hemoglobin may result in paleness, poor complexion, poor circulation, numbness, pricking sensations, restlessness, nervousness, irritability or sleeplessness.

then why not try S.S.S.

—the proven tonic for increasing the red-cells and hemoglobin—proved effective by scientific research and millions of happy users. It may be the very means of restoring your skin beauty and bringing better health and more happiness to you.

Start taking a course of S.S.S. today. It is sold by all drug stores in two convenient sizes—the larger size is more economical and is sufficient for a two week's treatment. Don't permit anyone to "sidetrack" you in your determination to restore your red-blood-cells and hemoglobin back to normal. © S.S.S. Co.

DAYTIME FROCKS WHICH TURN INTO DINNER DRESSES ARE CHIC

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 6. — Dresses which may be worn about town, as suits, during the day, but turned into dinner dresses at night, are important in the collections of fashions shown by the Paris dressmakers right now. Paris women, following the lead of visiting Americans, are taking happily to this type of frock, which permits them the freedom of all-day activities in town, followed by dinner, the theater or dancing, without the necessity of returning home to dress.

THE INTERESTING part of this new fashion is the way French women—not easily divorced from traditions of dress—are quick to adopt the dinner dress which has a low decolletage combined with a street-length skirt. Some of these dresses have necklines which are even daring in their lowness, yet when worn with jackets have every appearance of a classic daytime dress.

ARDANSE, WHOSE designer, the Baroness Accurti, is familiar with evening dresses of the most formal varieties, makes one of these suit-gowns of black moroccan crepe, combined with elaborate embroidery in gold, black and green. By day, the embroidery forms the second sleeve of the black silk jacket, and appears at the waistline under the bolero hem. By night the embroidery marks a heightened waistline and a fitted silhouette.

THE NECKLINES, both back and front, are not extremely low and are on a widened V-shape.

Don't Marry a Man Because You Feel Sorry for Him

She doesn't love him, but he insists that he just can't live without her, and that if she doesn't say "yes," he'll simply end it all.

So—shall she marry him, in spite of the way she doesn't feel?

"I am so sorry for him!" she wails. "I just can't bear the thought of wrecking his life, or having him go out and do something desperate. But—"

What would you do, if you had a toothache like that hanging around?

"Dear Sally:

"Will you please give me some of your good advice? I need it so badly. I'm in what amounts to a big jam, and I don't know what to do about it. I am so unhappy and undecided that I can hardly sleep.

"Here's the story. About 10 months ago I met a young man and he began to ask me out. He was nice, and rather interesting, and I went, never taking it seriously at all, any more than I had taken seriously the other boys who asked me out. I just thought he was a good friend. Well, without realizing where it was leading, I began to see a good deal of him, until it seemed that every time I turned around, he was sitting on my doorstep.

"Now he is begging me to marry him. And that is where my big problem comes in, because I don't love him, and don't want to marry him. But he says that he just can't go on living if I don't, and that if I keep on saying 'No,' he will go out and end his life.

FEELS GUILTY

"I feel terrible about the whole affair. No one knows how terrible. He is a nice fellow. He has a good future ahead of him, I'm sure, if he keeps on going. But that is just what he insists he won't do, unless I consent to go with him, and I just can't bear the idea of being responsible for wrecking his life, or maybe causing him to commit suicide, as he says he will.

"I like him. He is interesting, and good company. I am terribly, terribly sorry for him. I feel guilty over allowing this to happen. I wish I could see him happy.

"What do you think I should do? Shall I go on and marry him, even if I don't feel that way about him? I am so afraid of what he may do, if I don't, that it is just driving me frantic. Do you think I would learn to love him, if I did marry him? Please help me. "CHLOE."

Should you marry him—because you're sorry for him?

No, honey. Never! You may think you'd be doing him a big favor—making him happy. But you're mistaken. It wouldn't work. Before the honeymoon had faded, you'd begin to hate him for using his weakness to bludgeon you into doing something you didn't want to do, and to despise him for that weakness—that unfairness.

REJECTION BEST

And he'd know just how you felt, no matter how hard you tried to conceal it. Then the smash would come. For he won't stop being weak, just because you marry him. He'll be far more apt to add petty spite to that weakness, when he finds he doesn't really own you, after all.

So tell him, now, kindly, but firmly, "No." That's the thing to do, little sister. And then stop seeing him. For there is one chance you can give him—the chance to get clear out of your life, where he'll get his balance back, and some day fall in love with somebody who'll love him.

As for wrecking his life, or driving him to suicide—don't worry. The chances are a hundred to one that when he finds he can't whine himself into your heart, he'll buck up and make a man of himself, just to show you what you've passed up.

And if he doesn't? If he does do "something desperate?" That isn't your funeral, honey.

If You Wed an Oldster He Has a Past, Fay King Warns

By FAY KING

When a young girl marries a man old enough to be her father she must realize that he has a past of some sort.

He either has a wife or wives, who are divorced or dead. Or he has had an affair that is known to his intimate friends. Or he has loved and lost, or failed to attract the one he loved and so remained unmarried.

Youth is the time of true romance, and no one escapes its magic.

One is not easily convinced that a marriage between youth and age is a true love match.

An old man's vanity to show that he can win a young wife, and a young girl's ambition for fame or position too often predominate.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Signing Off

When partners at the Bridge table find that they hold hands which are apparently misfits, the efforts to "sign off" frequently result in some of what the players believe are the master tragedies of Bridge. Before the full extent of the misfit is determined, the contract quite often is so high that a penalty instead of a premium is the inevitable result. Sometimes, however, this "signing off," which is generally earmarked by the rebidding of what can obviously not be a twice rebiddable suit, brings Fortune's smiles rather than frowns, as occurred in a recent championship tournament on the hand below:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ Q J 7 6 5 3 ♡ J 8 ◇ A 7 4 ♣ A 3

	♠ — ♡ A 10 7 6 5 ◇ J 3 ♣ K J 10 8 6 2

The bidding:

1—A weak hand to open, but justified in match-point play. North's hand suggests the possibility of at least a part-score, even though his partner has denied that he holds an Opening bid.

2—Not a sound Rebid, but better than two notrump, which would be the alternative.

3—Disclosing his second bidable suit.

4—Trying to close the contracting.

5—South, of course, cannot let the three-spade contract stand.

6—North reasons that while there is no prospect of making four hearts, neither is there a prospect of making four clubs, and if the partnership is to be lucky they might as well make the game as only part-score.

In the play of the hand five hearts were made, due to the fact that South guessed the location of the adverse hearts so well that he lost only a single heart trick. In the process of denial of each other's suits, North and South had by accident stumbled into the best result.

TODAY'S QUESTION

When the lead is in the closed hand and Declarer leads from Dummy and lead is called, Declarer having none of the suit is obliged to lead another card from own hand, does the card from Dummy's hand remain as card played and is a revoke penalty claimed by opponents?

Answer: No. The card led in error should be returned to the Dummy and Declarer must now lead a card of that suit from his own hand, if he holds one. Should the Declarer's hand be void of the suit, there is no penalty.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A 'Sentimental' Lady

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am going to have some new cards made. What size and stock should they be?

2—What do you think of shaded antique Roman?

3—Should there be small envelopes to match?

4—For what purpose is the folded card?

5—Personally, I like my salad as a separate course, but most restaurants serve it with the main course. Does one HAVE to use the salad fork in that case? It is quite awkward for me to keep two forks at work.

6—Sometimes an enormous spoon is served for the soup. Am I forgiven when I use a teaspoon instead? PUZZLED.

1—For your card an excellent size is 2⅞ inches long and 2 inches wide. It may be of the usual bristol board, or, if you prefer, of parchment. Parchment is more expensive . . . about a cent a card more. Either is correct. But avoid bizarre papers for your card, with curious grains in them, and so forth. If you wish to send me a sample of one you like, I'll be delighted to tell you if it is correct.

2—Shaded antique Roman is my favorite style of engraving for visiting cards, as well as for wedding invitations and other formal details that are to be engraved. It has dignity, charm, grace, and a certain youthful quality of which I am very fond. A shaded letter of this kind is more expensive than script, but script, too, is always correct. Have shaded antique Roman if you can.

3—Yes. Have some for your card, for you will always find them convenient.

4—Folded cards are extremely useful for all kinds of informal invitations, messages to be written and left or sent, and for a thousand and one other uses. You can use the same plate for these double cards that you use for the single card.

If you have your address in the lower right corner of your visiting card, you will find it even more helpful and useful. And this is especially useful for the double card.

5—We don't have to use the salad fork for the accompanying salad, but we really should do this. I am sure that you will not find it awkward after you have done this once or twice. It is much more attractive than using the same fork for the salad that you do for the meat.

6—If there is an extra teaspoon to be used, I suppose it will be all right if you use it, but I would advise you to accustom yourself to use the silverpiece that is placed for each item. It is accustomedness that makes us "cosmopolitan," you know, citizens of the world.

Furniture polish, well rubbed in, will remove the unsightly streaks that appear on the porch woodwork after washing.

Never rub soap directly upon knitted materials. Make a lukewarm soapsuds solution and wash them in it. Rinse in the same temperature clear water.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Watch Your Step' if You Don't Want Athlete's Foot

Athlete's foot is one of the most common of the skin ailments. The doctors, always seeking big words, call it epidermophytasis, but the disease is better known as ringworm. It is an infection caused by a parasite, and it may involve any part of the body.

Dr. Copeland

The first sign of ringworm is a flat, reddish spot on the skin. This enlarges, becomes paler in color in the center and forms the typical circular appearance. The ring is elevated, reddened and scaly, its outer border more pronounced and its inner border fading toward the center. The middle of the ring is pale pinkish, or it may be the color of the skin. The first ring persists for several days or even weeks before it disappears, then the trouble reappears elsewhere on the body.

When ringworm involves the feet it is spoken of as "athelete's foot," and this form of ringworm has become increasingly common within recent years.

It is a grave mistake to neglect any form of ringworm. More and more serious infection may result from improper treatment. The afflicted person becomes extremely ill. He may have chills, and a fever running as high as 104 degrees. In some cases, the foot infection may spread to the leg, involving the glands and skin of the body.

Athlete's foot is difficult to avoid, but if everyone knew how to prevent it the disease would not be as prevalent as it is today. Some authorities maintain that a shallow pool filled with a special antiseptic should be used after leaving any public swimming pool or shower.

Since this disease is usually contracted at bathing beaches, public pools and in gymnasiums, it is advised that no one walk about in these places without slippers. Proper sterilization of towels and bed sheets is important to prevent the spread of this infection.

When the disease is recognized, rapid cure can be obtained by the immediate application of the proper medicine, but a great deal of harm results from depending on home remedies. If you have contracted ringworm consult with your physician, and let him prescribe the necessary treatment.

Please bear in mind that ringworm is highly contagious. If you neglect it you are harming yourself and you may pass the infection to others. Protect yourself and your family by immediately receiving the proper and necessary treatment.

DUKES DRILL IN SECRET

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Ruth Has Lost Throne.
No Longer Playing King.
Pennock's Mound Craft.
Legion Excels Derby.
Cards Claim Priority.
Simms Back in Stride.

GEHRIG TOPS ALL PRESENT-DAY STARS

NO ONE DOUBTS the sincerity of Babe Ruth in the statement that he sees no reason why he should not play regularly in the outfield for the Yankees again next season. Everybody is pulling hard for him to reach his double goal of 20 years in the majors and 700 home runs. But Ruth can no longer reign as the playing king of the game he has long dominated. If the world series did nothing else it confirmed the general opinion that the Babe hasn't much farther to go. As he demonstrated in the third game, he can still ride the apple, but he has slowed down to a walk in the field and on the bases, can hardly bend his back for a ground ball, and as compared to the dashing athlete he used to be he is becoming just a tired old man.

Babe Ruth

The same series also dispelled all doubts, if any existed, as to the identity of Ruth's successor as the greatest player in baseball. Lou Gehrig is out in a class by himself, a mile ahead of Ruth and all the rest. As a matter of fact he has been there for some time, but the reputation of Ruth, and Lou's own complex that he could not hope to shine on the same field with his renowned teammate, kept his greatness from being generally recognized. But there is no doubt now of his right to be ranked at the top. Terrific hitting power, rare defensive skill, fighting spirit and durability, make Gehrig the greatest player of the present day, and one to be ranked with Ruth, Honus Wagner and Ty Cobb among the greatest four of all time. Super-star that he was, Ruth is no longer in Gehrig's class. Nor is anybody else now wearing spikes.

WORLD SERIES POST-MORTEMS are listing among the most surprising features the action of Joe McCarthy in rushing Wilcy Moore to the slab as his first relief choice in the final game in preference to Danny MacFayden, Walter Brown and others.

The old sinker-ball specialist was adjudged done when the Yanks sent him to the minors after the 1929 season, and this year he was cast aside even by the tail-end Red Sox, who obtained him for 1931 by draft. But Moore rewarded McCarthy's faith in him by doing one of the neatest pitching jobs of the series. In his five and one-third innings Wiley held the Cubs to two hits and one of them was a scratch. And, he was the only pitcher to make a hit in the series.

OLD HERB PENNOCK is supposed not to have a fast ball any more. He put that popular fancy to good use and capitalized on it by shooting one over on Rolly Hemsley in the closing title game.

It develops that Pennock spent two days building up that pitch. In the third game, he struck out Hemsley with three curve balls. In the fourth game he threw curves again for the first two strikes, and then, when Rolly was all set for another bender, Herb slipped over a fast one, Hemsley missing it with plenty to spare.

PENNOCK SAYS HIS success in fanning Hemsley with that swifter gave him the biggest thrill he has experienced in years. "My fast ball isn't so hot these days," he remarked. "I've got to build up a spot in which to use it. That's why it took me two days to get Hemsley ready for it by making him think I didn't have one. The only kick I ever got out of a world series game to compare with it was in 1914, my first series game. The Braves beat us four straight, mainly on the long hitting of Hank Gowdy. And I got a thrill when I slipped a fast one past Hank. But of course in those days I really had a fast one."

W. E. Benswanger

AFTER RETURNING FROM the American Legion baseball finals at Manchester, N. H., in August, President W. E. Benswanger, of the Pirates, praised the quality of ball played by the well-coached youngsters as being almost equal in science to that seen in the major leagues.

Now he gives it an even bigger boost after watching the Yankees and Cubs. "I saw more real baseball in a single game of the American Legion title round then I saw in the entire world series," he declared. "And I am not alone in that. Commissioner Landis and President Bradley, of the Cleveland club, said the same."

MAGNATES IN THE National League are getting a laugh out of a statement credited to an American Leaguer to the effect that the Cardinals ought to move out of St. Louis and play in Kansas City or elsewhere, as there is no room for them in the Mound City.

The National League had a club in St. Louis as early as 1885, and has been playing there without interruption since 1892. The American League did not enter that city until 1902, and broke in then as an independent invader. The feeling around the parent circuit is that if anybody moves it ought to be the Browns, even though they own the park where both clubs play their home games.

THOUGH NOTRE DAME'S opening game with Haskell at South Bend Saturday is considered merely a warm-up number, Assistant Coach Tommy Yarr told the Irish squad in a lecture the other day that the Indian team is much improved over the elevens of recent years and has several sensational gridders. Yarr scouted Haskell in the Creighton game, and says the Redskins completely outclassed their opponents. Tommy pronounces one of the Haskell backfield players, Bob Holmes, the best diminutive ball carrier he has seen, and he adds that this does not exclude Orville Mohler.

MANHATTAN COLLEGE, where Chick Meehan is coaching this fall, may not be any kind of championship contender for 1932, but it holds one record that will hardly be challenged by any other football eleven in the collegiate ranks. That is in the matter of distance it has to travel for its home games.

The Manhattan team may be said to be on the road even when it is playing at home. For all of the home games of Meehan's eleven are played at Ebbets Field, in Brooklyn, the baseball park of Max Carey's Dodgers and Ebbets Field is 13 miles from the Jasper college.

JIMMY SIMMS, speedy Pitt halfback, who hails from Monongahela and played a year at Kiski before entering the Oakland university, has taken a new lease of life, and to all appearances, is going to make Mike Nicksick, Burgettstown sophomore, work plenty hard to get back as Warren Heller's understudy.

Jimmy Simms

Last year, Simms started in doing relief work for Heller, but gradually lost his effectiveness and by mid-season was back on the third string, with Mel Brown taking over his job. This fall, Jimmy was shifted to the fifth string. Ahead of him were Brown, Howard O'Dell and Nicksick, the last-named tipped as a sure comer.

SIMMS STILL WAS in this obscure position the day before the first game, but when Nicksick went down with an infected foot and Brown suffered an ankle injury, Jimmy moved up a couple of notches. Heller started in the opener but was replaced by O'Dell, and then the latter had to be withdrawn on account of a split nose. This gave Simms his chance, and he picked up a couple of touchdowns in the curtain raiser. A week later, against West Virginia, he was used for almost the entire game and came through once more, tearing off a number of neat end runs and piling through center for several additional gains.

CLUB'S OWNER HINTS RETURN AS LEADER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—A hint that Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington American League Baseball Club, may himself succeed Walter Johnson as manager next year was given last night by Griffith.

Asked if he was considering returning as manager, Griffith said it was possible. He added:

"Only if I am unable to find the man I want will I take over the management myself."

STARTED IN 1912

Griffith came to Washington as manager in 1912. His comment added fuel to the speculative fires over who would succeed Johnson, who managed the team for the last four seasons. Griffith announced Tuesday Johnson would not be the 1933 manager.

Some talked of Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, while others thought it possible that Sam Rice, long a Senator fielder, might be the pilot.

It is felt in some quarters that Griffith follow the precedent established in naming young Bucky Harris some years ago and offer Joe Cronin, star shortstop, the post. The name of Harris, now manager of the Detroit Tigers, was also heard occasionally in the outpour of speculation.

ORIOLE RUMOR DENIED

Johnson, manager since 1929 and one of the game's best pitchers before he quit the ranks, had not returned to his home yesterday. Members of his family said he was still in Baltimore. There were rumors he might lead the Baltimore Orioles, of the International League, next year. This was denied, however, by club officials.

Both Judge and Rice have been with the team since 1915. The former until this year the club's regular first baseman, has been frequently spoken of as managerial timber. Cronin is only 26, but led the Senators on the field this year and his admirers say his aggressiveness turned many a close game.

FRITZ MAISEL DROPPED

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Charles H. Knapp, president of the Baltimore International League club, today announced the release of Fritz Maisel as manager. His successor was not announced. The Orioles finished second in the International League race this year. Maisel formerly played for the New York Yankees and St. Louis Browns.

A group of Pittsburgh players, Bill Regan, Frank Packard, Dick Goldberg and Dundee Rodgers, are members of the Baltimore club.

OCHS AND SULK KAYO VICTORS

One knockout at each show provided the thrills as amateur leather flingers swapped punches in a pair of boxing programs last night. Fast action, and furious, was on tap both at the Moose Temple, where the bouts were put on under the auspices of the Allegheny County Roosevelt-Garner Women's Club, and at the Duquesne Council, K. of C., in Oakland.

At the Moose, Johnny Ochs, of the Willow A. C., heavyweight, knocked out Johnny Schuster, of the Linwood A. C., in the first round. In the main bout, Al Quaill, of the Y. M. H. A., defeated Walter Marm, Pittsburgh Lyceum star, in three rounds at 147 pounds. Results of the other bouts follow:

125-pound class—Cherry Truski, Braddock Library, defeated Rich Ambrose, J. L. Thomas Club, 3 rounds.

147-pound class—Red Davison, Y. M. H. A., defeated Steve Kobeda, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds; Cliff Eubanks, unattached, defeated Floyd Pride, Pastorius A. C., 3 rounds; Al Quaill, Y. M. H. A., defeated Walter Marm, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds.

175-pound class—Eddie Nichols, Superior A. C., defeated Tubby Mills, Y. M. H. A., 3 rounds.

At the K. of C., Jimmy Sulk, also of the Willow Club, stopped J. Burke, of the Linwood A. C., in the second round. The men are 112-pounders. The results follow:

112-pound class—James Sulk, Willow A. C., knocked out J. Burke, Linwood A. C., second round.

118-pound class—Bob Kelly, Boys' Club, defeated G. Mesik, Cyclone A. C., 3 rounds; P. Wingo, Willow A. C., defeated J. Turpack, Cyclone A. C., 3 rounds; P. Campiello, unattached, defeated Gene Pier, Willow A. C., 3 rounds.

112-pound class—J. Schrider, Boys' Club, defeated C. Gallo, unattached, 3 rounds.

118-pound class—E. Katkish, Willow A. C., defeated W. Sweeney, Boys' Club, 3 rounds.

147-pound class—Art McGivern, Willow A. C., defeated F. Braedle, unattached, 3 rounds.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A YOUNG FATHER AT 102—John O'Brien, the nephew of an Oneida Indian chieftain, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Mass., in 1752, and was sent to Europe to be educated as a physician. Returning here at the age of 22 years, he joined Washington's Revolutionary Army as an assistant surgeon and served until the close of the Revolutionary War. He was wounded three times. In 1812, he again took the field against the British, and commanded a company of sharpshooters. In 1853, when O'Brien was 101 years old, he was received into the House of Industry at Moyamensing, accompanied by his wife and the five youngest children. He then was the father of 31 children, all living. The age of his oldest son was 80 years, while his youngest was only 8 months. My cartoon was drawn after an old daguerrotype, taken in 1854, when O'Brien, still active and vigorous, was 102 years old. A MILKING RECORD—Theo Rohrer, of Brawley, Cal., now 57 years old, has run up this remarkable record in 43 years of activity, during which he has followed his trade in France, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and, for the last 27 years, in America. Altogether, he has extracted 12,250,000 pounds of milk, from 788,400 cows. All of the milking was done by hand and Rohrer kept an accurate record of his activities.

INJURED GRID STAR GAINS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 6—(AP.)—Slight improvement was noted in the condition of Myron Ubl, Minnesota halfback, who lay critically ill as saddened teammates practiced for the opening Big Ten game.

Physicians said the change was due chiefly to increased blood pressure affecting heart action. They continued to assert recovery was doubtful.

From time to time yesterday coaches and players visited University Hospital to inquire about Ubl, who little more than two weeks ago scampered about the field with them.

Ubl first received a sternum fracture during practice. Then a cold developed, followed by pneumonia. Late last week an abscess formed near his lungs, and his condition became critical.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ubl, were at his bedside yesterday, but Ubl did not recognize them.

The father said "My," as friends call him, had insisted on playing football despite his objections and spurned his offer of complete university expense payment on condition he did not join the squad.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Cancellation of the Rooneys' game with the Portsmouth (O.) professional football team, scheduled at Greenlee Field, next week, means that the local fans will not get an opportunity to see Dutch Clark, of the pros, in action . . . Dutch is the young man who was selected by an Associated Press poll over Howard Harpster, of Carnegie Tech, as the all-America quarterback in 1928 . . . Up to that time his name was almost unknown in the East, but he has justified his rating as a top-notch player by his work as a professional ever since . . . The football season is gradually entering upon more interesting stages . . . Herb McCracken's Lafayette team plays Dartmouth next Saturday, and next week sees Pitt play the Army at West Point, Carnegie Tech opposing W. & J. at the Pitt Stadium, Cornell meeting Princeton, Dartmouth playing Penn, Penn State invading Cambridge to play Harvard, Michigan playing Ohio State, Minnesota meeting Nebraska, West Virginia University taking on West Virginia Wesleyan and Yale playing Brown.

In addition to winning the team title of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, the P. A. A. players had a big season of individual conquest this year . . . Dr. John O'Loughlin holds the Westmoreland County, Western Maryland, Stanton Heights invitation and Morgantown Country Club invitation singles titles; holds the West Penn men's doubles title with B. F. Arkle, of Wheeling, and Allegheny Country Club invitation doubles title with Dave O'Loughlin; holds the Western Maryland mixed doubles title with Margaret Carspecken, of Morgantown; was runner-up to Arkle for the West Penn singles title, this being his only singles defeat of the year, and was the runner-up with Paul Barber, of Sewickley, to Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman for the Westmoreland doubles title.

Dave O'Loughlin was defeated by Arkle in the West Penn semi-finals and by John O'Loughlin in the Stanton Heights invitation finals; won the Allegheny Country Club invitation doubles, with John O'Loughlin; was the runner-up, with Dr. W. S. McElroy, of the P. A. A., to John O'Loughlin and Arkle in the West Penn doubles and to Broida and Goodman in the Fox Chapel invitation doubles, and represented Pittsburgh in the National singles at Forest Hills, where he was defeated by Takeo Kuwabara, the Japanese Davis Cup star.

Billy O'Loughlin is the holder of Southern Pennsylvania singles title; was defeated by Frankie Parker in the Ohio State semi-finals, by Frank Smith in the Westmoreland County semi-finals and by Bill Abrams in the Wheeling Park invitation semi-finals; represented the University of Pittsburgh in the National Intercollegiate championships; holds the Southern Pennsylvania doubles title, with Paul Sullivan, and, with Sullivan, was the runner-up to Broida and Edgar Alcorn for the Western Maryland doubles title and a semi-finalist in the Wheeling Park invitation doubles. He also represented Pittsburgh in the United States Inter-City doubles, wherein he was eliminated by the ultimate winners, Frankie Parker and George Reindel, of Detroit.—HARRY KECK.

Defending Champ Semi-Final Victim

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Shooting par-golf the greater part of the way, despite a heavy rain and a soaked course, David N. Tallman, of Minneapolis, defeated Merrill M. Lord, of Chicago, defending champion, 4 to 3, in the semi-finals of the annual Greenbrier autumn tournament yesterday.

F. S. Wilcox, Jr., of Wilmington, Del., was forced to go an extra hole to defeat T. H. Summerville, of Charlottsville, Va. In the other semi-final match, the regular 18 was finished at 74, Wilcox carding 5 on the extra and Summerville 6.

TECH IMPROVES OFFENSIVE

"So that is a sample of Carnegie Tech's guards, is it?

So spoke an onlooker at Carnegie's practice in the Tartan Bowl yesterday afternoon, an onlooker who had been onlookin' at college football practices since eggs were cheap.

Then replied Der Maxie Hannum, Tech's publicity director, who as usual was standing around doing nothing but worrying about how he was going to get caught up with his work. Maxie piped:

"That's not a A sample—that is THE Sample."

The boys were referring to the antics of Carnegie's crack line star, Co-Capt. Hooks Sample, who rates with the line elite of the East. Hooks was dashing about the field in great fashion, leading the Tech varsity as its offensive was being checked by Coach Bob Waddell. He was doing his blocking and clipping the way blocking and clipping should be done and he so inspired the rest of the team that Coach Waddell was tickled silly with the improved showing of the eleven following a two-hour session.

The Skibos ostensibly are preparing for their game this Saturday in Cleveland with Western Reserve, but they also are looking forward to next week's clash with Wash-Jeff. Tech figures to win the Reserve game hands down—feet, too, and it is Coach Waddell's hope to get a good look at most of his replacement material. If the Plaid gets an early enough, and large enough, lead, Tom Coulter, the track star, who turned out for football this fall, as well as several of the younger linemen who did not lay against Geneva, will be used.

Western Reserve, putting in its second year under the coaching hand of Tom Keady, former U. S. Marine mentor, is expected to put up a pretty stiff argument.—JESS CARVER.

LEWIS STOPS LENHART

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—John Henry Lewis, sensational Negro light-heavyweight from Prescott, Ariz., added another victory to his string here last night as he stopped Fred Lenhart, of Tacoma, Wash., in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Lenhart received a bad cut above his left eye before the referee halted the bout.

RIVAL ELEVENS WORK WITH WET BALL

By JESS CARVER

Sons of old Duquesne ask for but little here on earth, but they'd certainly be tickled silly if they could have a football victory over Pitt flipped into their laps Sat'day afternoon. The longing for such a triumph increases as the chances of such a yen being fulfilled decrease, or rather as the Red and Blue supporters awaken more and more to the stark realization that their Dukes are going to have very little show against Pitt.

Johnny Luch

Preparations for Saturday's tussle in the rival camp are moving along methodically. The Panthers are going about their drills in a businesslike fashion. Coach Sutherland does not intend to be caught napping, and is priming his Panthers for an afternoon of serious football. Coach Layden is laboring on his defense and checking carefully all parts of his attack.

WORK IN SECRET

So determined are the Duquesne mentors to have their team's defensive cogs in perfect working order that night sessions in the gymnasium have been ordered. There was one last night, there will be another tonight and still another tomorrow. These night workouts, away from all prying eyes, stood the Red and Blue in good stead as it prepped for the West Virginia tussle.

Both Panther and Duquesne squads were afforded excellent opportunity to play with a slippery ball and become accustomed to a wet field yesterday. In the event the rain continues, the teams will be ready for an afternoon of play with treacherous footing and a slithery pigskin Saturday. A wet field will affect both attacks, particularly the aerial games, although it will be remembered that Pitt passed the Army to death on a very wet afternoon last November.

A gent who is liable to have a big afternoon in the Pitt-Duquesne game is Johnny Luch, Pitt's 195-pound fullback. Luch was going like a house on fire, yea, like a whole block of houses, all on fire, during Pitt's training camp, when he was stricken with an attack of appendicitis. He was out of the Ohio Northern game, but broke into the lineup against West Virginia and turned in a niftyperformance.

LUCH HARD HITTER

While Johnny was in the hospital, the two young sophomore fullbacks, Izzy Weinstock and Heinie Weisenbaugh, swiped his job. Weinstock in turn, grabbed the starting assignment from Heinie, and will be the No. 4 man in the backfield Saturday, at least at the start. But if the game goes as it figures to, Coach Sutherland will be able to shoot in his replacements, and it will not be surprising if he puts Luch back there ahead of Weisenbaugh. Luch's pounding will not do the Duquesne line any too much good. In fact, when he's hitting right, he does not figure to improve the well-being of any line.

There isn't a college eleven in the land, barring possibly Notre Dame, as well off as Pitt for fullbacks, for after you get past Weinstock, Weisenbaugh and Luch, you have Gelini, who went so well against the Mountaineers, and the pummeling little Nick Klisky, former North Braddock star.

The Tipoff

Notre Dame has a soft one for its opening game of the season, as the Irish meet Haskell's Indians at South Bend Saturday afternoon. When the game was booked, the Redmen were big-timers. That was back in 1930, when Knute Rockne erased Drake from the N. D. card and substituted Haskell. Since that time, however, the Indian institution has sented down its scholastic standing to that of a high school, and its players are correspondingly younger and smaller.

Lone Star Deitz, Haskell coach, former associate of Pop Warner at Carlisle where he picked up a bag full of tricks, has a

GRIDDER DIES

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Injured internally September 21 while practicing with the Columbia Heights High School football squad, George C. Dunbar, 17, of Columbia Heights, a suburb, died at a hospital here yesterday.

BEAVER FALLS HIGH CONTENDER FOR CLASS A TITLE

HECKATHORNE'S GRID ELEVEN UNBEATEN

By JULIUS LEVIN

Beaver Falls High School, for years a prominent contender for championships of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League, looms as one of the foremost challengers for the Class A football throne, abdicated by Clairton High, which is competing for the Double A Conference crown this season.

Howard Heckathorne, coach at Beaver Falls, has a veteran team at his disposal this season. Last year Beaver Falls played a tough schedule of 10 games, losing only one. Midland High, which finished second in the race for the Class A title in 1931, was the only school to defeat Beaver Falls. The score was 13-0.

The valley gridders were the only ones to score a victory over New Kensington, this defeat ruining the Glockmen's chances for the W. P. I. A. L. crown. The Beaver Falls record for 1931 follows:

Beaver Falls	6	Alumni	0
Beaver Falls	21	Allegheny	0
Beaver Falls	13	Grove City	0
Beaver Falls	18	Ellwood City	0
Beaver Falls	0	Midland	13
Beaver Falls	20	Rochester	6
Beaver Falls	6	Butler	0
Beaver Falls	12	Ken High	0
Beaver Falls	12	Monaca	0
Beaver Falls	13	New Brighton	12
	121		31

Starting the present campaign with a 14-0 victory over an alumni eleven, the Heckathorne machine has displayed more power with each game.

The valley machine already holds two victories over Class A opponents, Beaver bowing, 19-0, and Braddock, 13-0. Beaver Falls will play its third Class A opponent Saturday afternoon, when Ellwood City is met at Beaver Falls.

School Notes

Bill Donohue, former Edgewood High and Carnegie Tech star, is driving his Central Catholic High eleven for its battle with St. Mary's of the Mount High at Olympic Park tomorrow. John McGrath, left end, is captain of the team. Central Catholic will meet Munhall at Frazier Field a week from tomorrow.

William Stapulis, star fullback of the California High eleven, who was injured in the game with Donora last Saturday, is lost to the team indefinitely. He will be unable to play against Waynesburg next Saturday, and may miss the Ambridge game the following week. Kennedy, who has been playing at end, is being groomed to fill the post.

The fact the Uniontown High upset Clairton, Class A champion of 1931, last Saturday has not detracted in the least from interest in the Washington-Clairton game at Washington next Saturday. Bill Cox, coach at Washington, believes the Woodmanmen are too much to defeat now that their winning streak has been shattered. The Little Presidents are working hard for this contest.

The return of Michaelosen to the Ambridge lineup has bolstered the Bridgers for the important battles remaining on the schedule. This boy stands out among the leading stars in the Beaver valley.

Zears Miles, crack Negro blocking halfback of the Vandergrift eleven, is attracting quite a bit of attention in the Allegheny Valley. He played a whale of a game against Butler.

The hopes of South High to win the Section I championship in the City League depend on its showing against Taylor Allderdice at Langley Field tomorrow. If the Washabaugh boys pass this hurdle successfully they stand a good chance of winning the title.

Another "natural" in Section I, of the City League, is the battle between Peabody and Westinghouse at Westinghouse. Both teams have made impressive showings this season. Peabody is the favorite.

The W. P. I. A. L. plans to enforce the rule whereby assistant coaches must be members of the faculty. Schools have been warned to see that the rule governing games with non-league teams, which do not come up to requirements, also must be enforced.

Dick Shumacher has his Carnegie High eleven on edge for the battle with Bridgeville High tomorrow at Carnegie. Carnegie bolstered its stock with a victory over Canonsburg.

Foxx and Cochrane Barely Catch Liner

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Jimmy Foxx and Gorden S. (Mickey) Cochrane, Philadelphia Athletic baseball players, almost missed a boat for Honolulu here yesterday.

Foxx and Cochrane, accompanied by their wives, arrived at Oakland Airport from Los Angeles as the liner Maui, on which they had booked passage, was on the point of sailing.

Another airplane was pressed into service to bring the baseball stars and their wives across San Francisco Bay. The quick hop was followed by a taxicab dash which ended at the liner's gangplank just as it was being drawn away.

HARNESS RACES POSTPONED

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 6.—An attempt will be made to run off the A. M. A. track and field events in connection with the Burgettstown Fair tomorrow. The program was washed out by rain yesterday with the exception of the 10-mile senior title run, which was won by Anthony Mazzei, of the University of Pittsburgh, in 57 minutes 36 seconds.

The race was run under most unfavorable conditions. A field of nine started, of whom eight finished. William Greig, of Jeannette, was second. Others finished in the following order:

Southwell, Gaines, DeMarco, Beno, McDeni.

In a football game played on the muddy field, Union High School, of Burgettstown, suffered a 6-0 defeat by East Huntingdon Township when Zelina, the visiting fullback, intercepted a Burgettstown fumble before it struck the ground and raced 80 yards for the only tally.

Three harness racing events, 2:24 trot, 2:16 pace and free-for-all, scheduled today, have been set back until tomorrow. Yesterday's football lineup:

Union—0.		East Hunt—6.
Karzk	L. E.	Zadylak

PREXIES PRIMED FOR DETROIT

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 6.—Coach Leroy P. Day will take a squad of 24 to 28 players to Detroit, it was announced here today. The Presidents depart tomorrow evening, the game being scheduled for under the lights Friday night. The change in policy was due to the fact that Coach Day desires to have as much time as possible to correct faults disclosed in the opening game against Wesleyan.

Coach Day refused to offer any predictions as to the outcome of the encounter with Detroit. Scouts report the Dorais' team as one of great power and the Presidents are anticipating that the game will be one of their hardest of the entire season.

Whether or not W. & J. will be able to present its full strength is problematical. Rhodes, stalwart and brilliant tackle, may be on the bench as a result of hurts received in the opening game. He is hopeful, however, of being able to start King, sophomore fullback, who has shown to advantage, also is a cripple and may not be used.

BOJARSKI BACK TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

They're going to have another try at making a go of boxing in McKeesport tonight, when Jim McGirr offers a really good card at prices in keeping with the times.

Jim opened the indoor season several weeks ago, but it seems the occasion was more or less of a secret, or the fans didn't have any money, judging from the manner in which they managed to stay away, so McGirr thought he really ought to give them another chance, and here it is.

Frankie Bojarski, Erie southpaw body puncher, meets Ray Van Hook, of Pontiac, Mich., who has been in there with Roger Bernard and other good ones, in the 10-round windup. Gene Moretti, of Atlantic City, back here after an absence of two years, goes to the post against Paul Oger, of Moundsville, W. Va., in the six-round semi-final, and there will be three four-round bouts, with Al Waldecker, of Tarentum, boxing Al Conrad, of Duquesne; Hal Finney, of the Hill, meeting Billy Schweitzer, of Ambridge, and Eddie Shenn, of Turtle Creek, engaging Tiger Joe Hughes, of Duquesne. The first bout is listed for 8:30 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Lew Raymond, matchmaker of the Arena, is angling for a good opponent for George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, within a few weeks. He also plans to use the winner of tomorrow's Johnny Datto-Lew Massey bout against Battling Gizzy.

The Mirador Orchestra will greet the fans with sweet strains from 2 o'clock until the first bout gets under way on fight nights at the Arena. After that the fighters will have to provide their own music if they want to waltz.

The operation on Al Becker's broken right elbow has been postponed until next week. A nice lucky egg is Albert. He had just come back from a long layoff because of a broken thumb when he cracked the elbow, and it looks like a four months' layoff now.

Kid Dugan, former Kansas City bantamweight, who fought Newsboy Brown, Joey Schwartz, Biff Gormans, Jackie Sharkey, Harry Dublinsky, Kid Pancho and Tiger Joe Herman, among others, but now is retired from the ring, is making Pittsburgh his home.

When the Boxing Commission reinstated George Godfrey in Pennsylvania yesterday it was the second time within a year that the ban was lifted on him by the board, but the first time it didn't stick, being plastered on again almost immediately. The suspension was for fouling Primo Carnera in their battle in Philadelphia two years ago. Carnera still is under suspension.

Ebbets Field Bouts Set Back Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—A charity boxing card scheduled at Ebbets Field last night, headed by a non-title 10-round bout between Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, and Frankie Petrolle, was postponed until October 12 because of threatening weather.

Maxie Rosenbloom, recognized here as light heavyweight titleholder, was scheduled to meet Marty Sampson in a non-title 10-round semi-final on the same card.

Fight Results

At San Francisco—John Henry Lewis won by a technical knockout over Fred Lennari, 4 rounds.

At Seattle—Andy Bundy defeated Rodolfo Tazlia, 6 rounds.

At Huntington—Johnny Roberts won by a technical knockout over Buddy McArthur, 7 rounds; K. O. Terry defeated Benny McArthur, 8 rounds; Custer Perry knocked out Tony Lagore, 3 rounds; Frankie Reilly defeated Howard Smith, 6 rounds.

BOOTH TO STAY AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Albie Booth, Yale's football star of the past three seasons, will remain to assist in coaching here, it was evident today when he announced that he had received no direct offer to coach the University of Mexico football team.

Booth denied that he had received even an indirect offer to go to Mexico, pointing out that he is under contract with the Yale Athletic Association.

Reports yesterday were that the University of Mexico, seeking Booth as coach, had sought the assistance of Harry F. Sinclair, oil man and benefactor of the university, Sinclair last year paid for the coaching services of Reginald Root, former Yale player.

SOUGHT BY MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6.—(INS.)—Reports that Albie Booth, mighty atom of collegiate football, may come to Mexico this fall to coach the University of Mexico team, were partly confirmed today by Reynaldo Horcasitas, manager. He said:

"We are hoping that arrangements will go through."

Syracuse Ice Team Gets Earl Miller

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The return of Benny Grant, goal tender, to the International League Syracuse Stars for the 1932-33 season by the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League, was announced today by the Syracuse Hockey Club.

Along with Grant in the first deal between the two clubs for the season came five other players. They are: Earl Miller, experienced at left wing and center, who has played with the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and the Chicago Black Hawks as well as having been a member of the Maple Leafs for the greater part of last year; Fred Robertson, a big defense man; Bill Thoms and Frank Boll, who saw brief service with the Stars last year, and Sandy Sande, a youngster just out of the amateur ranks in Canada.

Roberts Captures W. Va. Ring Title

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Johnny Roberts, 167, of Huntington, was named light heavyweight champion of West Virginia last night when he won by a technical knockout over Buddy McArthur, 175, of Fairmont, in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round main go here.

McArthur failed to come out of his corner for the eighth round.

In the eight-round semi-final K. O. Terry, 136, of Huntington, outpointed Benny McArthur, 136½, of Fairmont. In two six-round preliminaries, Custer Perry, of Williamson, knocked out Tony Lagore, of Charleston, in the third, and Frankie Reilly, of Fairmont, took the decision from Howard Smith, of Huntington.

W. Va. Eleven Off For Temple Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 6.—West Virginia University's varsity football squad, which is to meet Temple tomorrow night, departed this morning for Philadelphia, and will arrive there at 5:20 p. m.

Practice will be held this evening in the Temple University Stadium.

In his effort to find a smooth backfield combination it is thought that Neale might use Jimmy Scott at quarterback, Marker and Canich at halves and Allen at fullback. In the last workout here before leaving the Mountaineer mentor used Scott at quarter, calling signals in huddle.

BEARS VICTORS AFTER ROW

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Newark's Bears drove into the lead in the little world series by winning the fifth game yesterday, 12 to 9, but it took 40 minutes of argument and a ninth-inning home run and Minneapolis announced plans to file a protest.

Harry Rice, centerfielder for the Minneapolis champions of the American Association, provided the point for debate in the first half of the ninth inning after two Newark batters were out with the score tied at 8 to 8. Johnny Neun, Newark first sacker, drove a short fly toward Rice, who came in fast and dived as the ball neared the ground.

Whether Rice caught the ball was the argued point, but it was certain that after rolling about he arose with the ball in his hand. Umpire Johnston, at third base, ruled that the ball had been caught.

Newark protested and Umpire Carroll, at second base, supported their contention that Rice had not caught the ball. The decision was reversed, then switched again, and then Umpire Bill Summers, at home plate, called a conference of the arbiters. It was decided that the ball had not been caught before touching the ground and as a result of another uproar, led this time by the Millers, Manager Donie Bush and Rice were ordered from field.

With Saltzgaver's run then accredited, Red Rolfe hit a home run over the right field fence, scoring Hargreaves and Neun, putting his team in the lead, 12 to 8.

A Miller rally in the last of the ninth was cut to one run when the fourth Newark pitcher of the day, Johnny Murphy, bore down.

Minneapolis presented its protest at a meeting of the advisory council last night, but lost out when only two members of that body, ordinarily consisting of three, were present and disagreed as definitely as the players and fans did during the day.

Weiner and Hall Win In Tourney

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Sandy Wiener, of Philadelphia turned in a 6-1, 6-2 decision over Durand Smith, of Chicago yesterday to advance as a favorite in the Hot Springs fall tennis tournament.

In one of the best played matches of the day, Miss Ellen Bates, of St. Louis, defeated Miss Thea Masslacher, of New York, 10-8, 7-5. Miss Abbie Sard, of Washington, D. C., won from Mrs. John T. Pirie, Jr., of Chicago, by default.

J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., made a successful start in defense of his crown by defeating Richard Stevens, of New York, 6-2, 6-3.

SHOOT ON TODAY

The Western Pennsylvania Trapshooters' League is holding a post-season shoot at the Wilkinsburg Gun Club this afternoon. Two events are on the program, a 100-bird shoot and a handicap shoot.

GOALIE ROACH PURCHASED BY FALCONS

DETROIT, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The Detroit Falcons' management has purchased Goalie John Ross Roach from the New York Rangers.

It was a cash deal and the price was $11,000.

Roach, considered one of the best goalies in the National Hockey League, will replace Alex Connell between the posts for the Falcons. Connell goes back to Ottawa this season along with Hec Kilrea, Danny Cox and Alex Smith.

At the same time, the Falcon management has announced that negotiations are in progress for acquisition of a left winger to replace Kilrea, although the possibility has been seen that Herb Lewis may go back to the flank position, teaming with Ebbie Goodfellow and Larry Aurie on one of the front lines.

Roach has had a long and colorful career in professional hockey. He quit the Toronto Granites early in the 1921-22 season to make his professional debut with the Toronto St. Patricks and was the regular goal tender for Toronto until the fall of 1928, when he was traded to the Rangers for Lorne Chabot.

OAKMONT BIDS FOR TOURNEY

The Oakmont Country Club has put in a bid for the 1934 Lesley Cup matches, involving teams from Pennsylvania, the New York Metropolitan district and Massachusetts and Canada and if plans now being formulated go through, the local club will get the event. This was made known here today by George H. Flinn, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Golf Association. The matches next year will be played at Montreal.

The competition, which had its inception 28 years ago, never has been staged in Pittsburgh.

In the final P. S. G. A. one-day tourney of the season at Edgewood yesterday, Flinn led a small field which braved the rain and cold and trapsed over a sodden course with a gross 82. Knox Young, Jr., and Joe Royston, Jr., both of Highland, tied for second with 83s.

The low net prize was taken down by J. Hutchings, of Shannopin, who had a 71. Another Shannopin entry, T. Thomas, was second with a 74.

Twenty Grand Loses In Comeback

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Twenty Grand, making the second start of his comeback campaign, was defeated by the lightly regarded C. V. Whitney's Mad Frump in the 1 1-16-mile Annapolis handicap at Laurel yesterday.

The 4-year-old son of St. Germans from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable which was forced out of competition by a leg ailment last fall and only recently returned to the races, pulled up lame after finishing second, beaten a length and a half. The third award in the field of six went to Samuel Riddle's War Hero.

age averaging only 175 pounds, and a backfield that will go about 165. The oldest member of the squad is 21 years of age, the youngest, 17. Lone Star hasn't given up hope, of course, although even the most rabid Hashed partisan admits the Irish will win under wraps.

Though it may have lost much of its former prestige, Hasket still has its Brazzle with terrible names. Among the Indians who will start against Notre Dame will be Knocks Off Two, Whirlwind Soldier, His Enemy, Brave Heart, Charging Bull, Jumping Panther, Hungry Bull and Tomahawk. A new ball tater, whom Delts hopes will take the place of the famous Louis (Little Rabbit) Weiler, will be at halfback, He is Robert (Bob Bird) Holmes, a 185-pound Ottawa brave from Oklahoma. He is the baby the Irish must watch.

Speaking of fast halfbacks, the Dukes have a pair they'll toss at the Pitt Panthers Saturday in Al DeLuca and Jim McDonald. DeLuca, fast enough for most any team, is excelled when it comes to putting 'em down and pickin' 'em up by McDonald. All the sophomore star needs to learn is to cut correctly. He'd better cut Saturday—it will be a case of cut or be cut—down.

A high spot of the Pitt-Duquesne game will be the first time Ed Sullivan is called upon to handle a punt against the Panthers. The Pitt linemen get down the field plenty fast under those kicks. Men such as Cuba Daley, Ondef Ormes and Hartwig are fast as linebackers, and they are deadly tacklers. Sullivan is a good man to have back, and he handles kicks well, but he faces his greatest test Saturday.

The Yale Daily News, the Old Eli student publication, has come out with a rap against pushover and setup football games. Harvard beat Yale 7 to 0 in the fall of 1931, the Harvard Crimson taking a sock at the Harvard-Buffalo of last week, which Harvard won by two miles and a half. Yale, playing what the Blue figured was a setup, wound up in a scoreless tie with Bates.

MOHLER SAFE AFTER CRASH

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Orville Mohler, University of Southern California star quarterback, escaped injury yesterday when the airplane he was piloting crashed shortly after his takeoff from an airport here.

The Trojan gridder and student body president had flown here to address students of the San Bernardino Valley Union Junior College, and was preparing to return to Los Angeles for his afternoon practice session when the accident happened.

Mohler has been a licensed pilot for almost a year. He is studying aeronautical engineering in school.

CASEY FAVORS RAMS, LIONS, PANTHERS

By EDDIE CASEY
Member All-America Board of Football (Pres. U. S. Patent Office)

The first Saturday in October provided many upsets in college football, and if that is any criterion as to what the rest of the season will provide, then we are in for a year of great surprises.

Eddie Casey

Who ever thought that the little college of Bates, from up in Maine, would hold the mighty Yale Bulldog to a tie score? And, for that matter, if there were any edge in this game it belongs to the Maine Staters.

Then there was little Niagara, which succeeded in holding the mighty Cornell team to 7 points. So it is very evident that the smallest eleven may at any time upset the idea any of us may have about the possible champion of the current year.

And down at Annapolis the Navy team tasted defeat in its game with William and Mary. You may be sure that on a lot of football fields this week teams and coaches will be working overtime to elminate mistakes and faults of last week.

The coming Saturday is apt to provide more upsets than what we saw last week. There are some games that are of real championship caliber, and in picking a winner anybody's guess is as good as the next fellow.

For example, in perhaps the most outstanding game of October 8, there is Princeton and Columbia engaging for the first time in New York.

COLUMBIA FAVORED

Who would you pick to win? Because of the fact that Crisler, the new coach at Princeton, has not had a great deal of time to develop his offense, and because Lou Little, at Columbia, has a somewhat veteran team schooled for two years in his system, I am picking Columbia to win. I think this game will be a standout next Saturday, and one in which the football fan will see some great plays. You may be sure it will be no runaway for either team.

Stagg's University of Chicago team is coming to New Haven to renew its rivalry with the Yale team. Last year the Blue won rather handily in Chicago, but I think this year's Chicago team is a much better outfit. Regardless of Chicago's strength, I think Yale will win by at least two touchdowns. The Blue will have a few more veterans back this week who were held out pending examinations u pto now, and these men will help considerably.

PITT PICKED TO WIN

Fordham and Bucknell last year furnished one of the most thrilling games of the season, and this season it again will be one of the high spots. Bucknell was victorious by a point in 1931, but this year I believe the Fordham boys will be on top. Maj. Cavanaugh undoubtedly is pointing for this game, and Fordham will go in there full strength to avenge last year's defeat.

Dartmouth and Lafayette at Hanover should provide a real good football game on Saturday. The Dartmouth attack has been changed from what was used last year and they are developing slowly. However, the man power of the squad is excellent and I look to see them beat Lafayette.

Pittsburgh is rolling along on high and should defeat Duquesne and Penn State, I think, this year will take Waynesburg.

Big Finance Guns Silent For Present

By B. C. FORBES

FINANCIAL LEADERS lately have pulled in their horns. They have suspended their aggressive upbuilding activities because of current political uncertainties and distractions. They are not throwing investments or stocks overboard; they are simply standing on the sidelines awaiting developments.

Mr. Forbes

There are two main schools of thought in high financial circles concerning the probable effect of the election results on business. One is that a change in the administration would produce months of unsettlement. The other was thus summed up for this column by one investment banker:

"Everything has been pressed down so far for so long that nothing can very well knock things still lower. You must have noticed that unfavorable news has produced very little effect during the last two months.

"Very few people in the financial world, even the most ardent Republicans, really fear that Franklin Roosevelt, if elected, would do anything very terrible. The security markets, the farm commodity markets, the raw material markets all have been giving indications that they want to to rise rather than relapse to new low levels."

If things can be kept on a reasonably even keel until the political clouds clear, that would be enough to satisfy all but irrational bulls.

JOHN W. PRENTISS, whose firm of Hornblower & Weeks has all along escaped troubles such as befell many houses that became too venturesome promotionwise, remarked to me:

"You hear a lot about Wall street and its dangers. Did you ever stop to think that no bank ever was burst because of lending to recognized Wall street firms on stock exchange collateral? If all bank loans had stood up as well as, for example, brokers' loans, the country would not have been afflicted with so much banking trouble."

Curious—pathetic—isn't it, that the very class of loan which had always been regarded as the choicest and most conservative, has proved the most unsatisfactory during recent years, namely, loans on farms and on other forms of real estate?

One explanation doubtless is that, mainly through political motives, it has been made too easy for farmers to get deeply into debt. It was not always so. Too much credit can prove just as fatal as too little credit.

James Stillman, who built up the National City Bank of New York, was addicted to turning down applicants for loans by admonishing them:

"What you need is not more debt, but more capital."

How to accumulate adequate capital these days is the rub.

Paramount Studios Using More Power

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Paramount studios today reported its consumption of electricity in September was the greatest at any time in the 21-year history of the studio.

The number of kilowatt hours recorded is one of the principal barometers of business conditions at studios. During September 746,000 kilowatt hours was recorded. The previous peak, in 1931, was 350,000. The employment of 205 electricians was the largest since 1928.

STOCKS SLIDE AFTER EARLY UPSWING

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The stock market tried to recover for a time today, but renewed weakness in wheat brought fresh selling in shares in the early afternoon.

The selling of the previous session appeared to have dried up in the morning, and after some hesitancy, the list managed to work a little higher, but the downturn in wheat brought selling into the farm implements, which proved unsettling. The further selling, however, was in moderate volume.

J. I. Case broke about 3 points, in extension of the 8-point loss of the previous session, and International Harvester lost about 2 points. Issues pulled down 1 to 1½ points under yesterday's final levels included several of the rails, notably Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and Northern Pacific, United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Montgomery Ward and Johns Manville. During the morning, most of these issues had registered temporary advances of a point or so.

Wall stret was still in a confused state of mind over the immediate outlook for the share market. Corporate or industrial news was meager, and traders appeared to be chiefly concerned for the moment over the market's internal position. It was felt in some quarters that recent bullish activity had attracted considerable weak buying, but some observers felt that yesterdays setback may have cleaned out much of this weakly held stock. It was also pointed out that the technical position may have been helped by recent short selling.

The quarterly statements of the larger Wall street banks were regarded favorably, most of them showing substantial increases in deposits. Bradstreets weekly report of bank clearings in 47 leading cities showed a gain of about 25 per cent over the previous week, and, while this was largely due to month-end and quarterly settlements, this agency found that the increase was more than seasonal, and "reflects some of the improvement witnessed in various lines of trade and industry recently."

CHAPIN NOTES TRADE GAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Secretary of Commerce Chapin said the general business situation showed many gains and the increase in business from August to September was probably 3 to 4 per cent greater than normal seasonal expectations.

The secretary said in a press conference that one of the most helpful developments since the upward business movement began has been the appreciation in commodity prices, particularly of farm and food products.

He said the advances have been confined largely to consumer goods, industries such as textiles, leather and food processing, with the heavy industries displaying a tendency to lag.

The Secretary said preliminary figures for September indicated the downward movement in construction contracts awarded had been checked, at least temporarily, and although the changes in the general economic situation registered thus far continue spotty they offer a basis for genuine encouragement.

He added that production, distribution and sale of goods have been in greater volume during September than in August.

WHEAT LOWEST SINCE JULY

CHICAGO, Oct. 6. — Wheat prices today touched the lowest level since July 26. An accumulation of overnight selling orders was chiefly responsible. Opening ½@⅝ down, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ½ lower and later rallied.

Ready absorption of wheat offerings on the early setback of prices brought about recoveries to around yesterday's finish. On the upturn, however, buyers became scarce, and the market again tended to sag. Simultaneous with the rally, rumors were current that a deal had been definitely closed by which China would purchase 15,000,000 bushels of wheat on credit, with Reconstruction Finance Corporation backing.

Coal Industry Fails To Find Solution Of Troubles

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE COAL INDUSTRY still remains at sea in its efforts to find a solution to its competitive troubles. Several months ago the plan to form regional sales organizations to market the output of all mines was hailed by many coal producers as the logical bar against the cut throat competition which has been oppressing the coal trade for many years.

It was thought that the sales of each district could be handled by single marketing organizations. Instead of many Pittsburgh mines competing for business, a single sales force would handle the output of all the producers in the district. Competition, instead of being a struggle between hundreds of individual mines, would be a contest between the sales organizations of the various districts.

The plan was upheld by most of the dominant organizations in the coal industry, although it did not have unanimous approval. Some producers felt that all the companies could not receive equitable treatment under such an arrangement and did not support the idea.

Thought Federal Trade Laws Avoided

TO TEST THE status of the plan under Federal Trade Laws, the West Virginia coal operators formed Appalachian Coals, Inc., as their regional sales representative. The organization did not engage actively in business except to undertake a few transactions to provide a basis for a test case.

The Federal Court has ruled that the organization conflicts with the existing statutes in spite of the claim of coal operators that no restraint of trade would result since the sales organizations of several fields still would be competing. The coal producers are expected to appeal the case to higher courts but, even if they gain a victory, the actual operation of the plan may be delayed for several years.

Competitive Problem Still Is Unsolved

THE DELAY in putting the centralized marketing plan into effect leaves the industry with all the problems which beset it even in the days of good general business. Prices remain at the low levels of the depression. Bitter competition between neighboring mines and between districts makes it practically impossible for the industry to show a profit. Attempts to pass low prices on to the miners in the form of reduced wages have resulted in a condition of constant tension resulting in frequent outbreaks of labor trouble.

Added to the difficulties has been the sharp reduction in demand. There was not enough business to keep all mines running even in 1929. The effects of the depression on an industry already burdened with troubles are not hard to realize. Coal has all the difficulties of industry in general with the added problems peculiar to itself.

BABSON OFFERS EMPLOYMENT PANACEA

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Roger W. Babson, statistician and economic soothsayer, gently spanks his clients, the businessmen of the country, for passivity in the face of wholesale unemployment, and concludes in his new book, entitled "Washington and the Depression," that if the depression lasts longer than five years it is our own fault.

Mr. Babson, who achieved fame by predicting the panic a few weeks before it occurred, in 1929, but who of course sometimes makes incorrect as well as accurate readings of the future, starts out with the assumption that business will begin to improve in 1933 or certainly in 1934.

Mr. Rukeyser

In case there is some hitch in the schedule, Mr. Babson offers a hint to the new President of the United States, whether it be Gov. Roosevelt or Mr. Hoover, "which will . . . . set the wheels of industry moving again in the right direction."

Here is the plan in a nutshell, as described by the author:

"This plan is applicable today and can be described by using a section of New England as an illustration: If there are 8,000,000 unemployed today, or a net of 6,000,000 after deducting those normally unemployed, it can be assumed that the unemployed in said section would number approximately 250,000. Properly to take care of this number a dole system would require a special tax on said section of at least $2,000,000 per week, or $100,000,000 annually, of which the average sized business concern would be obliged to contribute about $10,000 per year. The plan, however, would provide that each concern would have the option of either paying the cash or employing a certain additional number of people.

"The above plan would, therefore, quota the unemployed amongst corporation, employers and individuals who have the means of putting others to work. Every such party would have the option of taking care of its quota of unemployed, either by putting them to work or else by paying a tax. This tax could be used by the government for employing the same number of people on public work by making it unnecessary for the government to go further into debt."

PAPALES FACE BURNS CLUB TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS

With a win tucked away over the McKeesport Olympics, the Dan Burns gridders, of New Kensington, will assist the East Liberty Papales in inaugurating their home Western Pennsylvania Independent Gridiron Conference season this evening under the floodlights at Greenlee Field.

Joe Morbito

The presence of Stanley Berkman and his band of former college stars is expected to attract a large crowd to the Webster Avenue enclosure, Berkman has the reputation of being one of the smartest quarterbacks in the Conference. He also is one of the hardest fighters in the league.

PAPALES SEEK WIN

East Liberty, beaten in the opening tilt by the Rooneys, is keen to gain a 50-50 standing. Coach Frank Politz has been sending the East Enders through strenuous workouts. Joe Morbito, former Carnegie Tech star, will start at fullback with Hymie Goldberg and Boots Klinzing at the halves. Wop Politz will play quarter.

Burns is a typical fighting club. It was this fighting spirit that held off the Olympics in the final period of the game last week. Westlake, Ford and Seyburn will be in the backfield with Berkman tonight.

Burns is eager to win this game. Coach Dunn feels that he has the best club to represent New Kensington in years and that the team stands a fine chance of taking the title away from the Rooneys.

With no other Conference game scheduled, other coaches in the league will watch with interest the clash between the two crack clubs.

Sunday, Greenlee Field again will be the mecca of sandlot fans when the Olympics clash with the Rooneys.

A meeting between these old foes usually is productive of hard football. The Tubers' backfield is much faster than in previous years.

NEWLIN REAL STAR

Newlin, Olympic backfield star, was brilliant against Bellaire, and he teams up with Mortak and Halpate perfectly. This is a fine passing combination the Rooneys will have to stop. Tom McCurdy was out of the Bellaire game due to sickness. Coach Bill Sullivan hopes that he will be fit for Sunday's important battle.

The East Liberty club will travel to Bellaire to meet Andy Vusky's Eagles in another Conference game Sunday. The Eagles are keen to get into the win column, following the defeat at the hands of the Olympics.

Tonight's game is scheduled for 8:15 sharp. Sunday's battle will get under way at 2:30 p. m.

The game scheduled last night at Greenlee Field between the Rooneys and the Christy Park eleven was called off because of rain and wet grounds.

BULLDOGS STOP STAGG PLAYS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Yale's regulars put up a strong defense against the Chicago attack yesterday as interpreted by the scrubs and managed to put over a touchdown, although they were kept on the defensive most of the time.

Charles Heim, sub back, who starred against Bates last week, joined Bob Lassiter on the hospital list with a damaged knee.

Eastern Briefs

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Princeton went through a long defensive dummy scrimmage against Columbia plays yesterday. The job of breaking up forward passes was stressed. Kats Radtke, sophomore halfback, interbarch punt on the varsity through the entire drill and appears to have displaced the veteran Craig.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Columbia's varsity had trouble stopping a scrub eleven equipped with Princeton plays yesterday in a long dummy scrimmage. The Lions were more successful on the offense, making good gains on passes and end runs by Cliff Montgomery.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The Army attack that will be used against Carleton Saturday got a thorough test yesterday, and the regulars smashed over four touchdowns against the scrubs. Damp weather gave Maj. Ralph Sasse a chance to test his men with a wet ball, and much time was spent trying to cure the fumbling habit, which marred the Furman game.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Eddie Casey, Harvard coach, continued his search for capable reserves by sending the "B" and "C" teams against the strengthened scrubs in a 60-minute scrimmage yesterday. The first team had only a very light workout.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The Dartmouth regulars had their first taste of the Lafayette attack in a dummy scrimmage against the fifth team, which featured a light workout yesterday. Al Baldwin, veteran tackle, was back in uniform, and probably will play Saturday.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Holy Cross stuck to offensive work yesterday in an effort to get a smooth attack ready for the Maine game. Tony Morandos, sophomore, was at center, and seems to have won the call over Mike Favulli.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 6.—(AP.)—Boston College tried out several new plays yesterday for use against Centre October 12. Most of them were aerials. Randy Wise, sub center, who was kicked on the head in Tuesday's scrimmage, fainted while Coach Joe McKenny was outlining plays, and was removed for observation.

O'Doul Signs '33 Dodger Contract

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National Baseball League, are wasting no time in signing up their cast for 1933. They announced today that the signed 1933 contract of Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, left fielder and National League batting king, had been received.

Local Cops Find Duckpins Hard To Pinch

The members of the traffic department of Pittsburgh police (those genial gentlemen who slip the tags under your windshield wiper and orate after you have "pulled over there") experienced no end of trouble in trying to clear the alleys of duckpins as they pried the lid from their bowling league season.

The clean-up man for the One-Way Streets totaled 124 for three games, and an ambitious member of the Red Lights team almost lost his badge in averaging 46.

Twelve teams of six men each comprise the circuit.

Keller, with 514, was the only bowler able to reach the 500 mark, Kowalewski and Heh grabbing off second and third laurels with 469 and 452, respectively.

S. A. DAVIS CUP DRAW MADE

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(AP.)—The draw for 1933 Davis Cup play in the South American zone was made yesterday by the French Tennis Association, holder of the historic tennis trophy, and shows five nations entered.

Chile is pitted against Brazil and Argentina against Peru in first-round matches, with Uruguay drawing a bye. Uruguay will play the winner of the Chile-Brazil series, the winner of that contest to meet either Argentina or Peru in the zone final.

The draw for the South American zone is made early because of the different climatic conditions, with the summer season starting there in December.

Although three nations entered for last year's South American zone play, Uruguay and Chile both withdrew and Brazil advanced to the interzone final by default. It lost there to the United States, five matches to none.

VALENTINE

Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Val Is Disappointed When Millie Changes Plans About Seeing Her

CHAPTER XL.

The nicest thing about Joe was that he never sulked, or nursed a grouch. Of course, he was angry when she insisted upon going to her mother, but he got over it. Good old Joe . . .

Val sang a little as she folded her dark silk kimona and laid it on top of her open suitcase. It was Monday afternoon. In a few short hours she would be on her way. Travel alone. Sleep in a berth. Of course she had done it before, coming to Minnesota, but that was with Joe, and she had been too excited, thinking of Joe, to be really excited about traveling.

For once, she'd have Millie really alone. They'd stay a few days in one of the big hotels, probably, and then go off somewhere . . . Cuba, or Florida . . .

Absorbed in her dreams she stood, a long silk stocking with a hole in the heel hanging from her arms, forgetting to darn it, forgetting to do anything but stand, faintly smiling.

She answered it. A boy with a telegram.

"DARLING THINK IT BEST YOU DO NOT MEET ME NEW YORK AFTER ALL WILL WIRE YOU SOON AS CONVENIENT TO SEE YOU DEVOTEDLY MILLIE."

Val read it twice, not quite comprehending the first time.

She sat down on the edge of the bed, the yellow sheet crumpled in her hands. She wasn't going to New York to meet Millie. She wasn't going anywhere. She was going to stay right on here, in the apartment, and have the Claus and the Willowes and the Murphys to dinner.

CHRISTMAS PASSES

Joe found her stretched on the bed, still weeping.

He had come home early, to help her. He looked tired, but he was cheerful, and he had a corsage of violets in his hands.

"I went to three places before I found them," he said, poking them under her nose for her to smell, "but I knew you'd like them better than anything else. Oh, Val, don't take it so hard. I'll get along without you for a little while, and I guess the change will do you good if you are careful and take care of that cold."

It was quite a while before she could make him understand. She was crying because she wasn't going.

Christmas passed.

Christmas with garlands of greens above the imitation fireplace, and twined in the electric light fixtures, and a darling Jerusalem cherry tree for a Christmas tree.

And dinner that began with oyster soup and ended with mince and pumpkin pie and plum pudding and hard sauce, at Mrs. Peacock's.

Elwyn and Pearl were there, too, and two of the Peacock boys, with their wives.

Everybody ate much too much, and after dinner Mr. Peacock turned on the radio, and they all sat around, stifling yawns, and nibbling at nuts and raisins until it was time to go home.

Joe had a perfect time. He loved the three neckties and the gold pencil and pen set that Val gave him, and the quaint garnet necklace he found in an antique shop for her, and Mrs. Peacock's dinner, and the box of beautiful Christmas cakes Pearl baked for them, and everything, even the three cotton handkerchiefs with a machine embroidered "J" on them, from Elwyn.

But Val was a little homesick for Aunt Julia, and all the people who used to run in and out with little presents done up in tissue and tinsel, on Christmas at home.

And the presents from California arrived three days late.

The Claus gave a New Year's eve party. Val wore her ice-blue satin formal, and her diamond bracelet and was proud of Joe, he looked so nice in his tuxedo.

"The Queen of Hearts! Welcome, your majesty!" Merritt Claus, cried, making an enormous bow as they came down the narrow stairs to the Claus' "social hall" in the basement.

The Claus' always entertained in the basement "social hall" because the upstairs rooms were so cluttered with souvenirs of their honeymoon trip to Venice, and Merritt's student days at the Beaux Arts in Paris, that there was hardly room to move without threatening a plaster of paris Venus de Milo or a Dresden china bonbon dish.

ENJOYS PARTY

"Wouldn't you like to wear my silk shawl?" Sally asked. "I don't want you to get another cold, and there isn't much to that dress."

"Here, wear a hat and keep your head warm!" Ed Murphy shouted, jamming a paste-board jester's cap on Val's carefully coiffed hair.

The radio was going full blast, and everyone was very gay, because there was alcohol in the punch. Rosamund Hendricks did a hulahula dance, wearing Sally's shawl for a skirt, because Merritt remembered that he had lent the grass skirt they brought back from the Philippines to one of the boys in the Rotary club, for a jinx.

Stella Willowes read humorous monologues, and Jill Whitely started the singing. The Claus' Christina plodded downstairs, pushed back the screens that hid the supper table. They all sang, toasting with the well spiked punch, beating time with sandwiches.

"Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the way—"

Val was never sure whether she really had a gorgeous time, or if it was the alcohol in the punch that made her think so.

But it was by far the gayest party she had been to, and it was such a success that nobody seemed to want to risk another.

"Why not give one ourselves? Joe suggested, when Val complained that things were duller than ever, since the Claus' New Years' party.

"Here?" Val said. But she agreed that it would be fun, and they planned whom they'd have, and what they'd have to eat.

"When are we going to have that party?" Joe asked every night for a week.

But Val was never in the mood for it, and after a while he stopped asking.

SHORT OF MONEY

Millie wrote that she had an apartment in Los Angeles, wanted Val to come for a visit, if Joe could spare her. Sorry that she couldn't send the fare. Until the will was settled, she had barely enough to live on.

The same day Marjorie wrote: "Saw Les. Promised him I'd make you come out for the summer. Don't know where I will put you, our place is so small, but if you don't mind sleeping on the Chesterfield or if I get a mattress for the wallbed, it will be fine. Hope you can come soon."

Joe looked solemn.

"Well, if things turn out right we might make it by August. I won't be able to leave the job I'm on until then, anyway."

She waited. Minutes passed.

"I could go on ahead. You wouldn't miss me. Pearl will keep you company, and you can board with Mrs. Peacock."

Another long silence.

"You've got Pearl. You won't miss me," she repeated.

"There's the matter of the fare," he said at last.

"Well, that isn't so very much."

"I'm afraid I haven't got it."

"Joe Carey! Didn't you tell me yourself that we hadn't spent hardly anything the last three months, and that we were over five hundred dollars ahead? You did! You told me yourself!"

"I haven't got it now."

"You didn't spend it on me!" she cried hotly. A suspicion that she was ashamed of flashed into her head. "Joe—what did you do with that money? Tell me!"

"I sent it to my mother. To send Vivian to boarding school."

She started at him. "You sent it to your mother, to send VIVIAN . . . to send Vivian to . . . Joe, you're crazy!"

"I know it. It's a lot of darn foolishness. But ma was so upset because the kid was upset, and she's none too well and she's rented the room Elwyn and I used to have to one man, and given the small room the girls had to another man, and I thought if she'd take in boarders at her age, to raise that money, why she must want it pretty bad, so I—"

"So you're sending Vivian to boarding school. Because she read 'Betty Wales, Freshman,' or some other ridiculous thing like that—and I—I can stay here, and suffer—and be miserable—and sick and unhappy and—"

Joe went out, slammed the door.

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane is practically deserted at the age of 8 by her gay, widowed mother, Millie. She is brought up by a manhating maiden aunt, Julia, and becomes a stenographer. After a brief infatuation for the dashing Lester Sherwood, she marries a neighbor boy, Joe Carey, and goes to Minneapolis, where Joe is an architect. Pearl Neely, one of Joe's friends, visits and begins to take liberties about the apartment. Val dislikes Pearl, but says nothing. Unused to housework, Val becomes discontented. Joe tells Val his plans for the future, but she is unimpressed. Millie's husband dies and she sends for Val to go to New York.

Now Go On

She wasn't going to New York after all!

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion's Cool Comment About Owen Puzzles Madge

"Don't you want your uncle here for the dance, Carolyn?" I asked with every appearance of bewilderment, which was, indeed, partly real.

Marion's "roomie" looked at me with a queer little defiance in her eyes.

"No, I don't," she said. "He's getting to be a mosquito in the sun porch, and Ron and I are so fed up with him we could scream. He isn't our real uncle, you know, any more than our father is our real father. But we've never known any difference with Dad. Lots of real fathers aren't as good to their kids as he has been. He's wonderful!"

We have always looked upon Carolyn as lovable but irresponsible, and too scatterbrained to have any firm opinions about anything. There was that in her voice, however, which made us realize that some intense feeling was behind her words, and though she did look at Marion as she spoke, I wondered if her pseudo uncle's endeavor to win her "roomie's" consent to marry him was not the primary cause for her dislike.

My heart warmed to the pretty child whom Dicky called the "fluffy flapper," and I was strongly impelled to tell her of my entire sympathy with her sentiments. But, fortunately for our scheme, Lillian was swifter of mind, and spoke quickly, with decisive firmness.

OWEN DEFENDED

"Carolyn, I am astonished! What do you think your mother would say if she could hear you speaking in this way of the man you always have been taught to call your uncle, and who has always appeared to be so fond of you? Marion has told me how wonderfully kind he has been to you both, when he came down to Whitney Hall. And as for his being a 'wet smack' at the party, haven't you youngsters sense enough to see how far above these callow college boys in appearance and social experience he is?"

"Don't count me in with the others for this smacking, Aunt Lillian," Mary said with a grin. "I'm here to tell the world that if Mr. Owen doesn't come, I'm going to be good and sore. He's one of the best dancers that ever put a foot into a dancing pump."

I guessed that both she and Lillian were as breathlessly anxious as I to hear Marion's comment, but when it came it gave us no enlightenment whatever as to her real feelings toward Charles Owen.

"What's eating you, anyway, Carol?" she queried. "Why get so hot and bothered about the man when he'll only be here for one night? Any man that can dance and wear clothes with an air is extra marmalade at a party, and he probably won't expect you to do the dutiful niece stunt. He'll be too busy."

PUZZLING ATTITUDE

Her voice was as matter-of-fact as if she were discussing a stranger. Either she was entirely cured of her infatuation for Charles Owen, or she was possessed of unusual histrionic ability. I did not dare to hope for the first hypothesis, but I gained comfort from my experience of the almost brutal frankness of the younger generation.

"He'll be busy, all right," Carolyn said with a spiteful little laugh, and I guessed that she was venting upon Marion the humiliated annoyance that she did not dare to show Lillian. "You and Mary will probably be scratching each other's eyes out over the old fool, and I suppose when this Arlen person sees how goofy you two are, she'll figure out he's a captain of the Coldstream Guards, or something like that, and get busy."

"You'd better be thankful if she does," Marion retorted. "Bob Travellan's just about young and callow enough—thank you, mother, that's a lovely adjective—to fall for the Arlen with a loud crash."

It was high time, I decided, to end this colloquy, and I spoke incisively.

"We haven't much time to waste in the discussion of Miss Arlen's tactics, or her success or failure. We must get hold of your mother, Carolyn, right away. You'll want to talk to her also about your dress. Lillian, will you telephone Mrs. Brixton, or shall I?"

"You're the hostess, so"—Lillian spread her hands with a gamin grin at me, and I walked to the telephone knowing I could not dodge the call, but dreading it.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Capt. William Campbell, official pilot of the Pitcairn autogiro and the man who holds the record for looping the loop 151 times will visit several of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic clubs Saturday and tell the members about some of his more exciting adventures. In addition to speaking at the Junior Komic clubs he will also make an address to the Boy Scouts.

Betty Niedhammer, "Official Junior Reporter" of the Cameraphone chapter, sends in the answers to a question she asked several of the members at last Saturday's meeting. The question, "What do you want to do when you grow up?" brought the following replies:

Jack Kastranias' greatest ambition is to be a baseball player on one of the major league teams and play in a world series. He prefers the new world's champions.

Harvard beware! Paul Opreato, Vincent Ferabraro, Charles Schmidt and Joseph Tauro, four husky members of the Junior Komic Club, desire to enter Yale in a few years and make the football team and beat Harvard.

Mercedes Brinker, a charming little miss who has entertained the members of the Cameraphone Chapter many times with her singing and dancing, wants to be an actress or a great movie star. Okay, Mercedes!

One little chap who will be more than interested in the words of Capt. William Campbell this Saturday will be Anthony Pessamato. His great desire is to be an aviator.

John Taura, whose brother, Joe, wants to go to Yale and play football, is more of an adventurer. He would like to visit strange places and countries. Therefore he wants to be a sailor. Ahoy there, mate!

Regis Ryan heard several of the members talking what they would like to be when they grow up, said that he wants only to be a great mushball player.

Anna May Wolfe has several dolls and any of the "kiddies" in her neighborhood who has the misfortune to break their dolls always bring them to Anna May. So she thinks that with all the experience she has now that she would like to be a nurse.

Here's a chap that's shooting high in either profession he takes up. Jack Shaffer would like to be either an aviator or a cartoonist.

Wayne Pittman and Bill Foley are thinking seriously of making medicine their life work. Okay, doctors.

Eileen Nigro wants to be a librarian or a private secretary.

Add another candidate to the flying school. Anna Schmidt likes airplanes and her greatest ambition is to fly one. Alright, Anna, contact.

Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo, Ann Harding, Joan Blondell and Norma Shearer better look out. Dorothy Crozier is planning to be a movie actress.

Clang! Clang! Clang! Frank and Junior Connelly are going to enter the fire department. They want to be assigned to a hook and ladder company. Frank wants to drive and Junior wants to steer the rear.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club who are celebrating their birthdays today:

South Hills—Mary C. Morgan, Betty Jane Long, Tryg Grufman, Cleatus Phillips.

Belmar—Robert Hester Frank Reed, Raymond Schuck.

Enright—Helen Lee, Mildred McCloskey, Hallard Schmidt.

Etna-Harris—Paul Steiner.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

LETTERS OF LOVE.

There is perhaps no more difficult art than that of writing letters marked by dignity and breeding which will yet contain a tender heart throb when read by those of the opposite sex. Many people rush into letter writing without mature consideration. And what is the result? Broken homes and untold misery. So we have arranged for Prof. Abalard G. Goshen, author of "The Ladies' Polite Letter Writer" (1881), to lend a helping hand to those who would like to write letters, but can see the other side of the question as well.

One of Prof. Goshen's works, entitled "An Invitation to a Place of Public Amusement," is quoted below:

Miss Farrington:

May I request the very great pleasure of escorting you to Barnum's Museum, at any time which may suit your convenience? No pains will be spared by myself to have you enjoy the occasion, and I will consult your wishes in every particular as to time of calling for you and returning. Waiting an early reply to this, I remain,

Most Sincerely,
Prof. Abalard G. Goshen.

And then the "Reply With Conditions," which the professor immediately dictated to his stenographer, for indeed it was no other:

Prof. Abalard G. Goshen.

Dear Sir: I shall be most happy to visit Barnum's Museum with you, but will prefer being one of a company in which you yourself are included, such also being the wish of my mother, who sends her kind regards. A visit from you at our house next Tuesday evening will enable us to decide upon the time of going.

Very Sincerely,
You Know Who.

And then there's the statesmen who spends all his time telling the people what the people think.

CLEARING THINGS UP.

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Dear Editor:

I just read a clipping out of your paper saying that I left Thursday for California to join the navy and that I expected to be gone indefinitely.

I don't know who put that in your paper, but who ever did I can say this much for them that they should be sure what they are putting in the paper instead of guess work. If they would attend to their own business instead of what some one else is doing they would get along better.

I did not leave on Thursday and I did not come out here with the intentions of joining the navy, and I do not expect to be here indefinitely. I left on Friday, what I came for and how long I am going to stay is my business.

Yours truly,
Floyd Rector.

New Tax Proposals

Great Wisdom Will Be Required If the Remedy Is Not To Be Worse Than the Disease.

To ease the burden on real estate a city tax on bachelors has been advocated. It is one of a long list of suggested imposts that has been given out in connection with the opening today by City Council of public hearings on proposals for new taxes.

To lighten the load of property owners the Legislature at the recent special session authorized Pittsburgh to tax, for a period of three years, anything not already taxed by the state, and it is in preparation for the exercise of that authority that Council is seeking the citizens' advice.

Few will take the proposal to tax bachelors seriously, and there are many other suggestions that are even less entitled to serious consideration. Some of the proposals would impose an unfair hardship on particular kinds of business. Certain other plans, while fair enough, would be impractical.

Citizens will do well to scan the proposals closely and keep vigilant watch on the progress of the legislation. Council has a difficult problem. Unless great wisdom is exercised the cure may be worse than the disease.

New imposts will not be justified unless they result in a cut in the real estate tax.

While recognizing that with the falling off in tax collections the city has been placed in a difficult position and will have to resort to extraordinary measures to balance the budget, the people are not convinced that the solution of the problem lies in new taxes.

James W. Bamford, chairman of the taxation committee of the Building Owners and Managers Association, voiced the opinion of a multitude of citizens in his address before the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce when he declared in favor of a slash in municipal expenditures.

On the Wrong Side

The City Should Encourage, Not Oppose, the Proposed 15-Cent Bus Line.

It has been the fixed policy of the city, as represented by Charles L. Lang, assistant city solicitor in charge of public utilities matters, to oppose applications of new bus lines or taxicab companies for permission to operate in Pittsburgh. The opposition has been based on the ground that the streets are already congested with traffic and the new lines would increase the congestion and cause more trouble than they are worth.

We suspect that it was in routine pursuance of that policy, and without careful inquiry into the merits of this particular case, that Lang opposed, before the Public Service Commission yesterday, the application of the Liberty Bus Line to operate busses between Mt. Washington and the Pennsylvania Station.

Lang made a mistake, at any rate, for the applicants offer to provide service at 15 cents, or 10 rides for $1.25, and their proposal furnishes an opportunity to break the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company's monopoly, with its unreasonable charge of 25 cents for a ride that in other cities would only cost a dime.

Evidence was given at the hearing that the residents of the section that would benefit by the proposed service are not being furnished adequate service by the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. The fact that so many advocates of the new line came to the hearing that the courtroom would not hold them all is eloquent testimony to the demand for reasonably priced bus service.

It is reassuring to learn that Lang will not press his objections, if the company will accept designated stopping places down town.

A Welcome Drizzle

To the Rural Dwellers 'Nice Days' Now Are Rainy Days.

We hope you made no disparaging remarks yesterday about the drizzle. It was most welcome to the rural dwellers.

This is no time to speak of rainy days as disagreeable. To the farmers of the county they are now the really "nice days." For the Pittsburgh district has been suffering from one of the worst droughts in its history.

Since the establishment of the weather bureau in 1871 Pittsburgh has never experienced a drier September than last month. The normal rainfall for September is 2.56 inches, and last month it was .59 of an inch. Even in the severe drought of two years ago it was .74 of an inch.

The damage to crops is not what the rural dwellers are thinking about now. It is the drying up of the wells and springs upon which they depend for water for domestic purposes and for watering their stock that is giving them concern.

Residents of the cities and boroughs who get their water from the rivers and always have an ample supply can scarcely appreciate the hardships that some of the country people are enduring and the joy that a prolonged rain would give them.

Right-Hand Turns

They Are Dangerous If the Driver Fails to Keep Close to the Curb.

An analysis by Gov. Gifford Pinchot's Committee on Street and Highway Safety of automobile accidents in the first eight months of this year shows that 813 occurred while the drivers were making right-hand turns.

It is a common practice, particularly with truck drivers, to swing out into the middle or left of the highway before turning to the right. The safety expert call this a "rainbow turn." It is responsible for many serious mishaps.

Drivers make the "rainbow turn" in order to avoid going into second gear; which brings to mind the safety slogan, "Take time to be safe."

The right-hand turn should be made from close to the curb, and, especially in the case of trucks, it is necessary to go into second gear to execute the turn properly—and safely.

Trying to Combine Hunting and Fishing :-: By Nelson Harding

Our portly friend attempts to hunt
And fish with either hand.
You note the straddling attitude

It gathers neither birds nor fish
And cannot be much fun.

Marry-Go-Round

Sweet and "Sentimental"

Lots of a modern girl's "IT" comes in bottles—especially in perfume bottles.

Many an innocent man has mistaken an expensive, imported "scent" for sex-appeal or sentiment. Or gotten an alluring pomade confused with an alluring personality, when he kissed a girl's hair.

Nothing gets into the masculine imagination so surely and effectively as a subtle and delicate fragrance. Rouge, mascara and bare backs may catch a man's eye; but all down the ages, poets and lovers have sung of woman's fragrance. From the days when the girls went in for frankincense and myrrh, through the era of jasmine and lily-of-the-valley, to this day of psychological perfumes tagged with such odd names as "Look-into-my-eyes" or "Stolen Kisses" or "Teach-me-to-love," nothing has been so potent as perfume, to bowl a man over!

And now, according to a recent news item, the shops are trying the perfume lure on women. Silk stockings, lingerie, evening gowns and negligees are all to be deliciously scented, before they pass before the prospective customer's eyes (or nose). And it is working beautifully! Women's noses are as susceptible as men's noses—and you can sell at least three pairs of perfumed stockings to one plain unperfumed pair.

The association of ideas is a strange and marvelous thing. One whiff of a familiar perfume can make the man sitting opposite you think of moonlight, Venice, violins and another woman—all at the same time.

A woman going through a trunk in the attic, may pull out an old dress or an old lace handkerchief, faintly fragrant of an old-fashioned perfume, and suddenly catch herself humming an old song and thinking of some man, whom she has forgotten for 10 or 20 years.

* * *

A woman is like that. She can keep as many old loves tucked away in her subconscious mind as she has old hats or old shoes tucked away in her closet.

If the shops are going to scent the silk stockings, the gowns and the furs, we shall all either "go broke" or have to join the nudists in self-defense. We'll buy everything we SMELL!

* * *

An insinuating, heady, seductive perfume gets into the IMAGINATION—and makes you see a lot of charms, beauties and virtues which are not there!

EUROPE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The most impertinently brazen gyp for Americans in Paris is the over-publicized theatrical attraction—Follies Bergere. Gyp is too mild. It is a barbarian rout. The banditry begins at the box office where, if you ask for good seats, they blandly point to a speculator's coop across the street.

A group of Tarzans snatch your hat and cane immediately inside the door, no matter the protests. They you idle through Robbers' Roost, an enormous salon with drinking tables and a brace of bars. Here program passers tell you they paid 3 francs each for programs. And naturally expect a pourboire.

So conscienceless calculating and insolent is it all you are in an indignant lather when you come to the ushers, most shameless brigandesses of the lot. A Frenchman bestows, at most a sou or 50 centimes—two cents—and receives a graciously purred: "Merci, M'oso!" But they spot Americans.

I bestowed two francs, a generous largesse, in the twitching palm of the huzzy who escorted us. She blocked our path to seats, demanding more. Gently I edged her to one side when my unworthy inclination was to kick out her teeth. Then she stood there in a fine rage delivering imprecations with machine gun rat-a-tat.

Naturally I was too hydrophobic to enjoy the show. Even if good, etc. But it was shoddy, disgustingly vulgar, stressing the stark nudity of the over-plump and featuring two skits, with Lesbian and Sadist themes. At the entr' acte a swarm of cocottes descended to cadge drinks and make assignations.

After the play it was fun to watch the unbridled wantonness of cocottes, waiting to make pick-ups out front. They were in flamboyant gowns sleeky coiffed, extravagantly perfumed, daring. They simper in broken English: "You desiree madamosielle for ze good time." Gendarmes shift capes and twirl comic white clubs indifferently. A healthy English boy escorting an elderly lady was besieged. In the awkward confusion of his years, he blushed furiously. But a villainess still pursued him across the street to his taxi.

Stepping into the background, I whispered to a group, pointing to Harry Silvey who was immaculate in full-dress splendor: "A rich American, very lonely and loves the ladies!" In a flash the pack was in full cry. They surrounded him in a hyena half-circle, tugging at his elbow, chirping flatteries and gushing all the oily wiles of the most venerable profession. I rescued him, and in a gusto of braggadocio, he shot a cuff and boasted: "Fellow, have I IT!"

At the Follies intermission they actually exploit a cooch-dance below stairs with all the frenzied weed-piping and tom-tomming of the circus. Also, there was something else I never noticed in theaters—men smoked pipes during the play. The audience was about 10 per cent French—mostly wide-eyed provincials in town for a night out, or perhaps, a lonely tenderfoot from some Afghan frontier.

Among perpetual annoyances of Paris are the surfeit of fetes. I never arrive or depart that one is not budding or in flower, bands oompahing brassily. They are from Friday p. m. until Tuesday a. m.—two days of high jinks and one to drowse in slug-a-bed luxury. They are still drowsy the day after, too. If you don't think so—try to shop.

* * *

The blonde, fish-white and silken-voiced Erskine Gwynne is still a fair-haired boy in the Aw-merican set. Depression stifled his flaming feuilleton The Boulevardier, but has not cramped his abundance of joie de vivre. Wherever he goes—and he's on perpetual go—he's the little ray of sunshine.

* * *

I'm hep to Harry Silvey's French. He mixes it with German and Italian unconsciously. Today, for instance, he called to a garcon: "Voulez vous apportez a package of alumets?" Then added: "Un machen it snappy, bambino."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

And so they were married—

But they DIDN'T "live happy ever after."

D. H. Lawrence tells about it in "THE LOST GIRL."

Clariss was a practical, domestic home-body, and James was an idealist and a dreamer.

Clariss wanted modern conveniences; snug, pretty fixings, such as the other girls had. But James wanted to save the world. He had a vast, vague, dramatic dream of restoring beauty to human life—which raised Cain with poor Clariss' desire for a classy kitchen sink.

So Clariss was unhappy. Terribly unhappy. And James didn't know why-the-heck. Wasn't he giving her the best he had? What more could any man do?

But Clariss thought he could have done more; much more. And each day she grew more unhappy, and the more unhappy she became, the more she blamed James for that unhappiness. So what with her sighing and sobbing and sulking Clariss became really ill. Literally poisoned by unhappiness. Shutting herself off from health, as she shut herself off from Life—

Until her miserable mind and sick spirit could stand it no longer, and heart-disease developed. And presently, Clariss was dead.

Then all her friends, particularly her female friends, were sorry for Clariss as she lay so white and defeated in her coffin. And they quite openly expressed their feeling that James was a brute. Not, of course, that he had been really cruel to Clariss, in common ways. He'd never beaten her, or starved her.

BUT HE HADN'T MADE HER HAPPY.

And, as a result, Clariss was dead. Guilty James!

"Yet why?" soliloquizes Mr. Lawrence. "Why was James more guilty than Clariss?

"IS THE ONLY END AND AIM OF A MAN'S LIFE TO MAKE SOME WOMAN, OR PARCEL OF WOMEN, HAPPY? WHY?

"Why should anybody expect to be MADE HAPPY, and develop heart disease if she isn't? Surely Clariss' heart disease was a more emphatic sign of obstinate self-importance than ever James' shop-windows were. She expected to be MADE HAPPY. Every woman in Europe and America expects it.

"ON HER OWN HEAD THEN IF SHE IS MADE UNHAPPY—FOR HER EXPECTATION IS ARROGANT AND IMPERTINENT."

Wonder how many women will agree with that statement? Mighty few, I wager, even among the smartest and most reasonable women. For never yet was there a wife who did not believe that happiness was included in the marriage bargain.

Yet, could anything be sillier or more unfair? How can anyone else guarantee to make us happy when we can't even provide happiness for ourselves?

We can't. We don't. We don't even expect to be constantly happy when we are eligible. We accept a certain amount of happiness as an inevitable condition of life. We expect to endure, as philosophically as possible, various moods of discouragement, peevishness, boredom and actual despair. We realize that no one is to blame for this. It's Life.

BUT THE INSTANT A WOMAN MARRIES, AWAY GO PHILOSOPHY, FAIRNESS AND GOOD NATURE, AND FORTHWITH SHE BEGINS TO INDULGE IN EXPECTATIONS AND RECRIMINATIONS WHICH WOULD HAVE SEEMED ABSURD THE DAY BEFORE.

Yesterday she took her tears as they came. Today each sob is an indictment of her husband, a proof that marriage is a failure and that "the woman must always pay."

Yet maybe there's a reason. Consider the promises the average James makes before Clariss twitters "Yes;" the bright hopes he raises!

Why does Clariss give up her good job and her better beaux to become Mrs. Jones? That's why. Then—this!!

No wonder she feels a bit aggrieved and takes it out on James when the marital market flops. Which is a two-way lesson for both husbands and wives.

Prohibition Problem: Liberals Speak Out

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The most amazing demonstration accorded Mr. Roosevelt on his triumphant Western tour was that at Chicago Saturday, when 400,000 people lined the streets to cheer. The people there cannot be so easily fooled as others elsewhere regarding the meaning of the Democratic and the Hoover-Mills prohibition planks of the two platforms.

They sat in the galleries of the two conventions and witnessed the proceedings. They know, what every intelligent person who reads the papers knows, that the issue in the Hoover convention was whether it should stand for straight repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or adopt a double-dealing declaration for the granting of still more power to the federal government to interfere with the states in the management of their own affairs. They saw straight repeal go down before the orders of Herbert Hoover under the leadership of Ogden Mills, d'Artagnan of the Drys, in command of 300 official retainers of the President.

The people of Chicago know.

Saw Different Attitude of Democrats

They also witnessed the proceedings of the Democratic convention and found a different attitude there. They noted the overwhelming majority with which prohibition was voted down; the absolute frankness and honesty of the discussion in debate; and observed that the Democrats not only voted for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but for such modification of the Volstead Act as would reopen the breweries and give jobs to men, and subject a now lawless traffic to regulation and taxation.

And these people of Chicago heard Roosevelt appear before the convention to say:

"From this hour on the Eighteenth Amendment is doomed."

The people of Chicago know.

Reiterates Accord With Platform

In his address at Chicago Mr. Roosevelt, in reiterating his hearty accord with the Democratic platform, touched anew upon the utter absurdity, and almost wickedness, of trying to force upon a people a personal habit law which is disapproved by a vast part of the population. Nothing could be sounder than this:

"If a law is imposed upon law enforcement agencies that a vast proportion of the people do not regard as a moral obligation, the great orderly force of public opinion that must stand behind law enforcement is lost. And on the contrary this force runs counter to the process of law enforcement and it must meet not only the problem of restraining the offenders—it must restrain the offenders in spite of the fact that the people of the community do not think the offender is an offender at all."

National prohibition literally is despised by many millions of the people; it has not been enforced; it cannot be enforced, and it operates exclusively for the benefit of bootleggers who are given immunity from taxation to the loss of hundreds of millions to the Treasury.

Mr. Roosevelt says at Chicago:

"I stand on the Democratic platform 100 per cent. I mean the proposed modification of the Volstead act."

Liberals Doubt Hoover Sincerity

No liberal in the country has the slightest confidence in the sincerity of Herbert Hoover's eleventh hour personal expression that the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed. It was the last gasp of despair.

If he had been opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment he would have kept faith with his liberal followers in 1928 instead of betraying them by ordering the kind of investigation of prohibition he promised.

If he was opposed, he would have accepted the real recommendation of the Wickersham commission—the majority against prohibition.

If he was opposed, he would not have forced a preliminary report that flagrantly belies the individual reports accompanying it.

If he was opposed he would not have said a few weeks before the Republican convention that he was still in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment.

If he was opposed he would not have ordered Mills to make the fight against a straight repeal plank in the platform.

Mr. Hoover cannot be trusted and will not be trusted by any intelligent liberal, no matter what he says now in the desperation of despair.

Reed Sees Matters Made Worse

One of the grand old figures of American politics is former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri. Every liberal in the country trusts him. He has fought their battles against the Hoovers. He says properly of the Hoover plank and pledge that the effect of it is "to perpetuate prohibition and make it worse than it was."

Nicholas Murray Butler is trusted on this question by every liberal. He has fought against it in season and out of season. He calls attention to the fact that the Hoover plank actually extends federal authority into the states in the interest of prohibition—and "makes it worse than it was."

Al Smith is trusted by the liberals. He has fought their battles with rare courage; and he makes Hoover's position clear in two paragraphs of his editorial urging the election of the Democratic ticket:

"Pending constitutional amendment (the nature of which the frightened Hoover does not indicate) the President is against any plan to legalize light wines and beer. In the course of the long period which will undoubtedly elapse before the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed or modified, and in the face of urgent need of new and fairer sources of revenue, the President still insists on kicking away the hundreds of millions of dollars which could easily be raised by a tax on beer and wine."

In other words Mr. Hoover does not propose, if he can prevent it, that the American people shall have beer for years at least. There can be no repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment for at least four years. Meanwhile the mockery of prohibition goes on; meanwhile the bootleggers remain immune from taxation; meanwhile the people are deprived of beer.

Mr. Roosevelt and the Democrats propose to deal with the Volstead act at once and give the people beer wherever they want it.

That makes an issue that even the most stupid liberal ought to see.

Curtis Sent Into Dry Territory

Meanwhile Charles Curtis, the bone-dry champion both of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, is being sent into dry territory for a purpose; and Hoover speakers are utterly ignoring prohibition—because no man with any pretensions to common honesty and self-respect can undertake to explain the Hoover program without admitting that it means nothing at the very best for four years.

The hypocritical and dishonest strategy of the Hoover High Command is lightly to dismiss the subject with the false statement that both Hoover and Roosevelt stand for the same thing. They do not stand for the same thing regarding the amendment. But, that aside, one difference stands out like a challenge:

Hoover is against the modification of the Volstead Act—for four years at least.

Roosevelt is in favor of its immediate modification to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and a collection of taxes on it.

And that is difference enough for any real liberal.

AN INSTITUTION'S PLEDGE

A notable example of the high aims of modern business is set forth in the Mayflower pledge to the Pittsburgh district. The pledge follows:

To rear an institution as well as serve the Pittsburgh public; to do both so well that no one can doubt the integrity of either.

To sell merchandise of such quality that the simple truth about it will always be an adequate recommendation, to price it so fairly that its value can never be questioned.

To co-operate with the medical profession in furthering better health among the people of Pittsburgh.

To remember that customers are more important than sales, that while a sale may be a temporary advantage, a customer is a permanent asset; that profits are legitimate only as a by-product of service.

To regard the interests of our customers and ours as one and indivisible, to place permanent satisfaction of our customers above any temporary advantage to ourselves, to win public confidence by deserving it and then regard it as a sacred trust.

To realize these purposes by adding to each piece of merchandise we sell something more than money, labor and materials, something invisible but not intangible, the super values that lie in those ultimate realities that men call love, faith, inspiration and aspiration.

These are the values that transcend all skill of hand, that transmit the making of things, the selling and buying of them into joy of work and pride of achievement. These are the values that endure and that are the sure foundation of mutual good will.

To these purposes we dedicate ourselves and our resources and to them we pledge our honor and the honest effort of every person in our organization every day we serve you.

The products offered each week as "specials" at the Mayflower Drug Stores are those which have proved most popular in the community. A careful survey of past sales indicate the articles in greatest demand, and an effort is made to bring them to customers at the lowest possible cost.

Chinese Prescribed Drugs Centuries Ago

Early Chinese prescriptions appear to antedate the methods of modern drug stores by many centuries. Written on Chinese letter paper a foot long, they contained only a list of names and quantities of medicines required, with concise directions for their preparation. A hand balance or litang was used, consisting of a decimally graduated ivory rod, from one end of which a brass scale-pan was suspended by silk threads. The medicine was taken home to be boiled. Chinese prunes were furnished to relieve the bad after taste, the old records reveal.

PHARMACY TRACED BACK TO DARK AGES

First Laws Passed in 11th Century

Modern Drug Store Had U. S. Start In 1646

Pharmacy, that modern institution for the dispensing of healthful antidoes for human ills, had its vague origin in itinerant drug peddlers at fairs and in market places, "vending with loud voice and practiced assurance their specific remedies for every human ailment."

In ancient Egypt and Assyria, physician-priests attended the sick to an accompaniment of charms, chanted litanies and religious incantations. Greek legends traces man's ills to Pandora's box. A certain god, Aesculapus took pity on man and taught him the apothecary's art. Medicines were prepared by Hygeia, goddess of pharmacy.

Among the Hebrews the apothecary is spoken of early in the Old Testament. The Chinese, too, appear to have an early knowledge of the druggist's skill. From 460 to 370 B. C. medicine and pharmacy were combined. It was fashionable in Greece and Egypt to be both physician and apothecary. The druggist was introduced into Rome about 187 years before the Christian era.

Arabian Laws

As early as the eighth century, the Arabians recognized the divergence of medicine and pharmacy and established it by law in the eleventh century. Their drugs came from Italy. Most apothecary shops were in reality grocery stores, spice or candy shops.

The earliest drugstore in Germany appeared in 1267 at Munster. The first apothecary's shop in Berlin belonged to one Hans Zehender in 1488. In 1295 a drugstore was established in Brussels. As early as 1582 the profession became overcrowded and an act requiring three years preparation was passed. In England, during Elizabethan days, doctors prepared their own medicines and maintained their own pharmacies.

Mixtures of chopped mice, lynx claws and elks' hoofs were administered for baffling cases of rheumatism, according to an old account. Oil of stags' blood was the proper remedy for gout. Pills and powders and tinctures were made from rhubarb, senna, bitter apple, turpentine, camphor, mercury and mastic. Doses were brewed from poppy and other "drowsy syrups." Real opium or laudanum were unknown.

Ancient Remedies

Pastils of mastic, wax and strong pepper were prescribed for head colds and flasks of gargle for sore throats, made of barley water, vinegar and syrup of mulberries were dispensed. The infallible recourse in nearly all cases, however, was phlebotomy or blood letting. The vein was opened almost before a diagnosis was made.

The ancient apothecary had no official status. His small shop was maintained for the sale of herbs, essences and drugs. He prescribed purges and cordials to those who grudged the doctor's fee. In contrast to the meticulous cleanliness of the modern drug store, the early apothecary shop smelled of stale herbs. Many of the drugs were direfully adulterated. The early apothecary had not the slightest theoretical knowledge of medicine. A pick-up jargon, a certain native acuteness and a great deal of luck helped him to sometimes effect a cure. Fatalities were explained by the happy thought, "skill is futile before the decrees of heaven."

Linked With Grocers

On April 8, 1606, King James I incorporated the apothecaries of London and united them with the grocers. In 1617 they received a new charter, forming them into a separate company or guild under the designation, "The Master, Wardens and Society of the Art and Mysteries of Apothecaries of the City of London." They did not begin generally to prescribe as well as dispense medicines until a few years before the close of the Seventeenth century.

During the Seventeenth century, the druggist came to America. The prevalence of quacks necessitated the regulation by law of prices and fees in Virginia in 1636. It was fashionable for druggists to practice surgery. In Massachusetts Indians, schoolmasters, old women and teachers became apothecaries. The Salem witchcraft delusion retarded the development of pharmacy. Ready suspicion fell on the apothecary for spells induced by his potions. The drug shop was usually a branch of the grocery or spice business.

In 1646 the first distinctive drug store in America was opened in Boston by William Davies. New Jersey under the Duke of York in 1664 regulated by law the practice of pharmacy prescribing penalties for carelessness. This appears to be the first attempt in America to hold druggists accountable for the proper preparation of drugs.

Compared to the haphazard methods and weird mixtures of early apothecaries the scientific knowledge, sanitary procedure and prescribed responsibility of the modern pharmacist, may be deemed one of mankind's major benefits.

PITTSBURGH'S OWN 'CHAIN' PROSPERS

Drug Stores Of Mayflower Group Grow

Entire Organization Recruited From City, Suburbs

A little more than three years ago, a group of Pittsburgh men conceived the possibility of combining the advantages of chain store buying power with the maintenance of community spirit inherent in the operation of independent drug stores throughout the Pittsburgh district.

Having its inception in an economic period which would have discouraged a less indomitable enterprise, the Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., became and remain the only Pittsburgh organization of chain drug stores.

Formed in 1929

Formed in the spring of 1929, three months before the collapse of the stock market, this Pittsburgh institution has established five new locations in addition to the 16 independently owned stores originally incorporated, making the total 21 stores throughout greater Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh money is invested in the Mayflower drug stores. The money remains in Pittsburgh. Banking is done in the communities where the stores are located. Employes and managers are residents of the communities in which they work.

From the president down, every executive, store manager and employe is a Pittsburgher. Each drug store participates in and subscribes to the activities of the community in which it is found.

The needs, tastes and buying power of each community is carefully analyzed by the operating committee in an effort to supply the personal requirements of each individual in a specific location. Commodities not generally to be found in stock are obtained upon request of the customer.

13,000 Items

Although only 250 products are classed as "quick turnovers," being called for nearly every day, more than 13,000 items of merchandise are constantly maintained in general stock for the convenience of patrons.

Each store keeps a careful check of merchandise called for. An effort is then made to include it in the store's items. Suggestions and inquiries of customers are imparted by the employes in each store to the operating committee.

Mayflower Drug clerks are, of course, all graduate pharmacists. They are required to be alive to the responsibility of filling prescriptions. A double check is required in each case to assure absolute fidelity to the doctor's orders, executives say.

VETERAN HEADS DRUG CHAIN

George O. Yohe, newly appointed president of the Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., brings to that organization the vision and experience of 20 years in the drug business in Pittsburgh. A graduate of the School of Pharmacy of the University of Pittsburgh, he has been trained in and is familiar with conditions here.

He owned and operated three independent drug stores in the Pittsburgh district before he became interested in the need of local chain service to bring "downtown" prices to each community. He said:

"There is nothing finer than the feeling of confidence people in a community have in a store manager who is also a neighbor and a friend. Each of our 21 store managers is a resident of the community he serves."

Although Mr. Yohe is president, he considers himself as one of the Operating Committee of four Pittsburghers in the organization, three of whom are graduate pharmacists of the University of Pittsburgh. Mr. Yohe was graduated in 1914. Mr. J. C. Sims, vice president, was graduated in 1908 and Mr. W. J. Hug, secretary, in 1921.

Holds FALSE TEETH Tight in the Mouth

Dental science has found a wonderful aid called HOPE DENTURE POWDER that holds the plates tight in the mouth. You can eat and talk as well as you did with your natural teeth. HOPE DENTURE POWDER prevents bad breath and has no gummy or pasty taste. HOPE DENTURE POWDER is not only extremely adhesive, but it resists the heat generated when hot foods and liquids are placed in the mouth. Recommended by dentists. Wonderfully effective on lower plates.
